ENVOY DENIES THREAT INTENDED

A NEW LETTER FROM HANIHARA IS SENT HUGHES

State Department Makes Public Exchange of Notes Between Secretary and Japanese Ambassador.

(International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Formal denial that he had intended to "threaten" the United States when he told Secretary of State Hughes that "grave consequences" would follow the passage of the Japanese exclusion act in congress has been made by Masanao Hanihara, Japanese ambassador to the United States.

This was disclosed tonight when the state department made public an exchange of letters between the ambassador and Secretary Hughes, in which Japan's representative said his use of the phrase had been misconstrued in the senate and Mr. Hughes assured him in reply that the state department understood his meaning even if the senate did not.

Hanihara's letter of explanation—or apology—was written on Thursday, the day after the senate had unanimously voted the Japanese exclusion provision into the immigration bill.

This action by the senate followed some hours of debate in which the Japanese ambassador was roundly criticized by republicans and democrats alike for what was termed his "insulting letter". Senator Lodge said Hanihara's letter at best was "a veiled threat," and Senator Moses, republican of New Hampshire, corrected him to say there was nothing veiled about it—that it was "a very direct threat" that the ambassador made by use of the words "grave consequences."

Secretary Hughes' reply was dated yesterday after the senate had reaffirmed its determination to bar Japanese nationals by a record vote of 71 to 4.

"Unable to Understand."

In his letter, Ambassador Hanihara said he was "unable to understand" how the senate could have construed his use of "grave consequence" as a threat. He assured Mr. Hughes that neither he nor his government had any idea of threatening the United States and declared he had only sought to impress upon the American government that exclusion of Japanese nationals "would create, or at least tend to create, an unhappy atmosphere of ill-feeling and misgiving over the relations between the two countries."

As a matter of fact, Hanihara said, he believed this condition of affairs—the turmoil and ill-feeling—to be "grave consequences."

"But in using these words," his letter said, "I had no thought of being in any way disagreeable or discourteous, and still less of conveying a 'veiled threat.'

"On the contrary, it was in a spirit of the most sincere respect, confidence and candor that I used these words."

In his reply, Secretary Hughes stated that "I had no doubt that these words were to be taken in the sense you have stated." He was "happy to added that I have appreciated your constant desire to promote the most cordial relations between the peoples of the two countries."

New Protest Probable.

That another formal protest from Tokio against the exclusion act is impending is regarded as certain. It will be several days yet before the bill islaid on President Coolidge's desk for signature.

At that time, Japan is expected to further impress upon the United States the deep injury she feels.

The Hanihara-Hughes letters made public tonight merely sought to allay the feeling that has been engendered on both sides of the Pacific since the publication of Hanihara's fateful letter.

That the correspondence will have no effect in inducing the senate to retrace its steps goes without saying. Feeling in the senate is too strong for that and a similar situation prevails in the house. It is recognized, however, that Hanihara's complete disavowal of any threat might move some senators and representatives to sustain a veto should President Coolidge decide on one.

Secretary Hughes had a long conference with President Coolidge early today over the Japanese situation. He declined to discuss the conference later and the white house was similarly silent.

That Hanihara's letter does provide President Coolidge with a veto vehicle if he cares to utilize it, was generally seen in diplomatic quarters tonight.

Ambassador's Letter.

The Hughes-Hanihara correspondence follows:

"My dear Mr. Secretary:

"In reading the Congressional Record of April 14, 1924, I find that the letter I addressed to you on April 10, a copy of which you sent to the chairman of the senate committee on

GERMANY SEEKS FULL AUTHORITY

Will Ask Restoration of "Sovereignty" Over Occupied Territory.

Request To Be Made As Soon As Reparations Question Is Settled.

BERLIN, April 19.—Germany is preparing to demand restoration of "full sovereignty" over her occupied territory as soon as the reparations question is settled. It was indicated here tonight.

Manifestly as preliminary to such a course the reich's government has queried England, asking whether that nation shares Premier Poincare's view that occupation of the Ruhr and the Rhineland by the Franco-Belgians must be retained for at least two years after a reparations agreement is reached.

No answer to the note has yet been received, but it is learned from other sources close to Foreign Minister Stresemann that a reply favorable to the German thesis is hoped for.

At any rate, Germany will demand full sovereignty over all her own territory when the reparations negotiations get under way in Paris.

Stresemann, it is believed, also will hold that all German prisoners must be returned as soon as the reparations problem is settled.

The attacks of the nationalists, headed by Von Heilferich, will have no effect on the program decided on by the foreign minister, according to an informant.

The nationalists have been stressing especially that Germany will very nearly lose control of her railways if the recommendations of Dawes are put into effect, but Stresemann does not hold this view and believes the German lines can produce the full amount of revenue for reparations estimated by the Dawes experts.

Minister of Finance Luther, in a speech today, began the government campaign for acceptance of the Dawes report, declaring "full economic and financial unity of the reich" is essential if the country is to return to normalcy.

DENIAL FROM SLATTERY.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 19.—United States District Attorney Slattery of Montana, today emphatically denied that John S. Pratt, special prosecutor from Washington, here in connection with Senator Wheeler's indictment, "appeared before the grand jury and argued Wheeler's case after the first ballot failed to result in an indictment" as reported in a dispatch from Washington.

Three States Plan Stringent Embargo If Plague Spreads

PORTLAND, Ore., April 19.—Oregon, Washington and Idaho authorities meeting here today drew plans for a more stringent embargo and quarantine against dangers of the hoof and mouth disease.

An absolute embargo on all automobile tourist travel from California into the three states will be ordered if the hoof and mouth disease reaches a point within two hundred miles of the Oregon border.

Representatives of the three states also agreed to tighten restrictions on the shipment of California products despite recent appeals of President Coolidge for modification of rules.

WATSON WARNS AGAINST VETO

Indiana Senator Declares Coolidge Must Sign Bonus Bill Or Run Risk of Having Own Friends Pass It Over His Veto.

PASSAGE EARLY THIS WEEK SEEMS CERTAIN

Senator Curtis, In Charge of Measure, Feels Vote May Be Taken Monday and Backers Anticipate a Large Majority.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—President Coolidge must sign the soldier insurance bonus bill or run the risk of having his own friends in congress pass it over his veto.

That, in substance, was the ultimatum served on the president tonight by Senator Watson, Indiana, a very staunch administration supporter who frequently speaks for the white house.

It was delivered during the senate debate on the bonus bill today while Democratic Leader Robinson sought vainly to fasten "the thumb-screws" on republican leaders to learn the president's attitude on the measure.

While Watson disclaimed any knowledge of the president's views, he said that Mr. Coolidge had been warned by a number of republican senators that they would vote to over-ride his veto of the insurance plan, although they would support his opposition to the cash option feature substitute being considered by the democrats.

As a result of the day's developments, the passage of the insurance plan early next week seemed sure.

Senator Curtis, Kansas, in charge of the measure, said tonight that a vote may be reached Monday. Advocates of the measure claimed that there will not be more than a dozen votes in opposition to it.

John R. Quinn, national commander of the American legion, delivered what was regarded as a death blow to the cash option plan. He sent a personal message to all friends of the bonus in the senate to vote down the optional cash feature in favor of the insurance bill, which carries cash payments for veterans not entitled to over $50.

In view of the desires of the veterans, the leaders said tonight that it was doubtful whether a vote would be pressed on the cash plan. The democrats in conference refused to make the full cash payments plan a party issue and Robinson indicated that no step would be taken that might bring about a veto.

Nurses Suspended For Bobbing Hair

CHICAGO, April 19.—Four pretty nurses who lately had themselves, shamelessly shingled were today under suspension from the Cook county hospital training school.

"It isn't the bob itself," declared Miss Mary Wheeler, superintendent who suspended the quartet, "but the bolshevik spirit inspiring it."

"No student nurse in this school will be refused her diploma 'on the grounds of bobbed hair," she continued. "Ridiculous! The young women were suspended because of direct defiance of the ruling of their own student self-government association and such anarchy must be suppressed!"

Bobbed hair is only the first false step, Miss Wheeler contends.

FLIERS RESUME THEIR JOURNEY

Three United States Round-The-World Planes Hope Off For Dutch Harbor

Flight Leader Martin Remains at Katanak, Alaska, Awaiting New Motor.

(International News Service.)

CHIGNIK, Alaska, April 19—Minus their leader Major Frederick L Martin, who with his plane, the Seattle, is awaiting arrival of a new engine at Katanak, th ree United States army round-the-world fliers stopped off from here today for Dutch Harbor.

The hop-off on the 350 mile journey was made at 11 a. m local time (4 p m. eastern standard time) The fliers expected to make the jump in approximately five minutes and one-half hours.

Led by Lieut. Erik Nelson, in the absence of Major Martin, the three planes tuned up in the bay here for an hour before the start.

Upon their arrival at Dutch Harbor, one of the main flight bases, the three planes will start an intensive overhauling of their machines in preparation for the final hop-off from Attu later across the Pacific Major Martin will fly directly to Dutch Harbor as soon as repairs are completed at Katanak and resume command of the flight.

He is expected at Dutch Harbor by the middle of the week.

PASS RESOLUTION.

WASHINGTON, April 19. — The house today unanimously passed a joint resolution appropriating $1,500,000 to fight the disease in California. A previous appropriation called for $1,000,000.

Former Solon Found Guilty

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 19.—Nicholas J. Whelen, former United States senator from Michigan, tonight was found guilty of violating the California state corporate securities act and recommended to the mercy of the court. Three of his associates in the defunct Bankers Mortgage and Discount company of San Francisco, also were found guilty. Two of them face heavy sentences.

AUTO OVERTURNS; TWO WOMEN HURT

Mrs. A. J. Bodfield and Mrs. Charles Bryant Suffer Painful Injuries.

Latter Pinned Underneath Car When It Rolls Down the Courthouse Driveway.

Mrs. A. J. Bodfield and Mrs. Charles Bryant, both of Bennet, were painfully injured Saturday afternoon when the Ford car in which they were riding turned over in the driveway just west of the courthouse. Mrs. Bodfield, who was driving apparently drove up on the bank at the side of the driveway and the car turned over and rolled down. The wheels are thought to have locked.

With the two women in the car were Lou Bryan, 16, and Elizabeth Bryant, 11. Neither was injured.

Mrs. Bodfield's left arm was injured and Mrs. Bryant, who was pinned under the car, was badly bruised. It is not thought that the injuries of either will be serious Both were taken home. The car was slightly damaged but was driven back to Bennet.

The accident occurred about 4:30. Both women were brought into the office of the county jail where they were given medical attention. They left for Bennet at 8 o'clock.

The women and the two children had been visiting A. J. "Jack" Bodfield at the county jail where he is serving out a fine on a liquor charge. Mrs. Bryant is Mrs. Bodfield's mother.

MACDONALD SAYS OUTLOOK BRIGHT

Declares Dawes Report Gives Europe Opportunity to Begin Anew.

Feels Germany Must Be Given Opportunity to Join The League.

YORK, Eng., April 19.—"The report of the Dawes commission of experts which examined Germany's capacity to pay reparations affords Europe an opportunity to begin afresh," Prime Minister Ramsay Macdonald of Britain's labor government, declared in a political speech here this evening.

Germany must be admitted to the League of Nations, the prime minister said, and the league must serve as a basis for European peace in the future.

The labor premier, facing a hard battle when the convention of his party opens here tomorrow, was in his best fighting trim and launched a vigorous defense of his administration.

There is no need for a general election, he said. The labor government must be allowed to remain in office and must conduct its work in accordance with the principles of the party.

Citing the accomplishments of his regime, the premier called attention to the increase in value of the pound sterling in comparison with the dollar as one of the best proofs that the labor government has not been a failure.

Macdonald also defended vigorously the action of his government in granting full diplomatic relatons to Russia and starting the Anglo-Russian conference now under way in London.

"The Anglo-Russian conference will succeed," he said, "and trade will show an even greater improvement as a result."

Four Dead After Gay Dinner Party While Ten Are Ill

BUENOS AIRES, April 19.—Fourteen persons sat down to dinner Thursday night at the hospitable Schmidt rancho, near Puan. Otto Schmidt, the host, was giving what South Americans call an "estancia" or house party. The guests were all acquainted and with beer and song the evening passed as evenings do.

Twenty-four hours later, four of those who had been present died in agony of a malady which physicians have been unable to diagnose. The other ten are seriously, perhaps fatally ill.

Physacians, friends and detectives are unable to explain the mystery.

SAVE $300,000 ON ROAD WORK

To Include More Projects In Program For This Year and First Half of 1925 Than Originally Contemplated.

CLOSE COMPETITION SCALES DOWN COST

Total of $2,250,000 Contracted For Up to Present Time—April Letting Provides for Expenditure of Million and a Quarter.

Through the saving of $250,000 to $300,000 on state highway projects for which bids were received and contracts awarded last week, it will be possible to include more work in the program for this year and the first six months of 1925 than was originally contemplated by State Engineer Cochran and his engineering assistants.

This does not mean that a new group of plans will be formulated at once and rushed through during the summer season. Enough projects have already been provided for to keep the state engineer and his corps of helpers busy for six months to come. There will be no hurry lining up additional work until operations are started and well under way for the sections of highway on which contracts have heretofore been let.

In all probability, some of the contemplated road construction will not be definitely decided upon until the late summer or fall, and when the plans for these projects are finally approved contracts will be awarded during the fall or winter so that the succesful bidders may prepare to start work early in the spring and have it virtually completed by the end of the fiscal biennium—June 30, 1925.

Aims to Avoid Deficiency.

State Engineer Cochran is in entire harmony with his official superior, Governor Bryan, relative to keeping contract obgliations for the biennium within the amount made available under the 1923 legislative appropriation. His plans and estimates have all been made with a view to spending no more than the $1,500,000 of state funds appropriated and an equal sum to be provided by the United States government, or $3,000,000 in all.

Cattle Disease Costs California Over a Million

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—California waited expectantly tonight ofr the next move in the federal government's effort to intercede with surrounding states in a situation which has caused stagnation of this states's agricultural industry by heavy restrictions to prevent spread of the hoof and mouth disease.

The epidemic has cost California live stock owners more than $1,500,000 in stock shlaughtered since its inception. Loss to other industries dependent upon free movement of farm products has been neormous.

Three new infections, comprising 217 head of dairy cows, was reported in Los Angeles county tonight.

OFFICIALS FEEL FIRE INCENDIARY

CHICAGO, April 19.—Police and fire department officials were almost convinced tonight that the fire which destroyed the Curran building here, causing the death of nine persons, eight of them firemen, was of incendiary origin.

Three men are under arrest in connection with the investigation. They are Samuel Moore, Leo Unell and Samuel Polinsky. Moore and Unell conducted a leather goods plant in the building. Police said they have found that Moore and Unell took out $32,000 in fire insurance on their stock of goods several days ago.

Polinsky held the insurance papers in lieu of mortgage on the goods of the shop.

Another tenant of the building told police that Moore and Unell talked with him about an hour and a half before the fire started last night, and that he was asked whether all the tenants were out of the building. Samuel Kravitz, 10, told police he saw a man run from the building just before the fire started.

If the coroner's inquest shows evidence of arson, charges of murder will be placed against the persons involved. Coroner Oscar Wolff stated.

J. P. McDonnell, deputy state fire marshal, conducting a separate investigation said all the evidence points to the use of gasoline in the fire.

More than a score of firemen were injured and it is feared one or two may die.

OPENS CAMPAIGN.

TACOMA, Wash., April 19.—"The first duty that confronts a new administration is to drive the crooks out of the capital," William Gibbs McAdoo declared here today in opening his Washington state campaign for the democratic presidential nomination.

BRIDGE MISHAP IMPERILS MANY BASEBALL FANS

Collapse Occurs Few Minutes After Main Rush From Polo Grounds.

(United Press)

NEW YORK, April 19.—Lives of several thousand baseball fans were imperiled today when the superstructure of McComb's bridge crashed, narrowly missing two trolley cars filled with homeward bound fans.

Tons of steel came thundering down upon the pavement of the bridge, carrying away live wires, girders and supports with a roar that could be heard for blocks.

In addition to several hundred persons jammed in the trolleys, the bridge and its approaches were crowded with pedestrians and automobiles.

A panic ensued on the bridge, which is near the Polo Grounds, when big steel girders came snapping and crashing down in an easterly direction! Trolley wires were torn away for a distance of a block east of the bridge and the entire length of the structure.

The collapse occurred a few minutes after the main rush from the grounds and many of them sought to make their way home by way of the bridge.

Bridge tenders and police, sensing the danger from live wires, fought to hold back the crowd which was ignorant of the danger.

Live wires, heavily charged with electricity, were strewn about the approach and the power had to be cut off.

Some 500 fans who had been aboard the trolleys rushed in a near panic for the end of the bridge.

War Vets In Public Initiation Sunday

Camp William Lewis, United Spanish War veterans, will hold a public initiation service at Antelope park Sunday afternoon, beginnig at 2:30. The ceremony will be held a short distance south of the O street entrance, and will be a part of a series of anniversary programs being held during the year commemorating the call to colors by President McKinley, April 26, 1898. The public is invited.

Hearing Friday for Motorbus Owners

Next Friday the state railway commission will conduct a hearing at which al lowners of motorbus lines between cities in Nebraska have been cited to appear and show cause why they should not be required to carry liability insurance in amounts adequate to protect their passengers and the general public in case of accidents resulting in loss of life or damage to property.

This is the first time the commission has undertaken to impose such a requirement. It is not attempting to regulate the service or rates of the busses, though they are considered to be common carriers under its jurisdiction.

AUTOISTS FACE NEW TROUBLES IN THE SOUTH

Stranded Motorists Pass Through Arizona Fumigating Station But Embargo In New Mexico Reported.

(International News Service.)

YUMA, Ariz., April 19.—As the long line of automobiles stretching into the California desert dwindled tonight as stranded motorists passed through Arizona's fumigating station at the rate of fourteen machines an hour, the tourists heard of new difficulties facing their progress eastward.

Word was received that the state of New Mexico had declared an embargo on travel from California because of the hoof and mouth epidemic in the coast state. Dr. Edward L. Stam, quarantine supervisor, announced tonight he would give all motorists passing through the Arizona fumigating station a certificate of disinfection in the hope that it would be accepted at the New Mexico line and permit the travellers to proceed.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The weather outlook for the week beginning Monday follows:

Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri Valleys: Generally fair Monday and probably Tuesday and considerable cloudiness and probably occasional showers thereafter; temperature slightly below normal at beginning and latter part, and about normal middle of week.

Nebraska: Increasing cloudiness Sunday; probably becoming unsettled by Monday; not much change in temperature.

Kansas: Partly cloudy Sunday and Monday; not much change in temperature.

Little Change In Condition of Eleanora Duse

PITTSBURGH, April 19.—Eleanora Duse, greatest actress of her time, tonight was critically ill at a hotel here and only has "a fighting chance" for her life, according to her physician, Dr. Charles J. Barone.

Operate On a Screen Star

FORT WAYNE, Ind., April 19. — Miss Clara Kimball Young, stage and motion picture actress, who underwent in operation for abdominal tumor here tonight, was "doing as well as could be expected," her nurse declared at 11:30 p. m. At that hour Miss Young had not come from under the effect of the anaesthetic.

Doctors H. O. Bruggeneu and D. P Weaver, who jointly performed the operation, expressed the opinion late tonight that their patient could hope for a good recovery.

ASKS HALF MILLION.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Suit for $500,000 was started here today by Attorney Eugene P. Quirke against Mrs. Helen Weicks Bliss widow of Samuel Bliss, millionaire steel man, on the grounds that she called him "a vile fellow." Quirke represents the heirs of Bliss who are suing Mrs Bliss for an estate of $2,400,000.

As the last of the motorists passed over the Arizona line, preparations were made to enforce Governor Hunt's edict that no further travel will be permitted from California.

Machine Guns Mounted.

Two machine guns in charge of a squad of national guardsmen were mounted on the bridge leading over the Colorado river. Adjutant General Harris arrived here to carry out the orders of Governor Hunt that all further travel be prohibited. It was reported tonight that Governor Hunt was seriously considering extending his drastic regulations to cover travel by train from California.

Cars Thoroughly Sprayed.

The scenes here this afternoon were reminiscent of war tim when demobilized troops were subjected to fumigation. Hastily constructed buildings were utilized. Automobiles were sprayed inside and out, and their passengers subjected to disinfecting baths. Clothing, bedding and baggage were thoroughly sterilized. The work started shortly before noon and by early evening but 125 machines remained to be disinfected. Dr. Stam expressed belief midnight would see the last of the motorists over the line and the border again closed.

California state and county officials were notified to head off all further traffic to Arizona. In a hot telegram to Governor Richardson of

ATTERBURY ASKS MUSCLE SHOALS

Declares He Will Revolutionize Railroads if Given Power Plant.

Senator Norris Believes Offer by Pennsylvania Magnate Fairest Of All.

WASHINGTON, April 19. — The American railway industry may be revolutionized by the use of aluminum passenger and freight cars, W. W. Atterbury, vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, told the senate agriculture committee today in urging acceptance of his offer for Muscle Shoals.

Atterbury declared he would experiment in aluminum cars at Muscle Shoals if the government accepted his offer for the water power project. His associates in the offer, he said, were Elon H. Hooker and J. G. White, both of New York.

If given Muscle Shoals, Atterbury said his experiments undoubtedly would be successful and eventually would revolutionize American transportation.

As a result of Atterbury's proposal the offer of Henry Ford appeared destined to face new opposition.

Terms Bid "Fairest"

Several members of the committee, including Senator Norris, republican of Nebraska, chairman, declared Atterbury had made the "fairest offer of all." Noris said it was "much better than the offer of Ford.

"I obtained the aluminum railway car idea in France when I learned that the German Zeppelines were made from a composition of aluminum and magnesium," said Atterbury. "The material is exceedingly light and extraordinarily durable. It can withstand rough treatment.

"If our offer for Muscle Shoals is accepted, I plan to devote considerable time to research work in an effort to manufacture aluminum cars. I have the alloy composition now."

Under his financial arrangement, Atterbury would organize a $1,000,000 corporation to operate the government's project for fifty years. All profits would be turned over to the government until the federal investment was repaid.

LONG PROBE OF OIL LEASES TO END THIS WEEK

With But Five Witnesses Remaining To Be Heard, Walsh Announces Finish Of Inquiry In Sight.

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The senate oil commission will ring down the curtain on its investigations next week, bringing to an end one of the most sensational congressional inquiries ever made.

Announcement of the ending of the famous probe was made tonight by Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, who played the leading role in the series of sensations which marked the progress of the committee hearings.

Only five more witnesses remain to be questioned. Walsh stated, three of whom he himself has summoned and two subpoenaed by Senator Spencer, republican of Missouri. After they are examined, the commission's doors will be shut, probably forever, while the committee draws up its report to the senate drafting recommendations for the prevention of future oil scandals, Walsh said.

The committee will lie dormant while the contempt case of Sinclair and the cases brought by the special government counsel for recovery of the oil reserves and for punishment of those fund guilty of "fraud and corruption" in the oil leases are pending in the house, until the resolution giving the committee power to investiate dies with the present session of congress.

Occupied Several Months.

The investigation has been underway many months For several weeks it proceeded haltingly and it was not until January 12, 1924, that general public interest was aroused.

On that date Senator Walsh obtained the statement from Edward B. McLean at Palm Beach, Fla., that he had not loaned Albert B. Fall the $100,000 which Fall had told the committee he had.

Sensations followed thick and fast after the disclosure.

With W. W. Tarbell, oil geologist, on the stand today, Senator Walsh sought an expert opinion as to whether the leases on the Buena Vista Hills, California, reserve, most of which were negotiated by the last democratic administration, were necessary.

Tarbell told the committee that in his opinion the leases as executed were wisely made as the reserve is "checker-boarded" by privatey owned sections, and that without removal of the oil from the reserve, most of it would have been extracted through the private wells and lost by the government.

Walsh will call E. C. Finey, assistant secretary of the interior next week, t otestify further about administration of the reserve.

ENVOY DENIES THREAT INTENDED

A NEW LETTER FROM HANIHARA IS SENT HUGHES

(International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Formal denial that he had intended to "threaten" the United States when he told Secretary of State Hughes that "grave consequences" would follow the passage of the Japanese exclusion act in congress has been made by Masanao Hanihara, Japanese ambassador to the United States.

This was disclosed tonight when the state department made public an exchange of letters between the ambassador and Secretary Hughes, in which Japan's representative said his use of the phrase had been misconstrued in the senate and Mr. Hughes assured him in reply that the state department understood his meaning even if the senate did not.

The nationalists have been stressing especially that Germany will very nearly lose control of her railways if the recommendations of Dawes are put into effect, but Stresemann does not hold this view and believes the German lines can produce the full amount of revenue for reparations estimated by the Dawes experts.

Minister of Finance Luther, in a speech today, began the government campaign for acceptance of the Dawes report, declaring "full economic and financial unity of the reich" is essential if the country is to return to normalcy.

DENIAL FROM SLATTERY.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 19.—United States District Attorney Slattery of Montana, today emphatically denied that John S. Pratt, special prosecutor from Washington, here in connection with Senator Wheeler's indictment, "appeared before the grand jury and argued Wheeler's case after the first ballot failed to result in an indictment" as reported in a dispatch from Washington.

Three States Plan Stringent Embargo If Plague Spreads

PORTLAND, Ore., April 19.—Oregon, Washington and Idaho authorities meeting here today drew plans for a more stringent embargo and quarantine against dangers of the hoof and mouth disease.

An absolute embargo on all automobile tourist travel from California into the three states will be ordered if the hoof and mouth disease reaches a point within two hundred miles of the Oregon border.

Representatives of the three states also agreed to tighten restrictions on the shipment of California products despite recent appeals of President Coolidge for modification of rules.

WATSON WARNS AGAINST VETO

Indiana Senator Declares Coolidge Must Sign Bonus Bill Or Run Risk of Having Own Friends Pass It Over His Veto.

PASSAGE EARLY THIS WEEK SEEMS CERTAIN

Senator Curtis, In Charge of Measure, Feels Vote May Be Taken Monday and Backers Anticipate a Large Majority.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—President Coolidge must sign the soldier insurance bonus bill or run the risk of having his own friends in congress pass it over his veto.

That, in substance, was the ultimatum served on the president tonight by Senator Watson, Indiana, a very staunch administration supporter who frequently speaks for the white house.

It was delivered during the senate debate on the bonus bill today while Democratic Leader Robinson sought vainly to fasten "the thumb-screws" on republican leaders to learn the president's attitude on the measure.

While Watson disclaimed any knowledge of the president's views, he said that Mr. Coolidge had been warned by a number of republican senators that they would vote to over-ride his veto of the insurance plan, although they would support his opposition to the cash option feature substitute being considered by the democrats.

As a result of the day's developments, the passage of the insurance plan early next week seemed sure.

Senator Curtis, Kansas, in charge of the measure, said tonight that a vote may be reached Monday. Advocates of the measure claimed that there will not be more than a dozen votes in opposition to it.

John R. Quinn, national commander of the American legion, delivered what was regarded as a death blow to the cash option plan. He sent a personal message to all friends of the bonus in the senate to vote down the optional cash feature in favor of the insurance bill, which carries cash payments for veterans not entitled to over $50.

In view of the desires of the veterans, the leaders said tonight that it was doubtful whether a vote would be pressed on the cash plan. The democrats in conference refused to make the full cash payments plan a party issue and Robinson indicated that no step would be taken that might bring about a veto.

Nurses Suspended For Bobbing Hair

CHICAGO, April 19.—Four pretty nurses who lately had themselves shamelessly shingled were today under suspension from the Cook county hospital training school.

"It isn't the bob itself," declared Miss Mary Wheeler, superintendent who suspended the quartet, "but the bolshevik spirit inspiring it."

"No student nurse in this school will be refused her diploma on the grounds of bobbed hair," she continued. "Ridiculous! The young women were suspended because of direct defiance of the ruling of their own student self-government association and such anarchy must be suppressed!"

Bobbed hair is only the first false step, Miss Wheeler contends.

FLIERS RESUME THEIR JOURNEY

Three United States Round-The-World Planes Hope Off For Dutch Harbor

Flight Leader Martin Remains at Katanak, Alaska, Awaiting New Motor.

(International News Service.)

CHIGNIK, Alaska, April 19—Minus their leader Major Frederick L. Martin, who with his plane, the Seattle, is awaiting arrival of a new engine at Katanak, th ree United States army round-the-world fliers stopped off from here today for Dutch Harbor.

The hop-off on the 350 mile journey was made at 11 a. m. local time (4 p. m., eastern standard time). The fliers expected to make the jump in approximately five minutes and one-half hours.

Led by Lieut. Erik Nelson, in the absence of Major Martin, the three planes tuned up in the bay here for an hour before the start.

Upon their arrival at Dutch Harbor, one of the main flight bases, the three planes will start an intensive overhauling of their machines in preparation for the final hop-off from Attu later across the Pacific. Major Martin will fly directly to Dutch Harbor as soon as repairs are completed at Katanak and resume command of the flight.

He is expected at Dutch Harbor by the middle of the week.

PASS RESOLUTION.

WASHINGTON, April 19. — The house today unanimously passed a joint resolution appropriating $1,500,000 to fight the disease in California. A previous appropriation called for $1,000,000.

Former Solon Found Guilty

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 19.—Nicholas J. Whelen, former United States senator from Michigan, tonight was found guilty of violating the California state corporate securities act and recommended to the mercy of the court. Three of his associates in the defunct Bankers Mortgage and Discount company of San Francisco, also were found guilty. Two of them face heavy sentences.

AUTO OVERTURNS; TWO WOMEN HURT

Mrs. A. J. Bodfield and Mrs. Charles Bryant Suffer Painful Injuries.

Latter Pinned Underneath Car When It Rolls Down the Courthouse Driveway.

Mrs. A. J. Bodfield and Mrs. Charles Bryant, both of Bennet, were painfully injured Saturday afternoon when the Ford car in which they were riding turned over in the driveway just west of the courthouse. Mrs. Bodfield, who was driving apparently drove up on the bank at the side of the driveway and the car turned over and rolled down. The wheels are thought to have locked.

With the two women in the car were Lou Bryan, 16, and Elizabeth Bryant, 11. Neither was injured.

Mrs. Bodfield's left arm was injured and Mrs. Bryant, who was pinned under the car, was badly bruised. It is not thought that the injuries of either will be serious. Both were taken home. The car was slightly damaged but was driven back to Bennet.

The accident occurred about 4:30. Both women were brought into the office of the county jail where they were given medical attention. They left for Bennet at 8 o'clock.

The women and the two children had been visiting A. J. "Jack" Bodfield at the county jail where he is serving out a fine on a liquor charge. Mrs. Bryant is Mrs. Bodfield's mother.

MACDONALD SAYS OUTLOOK BRIGHT

Declares Dawes Report Gives Europe Opportunity to Begin Anew.

Feels Germany Must Be Given Opportunity to Join The League.

YORK, Eng., April. 19.—"The report of the Dawes commission of experts which examined Germany's capacity to pay reparations affords Europe an opportunity to begin afresh," Prime Minister Ramsay Macdonald of Britain's labor government, declared in a political speech here this evening.

Germany must be admitted to the League of Nations, the prime minister said, and the league must serve as a basis for European peace in the future.

The labor premier, facing a hard battle when the convention of his party opens here tomorrow, was in his best fighting trim and launched a vigorous defense of his administration.

There is no need for a general election, he said. The labor government must be allowed to remain in office and must conduct its work in accordance with the principles of the party.

Citing the accomplishments of his regime, the premier called attention to the increase in value of the pound sterling in comparison wtih the dollar as one of the best proofs that the labor government has not been a failure.

Macdonald ,also defended vigorously the action of his government in granting full diplomatc relatons to Russia and startng the Anglo-Russian conference now under way in London.

"The Anglo-Russian conference will succeed," he said, "and trade will show an even greater improvement as a result."

Four Dead After Gay Dinner Party While Ten Are Ill

BUENOS AIRES, April 19.—Fourteen persons sat down to dinner Thursday night at the hospitable Schmidt rancho, near Puan. Otto Schmidt, the host, was giving what South Americans call an "estancia" or house party. The guests were all acquainted and with beer and song the evening passed as evenings do.

Twenty-four hours later, four of those who had been present died in agony of a malady which physicians have been unable to diagnose. The other ten are seriously, perhaps fatally ill.

Physacians, friends and detectives are unable to explain the mystery.

SAVE $300,000 ON ROAD WORK

To Include More Projects In Program For This Year and First Half of 1925 Than Originally Contemplated.

CLOSE COMPETITION SCALES DOWN COST

Total of $2,250,000 Contracted For Up to Present Time—April Letting Provides for Expenditure of Million and a Quarter.

Through the saving of $250,000 to $300,000 on state highway projects for which bids were received and contracts awarded last week, it will be possible to include more work in the program for this year and the first six months of 1925 than was originally contemplated by State Engineer Cochran and his engineering assistants.

This does not mean that a new group of plans will be formulated at once and rushed through during the summer season. Enough projects have already been provided for to keep the state engineer and his corps of helpers busy for six months to come. There will be no hurry lining up additional work until operations are started and well under way for the sections of highway on which contracts have heretofore been let.

In all probability, some of the contemplated road construction will not be definitely decided upon until the late summer or fall, and when the plans for these projects are finally approved contracts will be awarded during the fall or winter so that the succesful bidders may prepare to start work early in the spring and have it virtually completed by the end of the fiscal biennium—June 30, 1925.

Aims to Avoid Deficiency.

State Engineer Cochran is in entire harmony with his official superior, Governor Bryan, relative to keeping contract obgilations for the biennium within the amount made available under the 1923 legislative appropriation. His plans and estimates have all been made with a view to spending no more than the $1,500,000 of state funds appropriated and an equal sum to be provided by the United States government, or $3,000,000 in all.

The first bunch of contracts embraced in the 1924 highway schedule

Cattle Disease Costs California Over a Million

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—California waited expectantly tonight ofr the next move in the federal government's effort to intercede with surrounding states in a situation which has caused stagnation of this states's agricultural industry by heavy restrictions to prevent spread of the hoof and mouth disease.

The epidemic has cost California live stock owners more than $1,500,000 in stock shlaughtered since its inception. Loss to other industries dependent upon free movement of farm products has been neormous.

Three new infections, comprising 217 head of dairy cows, was reported in Los Angeles county tonight.

OFFICIALS FEEL FIRE INCENDIARY

CHICAGO, April 19.—Police and fire department officials were almost convinced tonight that the fire which destroyed the Curran building here, causing the death of nine persons, eight of them firemen, was of incendiary origin.

Three men are under arrest in connection with the investigation. They are Samuel Moore, Leo Unell and Samuel Polinsky. Moore and Unell conducted a leather goods plant in the building. Police said they have found that Moore and Unell took out $32,000 in fire insurance on their stock of goods several days ago.

Polinsky held the insurance papers in lieu of mortgage on the goods of the shop.

Another tenant of the building told police that Moore and Unell talked with him about an hour and a half before the fire started last night, and that he was asked whether all the tenants were out of the building. Samuel Kravitz, 10, told police he saw a man run from the building just before the fire started.

If the coroner's inquest shows evidence of arson, charges of murder will be placed against the persons involved, Coroner Oscar Wolff stated.

J. P. McDonnell, deputy state fire marshal, conducting a separate investigation said all the evidence points to the use of gasoline in the fire.

More than a score of firemen were injured and it is feared one or two may die.

OPENS CAMPAIGN.

TACOMA, Wash., April 19.—"The first duty that confronts a new administration is to drive the crooks out of the capital," William Gibbs McAdoo declared here today in opening his Washington state campaign for the democratic presidential nomination.

BRIDGE MISHAP IMPERILS MANY BASEBALL FANS

Collapse Occurs Few Minutes After Main Rush From Polo Grounds.

(United Press)

NEW YORK, April 19.—Lives of several thousand baseball fans were imperiled today when the superstructure of McComb's bridge crashed, narrowly missing two trolley cars filled with homeward bound fans.

Tons of steel came thundering down upon the pavement of the bridge, carrying away live wires, girders and supports with a roar that could be heard for blocks.

In addition to several hundred persons jammed in the trolleys, the bridge and its approaches were crowded with pedestrians and automobiles.

A panic ensued on the bridge, which is near the Polo Grounds, when big steel girders came snapping and crashing down in an easterly direction. Trolley wires were torn away for a distance of a block east of the bridge and the entire length of the structure.

The collapse occurred a few minutes after the main rush from the grounds and many of them sought to make their way home by way of the bridge.

Bridge tenders and police, sensing the danger from live wires, fought to hold back the crowd which was ignorant of the danger.

Live wires, heavily charged with electricity, were strewn about the approach and the power had to be cut off.

Some 500 fans who had been aboard the trolleys rushed in a near panic for the end of the bridge.

War Vets In Publc Initiation Sunday

Camp William Lewis, United Spanish War veterans, will hold a public initiation service at Antelope park Sunday afternoon, beginnig at 2:30. The ceremony will be held a short distance south of the O street entrance, and will be a part of a series of anniversary programs being held during the year commemorating the call to colors by President McKinley, April 26, 1898. The public is invited.

Hearing Friday for Motorbus Owners

Next Friday the state railway commission will conduct a hearing at which al lowners of motorbus lines between cities in Nebraska have been cited to appear and show cause why they should not be required to carry liability insurance in amounts adequate to protect their passengers and the general public in case of accidents resulting in loss of life or damage to property.

This is the first time the commission has undertaken to impose such a requirement. It is not attempting to regulate the service or rates of the busses, though they are considered to be common carriers under its jurisdiction.

AUTOISTS FACE NEW TROUBLES IN THE SOUTH

Stranded Motorists Pass Through Arizona Fumigating Station But Embargo In New Mexico Reported.

(International News Service.)

YUMA, Ariz., April 19.—As the long line of automobiles stretching into the California desert dwindled tonight as stranded motorists passed through Arizona's fumigating station at the rate of fourteen machines an hour, the tourists heard of new difficulties facing their progress eastward.

Word was received that the state of New Mexico had declared an embargo on travel from California because of the hoof and mouth epidemic in the coast state. Dr. Edward L. Stam, quarantine supervisor, announced tonight he would give all motorists passing through the Arizona fumigating station a certificate of disinfection in the hope that it would be accepted at the New Mexico line and permit the travellers to proceed.

As the last of the motorists passed over the Arizona line, preparations were made to enforce Governor Hunt's edict that no further travel will be permitted from California.

Machine Guns Mounted.

Two machine guns in charge of a squad of national guardsmen were mounted on the bridge leading over the Colorado river. Adjutant General Harris arrived here to carry out the orders of Governor Hunt that all further travel be prohibited. It was reported tonight that Governor Hunt was seriously considering extending his drastic regulations to cover travel by train from California.

Cars Thoroughly Sprayed.

The scenes here this afternoon were reminiscent of war tim when demobilized troops were subjected to fumigation. Hastily constructed buildings were utilized. Automobiles were sprayed inside and out, and their passengers subjected to disinfecting baths. Clothing, bedding and baggage were thoroughly sterilized. The work started shortly before noon and by early evening but 125 machines remained to be disinfected. Dr. Stam expressed belief midnight would see the last of the motorists over the line and the border again closed.

California state and county officials were notified to head off all further traffic to Arizona. In a hot telegram to Governor Richardson of

LONG PROBE OF OIL LEASES TO END THIS WEEK

With But Five Witnesses Remaining To Be Heard, Walsh Announces Finish Of Inquiry In Sight.

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The senate oil commission will ring down the curtain on its investigations next week, bringing to an end one of the most sensational congressional inquiries ever made.

Announcement of the ending of the famous probe was made tonight by Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, who played the leading role in the series of sensations which marked the progress of the committee hearings.

Only five more witnesses remain to be questioned. Walsh stated, three of whom he himself has summoned and two subpoenaed by Senator Spencer, republican of Missouri. After they are examined, the commission's doors will be shut, probably forever, while the committee draws up its report to the senate drafting recommendations for the prevention of future oil scandals, Walsh said.

The committee will lie dormant while the contempt case of Sinclair and the cases brought by the special government counsel for recovery of the oil reserves and for punishment of those fund guilty of "fraud and corruption" in the oil leases are pending in the house, until the resolution giving the committee power to investiate dies with the present session of congress.

Occupied Several Months.

The investigation has been underway many months. For several weeks it proceeded haltingly and it was not until January 12, 1924, that general public interest was aroused. On that date Senator Walsh obtained the statement from Edward B. McLean at Palm Beach, Fla., that he had not loaned Albert B. Fall the $100,000 which Fall had told the committee he had.

Sensations followed thick and fast after the disclosure.

With W. W. Tarbell, oil geologist, on the stand today, Senator Walsh sought an expert opinion as to whether the leases on the Buena Vista Hills, California, reserve, most of which were negotiated by the last democratic administration, were necessary.

Tarbell told the committee that in his opinion the leases as executed were wisely made as the reserve is "checker-boarded" by privatey owned sections, and that without removal of the oil from the reserve, most of it would have been extracted through the private wells and lost by the government.

Walsh will call E. C. Finey, assistant secretary of the interior next week, t otestify further about administration of the reserve.

ATTERBURY ASKS MUSCLE SHOALS

Declares He Will Revolutionize Railroads if Given Power Plant.

Senator Norris Believes Offer by Pennsylvania Magnate Fairest Of All.

WASHINGTON, April 19. — The American railway industry may be revolutionized by the use of aluminum passenger and freight cars, W. W. Atterbury, vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, told the senate agriculture commitee today in urging acceptance of his offer for Muscle Shoals.

Atterbury declared he would experiment in aluminum cars at Muscle Shoals if the government accepted his offer for the water power project. His associates in the offer, he said, were Elon H. Hooker and J. G. White, both of New York.

If given Muscle Shoals, Atterbury said his experiments undoubtedly would be successful and eventually would revolutionize American transportation.

As a result of Atterbury's proposal the offer of Henry Ford appeared destined to face new opposition.

Terms Bid "Fairest."

Several members of the committee, including Senator Norris, republican of Nebraska, chairman, declared Atterbury had made the "fairest offer of all." Noris said it was "much better than the offer of Ford.

"I obtained the aluminum railway car idea in France when I learned that the German Zeppelines were made from a composition of aluminum and magnesium," said Atterbury. "The material is exceedingly light and extraordinarily durable. It can withstand rough treatment.

"If our offer for Muscle Shoals is accepted, I plan to devote considerable time to research work in an effort to manufacture aluminum cars. I have the alloy composition now."

Under his financial arrangement, Atterbury would organize a $1,000,000 corporation to operate the government's project for fifty years. All profits would be turned over to the government until the federal investment was repaid.

BUFFALO BILL WAS GENEROUS TO NEEDY PALS

Veteran Scout Always Had An Open Pocketbook For Unfortunates.

NEW YORK, April 19.—His great generosity to actors was an outstanding characteristic of Col Buffalo Bill Cody, according to Hugh A D'Arcy, veteran actor, who knew the great scout as a showman. Mr. D'Arcy, who is eighty-one years of age, sat in the parlor of his hotel, on West Forty-seventh street yesterday, and reminisced about the years when he used to meet Buffalo Bill in cities throughout the country, when they were both playing engagements at various houses. It was during this recital that he told about the open-handedness of the picturesque showmen, and of how he never heard of the need of his colleagues in the show business without giving generously.

The Buffalo Bill American association, of which Gen John J. Pershing is chairman, is interested in all data concerning the pioneer scout, and is placing in its files this material which shows a new face to Buffalo Bill's brilliant and versatile character The association will erect a handsome bronze equestrian statue of Buffalo Bill, the work of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, near Cody, Wyo The fund will be raised by public subscription, and the statue unveiled July 4.

As Mr. D'Arcy pulled back the curtain of the years he dug up from his storehouse of memory recollections of his days of comradeship with Cody.

Real Friend to Needy.

Why, Buffalo Bill would just as willingly have given $10 to a needy actor as ten cents," said Mr. D'Arcy. "There wasn't anything small about him. He was notably generous, and a story about a pal in his profession who was temporarily in financial distress always met with a quick response He didn't believe in red tape. However, he was never ostentatious in his charities, but gave quietly, and many people never heard about his many philanthropies of this kind.

Colonel Cody was exceedingly popular among people of the theatrical profession and, undoubtedly, this was due, in a measure, to his kind heart and open hand. But, in addition he had a magnetic personality. Personally, I believe he was the most courageous and gorgeous creature I have ever met on earth I am afraid that I will grow verbose, and use a lot of adjectives when I speak of Colonel Cody. But he struck my fancy from the first, and the memory of him which I carry through the years is a pretty tender one. He was my ideal of manly perfection.

"Rough as he naturally was as a result of the rough and hardy outdoor life he had always led, he was not rough inside. It was only superficial. He was a gentleman through and through. His manners were excellent, almost courtly. By nature he was mild and gentle, and, along with his generosity, he was noted for his good nature. I believe these two qualities go hand in hand.

"While Buffalo Bill's appearance was picturesque, it was not studiedly so. He was just naturally endowed by nature with a physique and an appearance which attracted attention. Of course, as he was traveling with a western show, depicting the life of cowboys, he had more or less of a western make-up on the stage But, off-stage, he affected quiet street clothes, though his hat was wide brimmed, and anyone would have known at a glance that he was a westerner.

"I first met Buffalo Bill in Louisville in 1878. He was then with a stage production, a border play, and with him were Wild Bill and Texas Jack. I was with another theatrical company, and we met as fellow showmen. After that I frequently met him in cities from coast to coast, and always he was kindly, genial, glad to resume old friendships.

I met him again in Toledo when he was managing his own company. We both stopped at the same hotel. I spoke to him at that time about the opportunity there was for him to put on a border play in England, as the craze for this type of show was then at its height over there. He said he thought he might go over in a year or two, and asked me to go with him. Not long afterwards Buffalo Bill came under the management of Nate Salsbury, a manager, and head of the Salsbury Troubadours, a farce comedy company. Nate arranged to take Buffalo Bill over to London, and they left for there with a powerful organization

Sidelight on His Nature.

"And there is another sidelight on his kindly nature In those olden days, in New York, there was a famous rendezvous for actors, at Fourteenth street and Fourth avenue Here we used to gather to exchange confidences and to pass evenings which would otherwise have been dull and lonely for all of us Buffalo Bill, Major Burke and others of his troupe used to drop in and we all got pretty chummy. Later, when Buffalo Bill and his company of thirty or forty Indians, cowboys, bandits, train robbers and other characters which made up the cast, were making a terrific hit in London, he did not forget to do a little courteous act for an old friend. I had written a poem called "The Face Upon the Floor," and it was printed in the New York Dispatch in 1887. Joe Smith, the proprietor of the actors' meeting place, bought one hundred copies of my poem and sent them over to Buffalo Bill in London

"When Colonel Cody returned he told me that he had distributed them and that actors were then reciting the poem in three music halls in London. It had made a great hit, he told me delightedly, and he was apparently as much pleased about it as over his own success. The only thing that annoyed him was that many imposters were taking the credit for my poem, claiming to have written it themselves.

"When I first met Buffalo Bill he was in his prime, between fifty and sixty years of age. He looked much younger, and was exceptionally strong and virile. Undoubtedly this was due to the outdoor life he led, and to his general sportsman's existence. He was an athlete, as well as a showman, a scout, an army officer, a pioneer and a gentleman. I can visualize him now with the soft shirt he wore, with an open collar attached to the shirt, and a loose, flowing tie. I guess about all the people, with myself as an exception who knew him then, in his prime, are dead.

"I often imagine how surprised Buffalo Bill would be if he could have known that, in years to come, a magnificent monument to his memory would be established in a town named for him—Cody, Wyoming. He was a modest man, without vanity, and such an honor would have astounded him. I have heard a great deal about Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney's bronze equestrian statue of Buffalo Bill, which is to be erected near Cody, and I certainly wish the years did not lay so heavy upon me. If I were younger, I would make the trip out there for the unveiling July 4th. Buffalo Bill and I frequently met out there at points in the Rockies during our showmanship days. Certainly he had a character which was all perfection and I know that the men and women of the theatrical profession which claimed him for a number of years, will be glad and proud that his memory is to be perpetuated in such a fitting way."

BUFFALO BILL WAS GENEROUS TO NEEDY PALS

Veteran Scout Always Had An Open Pocketbook For Unfortunates.

NEW YORK, April 19.—His great generosity to actors was an outstanding characteristic of Col Buffalo Bill Cody, according to Hugh A. D'Arcy, veteran actor, who knew the great scout as a showman. Mr. D'Archy, who is eighty-one years of age, sat in the parlor of his hotel, on West Forty-seventh street yesterday, and reminisced about the years when he used to meet Buffalo Bill in cities throughout the country, when they were both playing engagements at various houses. It was during this recital that he told about the open-handedness of the picturesque showmen, and of how he never heard of the need of his colleagues in the show business without giving generously.

The Buffalo Bill American association, of which Gen. John J. Pershing is chairman, is interested in all data concerning the pioneer scout, and is placing in its files this material which shows a new face to Buffalo Bill's brilliant and versatile character. The association will erect a handsome bronze equestrian statue of Buffalo Bill, the work of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, near Cody, Wyo. The fund will be raised by public subscription, and the statue unveiled July 4.

As Mr. D'Arcy pulled back the curtain of the years he dug up from his storehouse of memory recollections of his days of comradeship with Cody.

Real Friend to Needy.

Why, Buffalo Bill would just as willingly have given $10 to a needy actor as ten cents," said Mr. D'Arcy. "There wasn't anything small about him. He was notably generous, and a story about a pal in his profession who was temporarily in financial distress always met with a quick response. He didn't believe in red tape. However, he was never ostentatious in his charities, but gave quietly, and many people never heard about his many philanthropies of this kind.

Colonel Cody was exceedingly popular among people of the theatrical profession and, undoubtedly, this was due, in a measure, to his kind heart and open hand. But, in addition he had a magnetic personality. Personally, I believe he was the most courageous and gorgeous creature I have ever met on earth. I am afraid that I will grow verbose, and use a lot of adjectives when I speak of Colonel Cody. But he struck my fancy from the first, and the memory of him which I carry through the years is a pretty tender one. He was my ideal of manly perfection.

"Rough as he naturally was as a result of the rough and hardy outdoor life he had always led, he was not rough inside. It was only superficial. He was a gentleman through and through. His manners were excellent, almost courtly. By nature he was mild and gentle, and, along with his generosity, he was noted for his good nature. I believe these two qualities go hand in hand.

"While Buffalo Bill's appearance was picturesque, it was not studiedly so. He was just naturally endowed by nature with a physique and an appearance which attracted attention. Of course, as he was traveling with a western show, depicting the life of cowboys, he had more or less of a western make-up on the stage. But, off-stage, he affected quiet street clothes, though his hat was wide brimmed, and anyone would have known at a glance that he was a westerner.

"I first met Buffalo Bill in Louisville in 1878. He was then with a stage production, a border play, and with him were Wild Bill and Texas Jack. I was with another theatrical company, and we met as fellow showmen. After that I frequently met him in cities from coast to coast, and always he was kindly, genial, glad to resume old friendships.

I met him again in Toledo when he was managing his own company. We both stopped at the same hotel. I spoke to him at that time about the opportunity there was for him to put on a border play in England, as the craze for this type of show was then at its height over there. He said he thought he might go over in a year or two, and asked me to go with him. Not long afterwards Buffalo Bill came under the management of Nate Salsbury, a manager, and head of the Salsbury Troubadours, a farce comedy company. Nate arranged to take Buffalo Bill over to London, and they left for there with a powerful organization.

Sidelight on His Nature.

"And there is another sidelight on his kindly nature. In those olden days, in New York, there was a famous rendezvous for actors, at Fourteenth street and Fourth avenue. Here we used to gather to exchange confidences and to pass evenings which would otherwise have been dull and lonely for all of us. Buffalo Bill, Major Burke and others of his troupe used to drop in and we all got pretty chummy. Later, when Buffalo Bill and his company of thirty or forty Indians, cowboys, bandits, train robbers and other characters which made up the cast, were making a terrific hit in London, he did not forget to do a little courteous act for an old friend. I had written a poem called "The Face Upon the Floor," and it was printed in the New York Dispatch in 1887. Joe Smith, the proprietor of the actors' meeting place, bought one hundred copies of my poem and sent them over to Buffalo Bill in London.

"When Colonel Cody returned he told me that he had distributed them and that actors were then reciting the poem in three music halls in London. It had made a great hit, he told me delightedly, and he was apparently as much pleased about it as over his own success. The only thing that annoyed him was that many imposters were taking the credit for my poem, claiming to have written it themselves.

"When I first met Buffalo Bill he was in his prime, between fifty and sixty years of age. He looked much younger, and was exceptionally strong and virile. Undoubtedly this was due to the outdoor life he led, and to his general sportsman's existence. He was an athlete, as well as a showman, a scout, an army officer, a pioneer and a gentleman. I can visualize him now with the soft shirt he wore, with an open collar attached to the shirt, and a loose, flowing tie. I guess about all the people, with myself as an exception, who knew him then, in his prime, are dead.

"I often imagine how surprised Buffalo Bill would be if he could have known that, in years to come, a magnificent monument to his memory would be established in a town named for him—Cody, Wyoming. He was a modest man, without vanity, and such an honor would have astounded him. I have heard a great deal about Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney's bronze equestrian statue of Buffalo Bill, which is to be erected near Cody, and I certainly wish the years did not lay so heavy upon me. If I were younger, I would make the trip out there for the unveiling July 4th. Buffalo Bill and I frequently met out there at points in the Rockies during our showmanship days. Certainly he had a character which was all perfection and I know that the men and women of the theatrical profession which claimed him for a number of years, will be glad and proud that his memory is to be perpetuated in such a fitting way."

COTTON PRICES DROP SHARPLY

Big Planting Planned Despite Weakness, Business Reports Indicate.

Living Costs Remain About Stationary—Liberty Bond Prices Advance.

NEW YORK, April 19.—A sharp decline in the price of cotton characterized the business market this week. It is reported from the south, however, that the farmers are planning a larger area of planting despite the weakness of prices. Iron and steel mill operations are reported below those of one month ago Soft coal production keeps up at a prosperous level.

Mercantile buyers are still very cautious. Living cost figures remain about stationary.

The rate on money for call loans in New York this week ranged from 4 1-4 to 4 percent. The rate on loans for three months ranged around 4 3-4 per cent.

Business failures in the United States this week totalled 383 compared with 386 last week. Most of them were in southern states.

The amount of the cotton crop brought into sight this week was 123,680 bales, compared with 123,367 bales last week. The total exports for the week were 76,096 bales compared with 60,329 last week. The visible supply of United States cotton was 2,018,499 bales compared with 2,123,996 bales last week.

Liberty Bonds Advance.

Virtually all issues of Liberty bonds advanced in price this week. New bonds issued totalled more than $38,000,000.

Bank clearings throughout the United States this week were estimated at $8,433,857,496 compared with $7,483,103,233 last week.

The average price of twenty representative industrial shares on the New York stock exchange was 92.12 compared with 91.72 last week. The average price of twenty representative railway shares was 81.95 compared with 81.68 last week

The visible supply of United States wheat decreased 1,984,000 bushels this week. Official figures were not available, but it was anticipated that the Canadian visible supply would show an unusually large decline. The visible supply of United States corn decreased 1,857,000 bushels. Offering of corn from farmers was light.

North Western In Report Shows New Industries In 1923

During the year 1923 there were 669 new industry locations arranged for with the Chicago and North Western railway system in providing direct track service as a part in the operation of these business establishments. The construction of private tracks was required by 268 of these new industries to facilitate the handling of their traffic. In addition to this many new commercial concerns have located at points on this railway system who have adapted their transportation needs to the current facilities, and not requirng special action for track or lease of railroad property.

These industries are located at points over the several railway operating divisions in the nine states in which the North Western line is located.

The variety of commodity production and the operation of these new concerns is favored at their new location by the use of many of the natural resources of the territory, which includes the iron ore ranges, the forests of various kinds of timber, great water power facilities, coal fields and the surrounding agricultural districts furnishing a vast quantity of the foodstuffs of the nation. There is also a growing marketing and distributing area in this territory that has encouraged the location of wholesaling and jobbing houses.

It is anticipated that the year 1924 will show continued growth of industry with a good percentage of increase in this northwestern territory, where the transportation service of the North Western line is provided in adequate measure with the most modern equipment.

The Oyster Case

Thirty years ago Granville R. Oyster was a locomotive engineer employed by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Compnay. On July 29, 1894, he was drawing the regular passenger train from McCook to Hastings, ran into an open switch on which the light had gone out, the engine was overturned and Oyster received injuries from which he died July 31.

Margaret E. Oyster, his widow, was appointed administratrix in Phelps County, and commenced an action against the Burlington, on behalf of his six minor children, for damages sustained by them because of their father's death She did not sue in her own behalf as widow. A verdict for $5,000 (which was then the limit of value for a human life) was rendered by the jury.

This case, C. B. & Q. v. Oyster (58 Neb. 1) came to our Supreme Court on error, and was affirmed. The opinion by Judge Norval covers questions of damages for death by wrongful act, pleading, review, master and servant, railroad instruction, jurors, etc.; but holds the judgment of the District Court good.

Afterward Margaret E. Oyster, in her own behalf, commenced an action in District Court of Lancaster County against the Burlington Relief Department of the Burlington road, claiming damages for her husband"s death by reason of a certain certificate issued by the relief department and payable to her in event of his death:

This was tried without a jury to Judge Frost, who held that because of certain conditions in the benefit certificate, and the full $5,000 judgment recovered in the Oyster case in Phelps County, no recovery could be had, and he found for the defendant. And again on error the Supreme Court was appealed to.

Commissioner Oldham wrote the opinion in Oyster v. Relief Department, 65 Neb. 759, which affirmed Judge Frost's judgment; and Wilbur F. Bryant, then deputy reporter of the Supreme Court, appended a note concerning Lord Campbell's Act, which we learned two weeks ago is the basis of our present General Sections 1382 and 1383.

The widow, having sued on behalf of the minor children, and having recovered the full limit of $5,000, was entitled to her distributive share of that sum; but she could not recover additional damages for herself on the benefit certificate, because it specified that nothing would be paid if an action should be commenced for damages.

COTTON PRICES DROP SHARPLY

Big Planting Planned Despite Weakness, Business Reports Indicate.

Living Costs Remain About Stationary—Liberty Bond Prices Advance.

NEW YORK, April 19.—A sharp decline in the price of cotton characterized the business market this week. It is reported from the south, however, that the farmers are planning a larger area of planting despite the weakness of prices. Iron and steel mill operations are reported below those of one month ago. Soft coal production keeps up at a prosperous level.

Mercantile buyers are still very cautious. Living cost figures remain about stationary.

The rate on money for call loans in New York this week ranged from 4 1-4 to 4 percent. The rate on loans for three months ranged around 4 3-4 per cent.

Business failures in the United States this week totalled 382 compared with 386 last week. Most of them were in southern states.

The amount of the cotton crop brought into sight this week was 123,680 bales, compared with 123,367 bales last week. The total exports for the week were 76,096 bales compared with 60,329 last week. The visible supply of United States cotton was 2,018,499 bales compared with 2,123,996 bales last week.

Liberty Bonds Advance.

Virtually all issues of Liberty bonds advanced in price this week. New bonds issued totalled more than $38,000,000.

Bank clearings throughout the United States this week were estimated at $8,433,857,496 compared with $7,483,108,233 last week.

The average price of twenty representative industrial shares on the New York stock exchange was 92.12 compared with 91.72 last week. The average price &of twenty representative railway shares was 81.95 compared with 81.68 last week.

The visible supply of United States wheat decreased 1,984,000 bushels this week. Official figures were not available, but it was anticipated that the Canadian visible supply would show an unusually large decline. The visible supply of United States corn decreased 1,857,000 bushels. Offering of corn from farmers was light.

Lodge Notes

The United Spanish War Veterans auxiliary met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. W. Fritz, 1748 South street. Mrs. O. W. Meier was the assisting hostess. Plans were made for a bazaar, for Memorial day, and for the Spanish War memorial in Antelope park. Committees were appointed for convention which is to be held here in June. Mrs. A. S. Eager, president of the auxiliary kensington, read a paper on the first Memorial day and Mrs. James Baker read another on the first Spanish war memorial day. Mrs. Florence White, past department president, was present for the first time this year. Mrs. White has been very ill. Refreshments were served.

Mistletoe lodge No. 104, Degree of Honor, meets Wednesday at 8 o'clock at Walsh hall.

F. A. U. kensington will meet Wednesday with Mrs. Allie Reynolds at the home of Mrs. J. D. Slye, 1448 P street.

North Western In Report Shows New Industries In 1923

During the year 1923 there were 669 new industry locations arranged for with the Chicago and North Western railway system in providing direct track service as a part in the operation of these business establishments. The construction of private tracks was required by 268 of these new industries to facilitate the handling of their traffic. In addition to this many new commercial concerns have located at points on this railway system who have adapted their transportation needs to the current facilities, and not requirng special action for track or lease of railroad property.

These industries are located at points over the several railway operating divisions in the nine states in which the North Western line is located.

The variety of commodity production and the operation of these new concerns is favored at their new location by the use of many of the natural resources of the territory, which includes the iron ore ranges, the forests of various kinds of timber, great water power facilities, coal fields and the surrounding agricultural districts furnishing a vast quantity of the foodstuffs of the nation. There is also a growing marketing and distributing area in this territory that has encouraged the location of wholesaling and jobbing houses.

It is anticipated that the year 1924 will show continued growth of industry with a good percentage of increase in this northwestern territory, where the transportation service of the North Western line is provided in adequate measure with the most modern equipment.

Lodge Notes

Esther kensington met at the home of Mrs. S. L. Chaplin, 407 South Twenty-fifth street, Wednesday afternoon. After the business meeting, Mrs. L. A. Hones of Rochester, N. Y., gave two vocal solos, and the hostess, assisted by her daughter, served a luncheon. The ladies will give a benefit dance and carnival, April 29, at V. F. W. hall, the proceeds to go toward furnishing a room in the new Lincoln General hospital.

Walhalla lodge No. 38, Sons of Herman, will give a dancing party for members and friends Thursday evening at 8:30 o'clock at Plattdeutsche hall, Ninth and M street.

COMMUNITY CHEST DAY IN CHURCHES

Council Chooses Sunday Following Easter For Combined Drive.

Sunday, April 27, has been designated as community chest Sunday in Lincoln churches, in accordance with a suggestion made by the Lincoln Council of churches.

Attention of Sunday school workers was called by the council to the program of the Lancaster county Sunday school convention to be held at College View May 1 and 2. Three of the speakers, Dr. J. Shrieve Durham, Miss Katherine Webb and Rev. Plank, have come from outside the county.

The state convention will be held next month at Nebraska City. Miss Margaret Slattery and Hugh McGill will be heard by teachers at that time, and a model vacation school will be conducted.

Thirteen vacation schools will be held here this summer. They represent thirty churches, and a staff of sixty teachers and assistants, all of whom have not yet been selected. The Monday evening story telling class at the Y. W. C. A. has been well attended, and will be continued through May. The time for the workers' institute will soon be settled.

Spanish War Vets to Hold Muster Services

Public muster services to commemorate the twenty-sixth anniversary of the call to colors will be held at 2:30 p. m. Easter by the veterans at the O street entrance of Antelope park.

The Y M. C. A. recently elected officers. Charles Madden '27, Pawnee City, was elected president; Roy Dahlstrom '27, Peru, vice president; Harland Taylor '26, Shubert, secretary; and Roy Chamberlain '27, treasurer.

GIRL MAKES PLEA FOR FORGIVENESS

Dorothy Miller La Roue Sends Letter To Farmer Nedrow.

Wants to Marry Man Who Gave Her Money and Whose Checks She Raised.

OMAHA, April 19.—Tired of jail, and complaining that her back hurt her from lying on the hard cot in her cell, Dorothy Miller La Roue, deserted and plundered bride of a day, Saturday sent a written appeal to her first love, Art Nedrow, Stella, Neb., farmer, whose checks she raised in order to finance her marriage to Gene LaRoue.

"I know Art will forgive me if I can get him near enough to talk to him," the girl said. "Personal contact is all that is needed."

Five long-distance telephone calls to Nedrow on his farm brought no answer, she said. So she decided on a letter. Efforts to get a personal messenger to carry the letter to Nedrow failed, so she decided to mail it."

Here's the letter:

"Art: I know how foolish it is to ask you to forgive me but you have always been so good and kind that I am appealing to your great love for me, just to give me one more chance. I swear I will be a faithful wife, and if your love is strong you will not send me to the pen for three years. Oh, darling, come and see me for I am heartbroken! I made a big mistake and I am sorry Come and see me. Just to have your arms around me would be a difference. If you can give me one more chance I will yet be your wife. Lovingly,

DOT.

"I am in jail."

Meanwhile, Nedrow, whom the girl styles her "sugar pap," said today he had "absolutely nothing to say." He admitted, however, that he did feel "pretty bad" about it all, and had not made up his mind just what to do about it.

CLAY CENTER OUT FOR FOURTH TITLE

Coach Ward Haylett's Athletes Training in Effort to Win Another Cup.

(Special to The Star.)

CLAY CENTER, Neb., April 19.—Clay Center high school track men are working hard these days in an effort to chalk up a fourth consecutive county track championship. The locals have won the county meet the past three years and each time have copped the banner by a large score. During the three years, Clay Center has twice placed second in group one of the state meet. Dewitt won by a margin of four points in 1921 while in 1923 Callaway nosed out with a two-point margin by defeating Clay Center in the relay. Clay Center made a good showing in group two in the 1922 meet.

Lettermen in the Clay Center camp this season are Captain Vernon Burt, hurdles, high jump, broad jump; Clayton Wolfe, 220-yard, 440-yard; Gene Sanderson, 100-yard, 220-yard, shot put, broad jump; O. Walker, distances; Norris Bonner, mile; John Newlen, pole vault, hurdles New men showing up well are Everett Ablott, 440-yard, 880-yard; Ray Ransom, jumps.

The Clay Center track schedule follows:

April 25—Nebraska Wesleyan invitation meet at University Place. (Tentative.)

April 29—Dual meet with Geneva.

May 3—Hastings college invitation meet at Hastings.

May 10—State interscholastic meet at Lincoln.

May 16—Clay County meet at Clay Center.

Farrell Wins In Inter-Class Meet At Harvard High

(Special to The Star.)

HARVARD, Neb., April 19.—Howard Farrall, a senior and 1923 football captain as well as basketball center, won 38 of the 131 points made in the two-day inter-class track meet at Harvard, completed last night. Farrall's classmen won the meet with a total of 87 points. Farrall placed in eleven of the twelve events—not competing in the pole vault. He won first in the 220-yard dash, broad jump, 880-yard run, mile run; second in the discus throw, 440-yard dash, low hurdles, shot put; third in the high hurdles, 100-yard dash, and the high jump. Harold Brennomen, a junior, followed Farrall with 26 points of his class total of 37—which placed the juniors second.

Coach Furman, who had charge of the meet, expressed satisfaction, and said that he considered good records made in view of the fact that the training period has been short.

Adams Threatened With Serious Fire

ADAMS, Neb., April 19.—Fire which started in a row of frame building a block off Main street here threatened the business section of the town for a while, on account of a strong wind blowing and fanning the flames into a roaring furnace. The fire was finally controlled by the city chemical fire engine and a bucket brigade by many citizens, and the damage amounted to about $500, confined to storage and empty buildings. The blaze was said to have been caused by the wind blowing, burning embers from a rubbish pile across to the empty buildings.

Superior - Nelson Plan Relay Race For Twelve Miles

(Special to The Star.)

SUPERIOR, Neb., April 19—Superior high school will stage a rather unique relay event May 16.

A course has been laid out from Nelson to Superior, twelve miles in length. Each school in the county has been invited to enter a team of six men, two of the schools to unite into a team of twelve men, each man to run a mile.

The school whose six winners make the best time will receive a silver trophy cup and the individual runner making the best time will receive a gold medal.

This is a rather unusual event and it is planned to include a large territory next year, according to A. L. Keester, athletic director of the Superior schools. The relay this year will be held in connection with the junior high school track and field meet at Superior.

SEWARD PIONEER IS BEING SOUGHT

Aged and Wealthy Man Disappears From Home Friday Evening.

(Special to The Star.)

SEWARD, Neb., April 19.—Officers are today searching for the whereabouts of Henry P Sholl, 83, a pioneer in this county, who mysteriously disappeared from town sometime Friday night. Mr. Sholl has for some time been subject to the guardianship of his son, Louis Sholl, a farmer near Milford.

Some months ago, the elder Sholl employed attorneys in an effort to have the guardianship lifted, and the case has been warmly contested in the Seward county courts but void of success to the contestants.

Henry Sholl is reputed to be worth $100,000 He is quite feeble and much bent with age. It is thought that upon his departure from here he headed for Lincoln, and is being searched for in that direction. He once lived in College View, and among his assets is a small propert there. He came from Philadelphia to Seward about forty years ago and settled on a homestead in the southwestern part of the county, where he made his money farming.

Despondency Over Ill Health Cause Of Man's Suicide

YOUTH WHO SHOT FATHER PAROLED

Glen West to Live in Home of His Uncle On Farm Near Milford.

(Special to The Star.)

SEWARD, Neb., April 19.—Glen West, the thirteen year old boy who shot his father, Guy West, at the family home near Milford on March 26, has been paroled by County Judge Bek to Chris Stahly, wealthy farmer who has a fine home near Milford. Mr. Stahly is the husband of the sister of Guy West.

Since the shooting Glen has been staying at the home of his grandfather in Seward. His father has wanted him to return to the family home, but he has steadfastly refused to do so, asserting that he had been abused and that he was afraid that he would be again beaten, as he declared he had been in the past

When the case came on for hearing no one had come forward to take the boy upon parole and Judge Bek was about to order him committed to the state industrial school for boys at Kearney, there seeming to be no alternative, in view of the fact that he had refused to live in his father's home. It was then that the uncle appeared and offered to take the lad and he was given into his charge, subject to the orders of the court.

Guy West was shot above the eye in the early evening of March 26 as he sat reading in his home, the bullet from a small calibre rifle having been fired through the window. The lad was taken into custody within a short time and admitted that he had done the shooting. He said that his father had severely beaten him a couple of days previously and that he had then left home. Returning on the evening of the shooting he procured his rifle from the garage and taking deliberate aim, fired at his father.

It was thought at first that the injured man might lose his eye, but there is no fear of such result at this time.

GOLDEN WEDDING OF UTICA COUPLE

Judge and Mrs. Elbert Leavens Married For Fifty Years.

(Special to The Star.)

SEWARD, April 19.—At their home in Utica Easter Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Alebert Leavens celebrate the golden anniversary of their marriage. The festivities begin at 1:30 with a reception which will continue throughout the afternoon and as late in the evening as friends responding to a general invitation see fit to come. Several hundred people are expected to pay their respects during the day and evening. Suitabel refreshments will be served during the entire reception.

Albert Leavens and Margaret Skinner were married at Belle Plaine, Ia., April 20, 1874. They came to Seward county thirty-four years ago, and have resided at Seward, Beaver Crossing and Utica. In his early life Mr. Leavens was a blacksmith, and followed that calling for a livelihood for several years. While working at his trade he pursued the study of law at spare time from his trade, but finally he entered the office of a prominent attorney at Belle Plaine—J. J. Mosnat—and was later admitted to practice in the district and circuit courts of the Hawkeye state, and the same legal privileges were granted him when he became a resident of Nebraska.

Judge Leavens is a member of the I. O. O. F., the M. W. A., while Mrs. Leavens belongs to the O. E. S., Woman's club and W. C. T. U. Both are members of the Presbyterian church. Both Mr. and Mrs. Leavens plead guilty to being liberal democrats, and believe that their principles, if honestly carried out, would be best for all the people. Both were intensely loyal to the government during the war, and during that struggle Mrs. Leavens made and presented to the Red Cross a quilt which was sold at auction for the benefit of the organization which brought $114. They glory, too, in the fact that they had two grandsons who served in France in the World war, both enlisting at the age of eighteen years

Judge Leavens has served three terms as county judge of Seward county, one term as county attorney, and is now the clerk of Utica village. He has also filled numerous other minor offices, and has always made it a rule to let the office seek the man instead of the man seeking the office.

Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Leavens, only one of whom is now living, Mrs. J. M. Rutledge, of Utica. There are seven grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

CRETE NOTES.

CRETE, Neb., April 19.—Crete Music club met with Mrs. Charles V. Kettering, the program given being from a number of German composers. Mrs. Kettering, Miss Mildred Potter and Prof. C. V. Kettering presented the program of musical numbers and Mrs P. C. Swift a paper on the life of Schuman.

Boys' week will be observed in Crete this year, beginning April 27. It was also observed last year.

Miss Helen Jelinek, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jelinek of Crete, was married to Bloyce Bonebright. Upon the graduation of the groom from the state university they will make their homes at Estes Park, Col.

Twin daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. William Muff on April 16. This makes a family of twelve children and is the second pair of twins. All of the children are healthy and are a happy bunch.

Negotiations are now well under way for the taking over by the city of Riverside cemetery. The Crete Community club is behind the move, and it is very likely a cemetery association will be formed. Theodore Haden, the present owner and manager, is not able, by reason of the condition of his health, to carry on the work any longer and he is very anxious to dispose of the cemetery.

Passion week service have been held in the Crete M. E church during the past week for the first time in its history Rev. A. R. Shellenbarger of Cotner university preached the sermon Monday, Rev J. H. Clemmons of Lincoln Tuesday, Rev. J R. Gettys, superintendent of the Beatrice district, Wednesday, Rev. E. J. T. Connelly of Nebraska Wesleyan university Tuesday and Rev. C. M. Shepherd of Lincoln Friday. Easter morning a sunrise meeting is to be held at 6 o'clock, the address being by Prof. J. W. Blair of Doane college, on "The Message of the Empty Tomb."

PLAN TO LOCATE ALL ILLITERATES

Organization Is Effected at First Meeting of Bryan's Commission.

The illiteracy commission recently appointed by Governor Bryan met in Lincoln Friday evening to effect an organiation. Tentative plans were made for a survey of the state with the object of locating the illiterates, these plans to be confirmed at the next meeting of the commission, May 26. The governor has been invited to hear the plans at this meeting.

The 1920 census found 13,784 illiterates in Nebraska, 1,908 in Lincoln and more than 4,000 in Omaha, according to Mrs. Paul Perryman of Ord, chairman of the commission. The commission defines an illiterate, one who cannot read or write in any language, and intends to locate all in the state, she said Saturday.

Other members of the commission are Miss E. Ruth Pyrtle, principal of the McKinley school, who is secretary of the commission Supt. M. C. Lefler, Charles Taylor, state commander of the American Legion; J. H. Beeridge, superintendent of the Omaha schools; Dr. Jennie Califas, member of the Omaha board of education; E. L. Rouse, superintendent of the Scottsbluffs school, and Mrs. P. T. McGerr of Lincoln.

WHEELER READY FOR HIS HEARING

Montana Senator Gives Bond For Appearance At Great Falls May 5.

WASHINGTON, April, 19.—United States senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, chief prosecutor of the Daugherty investigation, appeared before the federal commissioner here today and gave his personal bond of $1,000 to appear for trial at Great Falls, Mont., on May 5, on his indictment for alleged illegal receipt of a retaining fee as a senator.

Wheeler was not arrested, the commissioner showing him every consideration. He was notified early today that a warrant for his arrest had arrived from Montana and he promptly presented himself to the commissioner to arrange bond.

The ceremony was very brief. Wheeler, accompanied by his secretary and William B. Colver, former federal trade commissioner, went from the capitol to the commissioner's office and offered his personal bond, which was accepted.

Colver signed the bond as surety

Investigation of Wheeler's charge that the indictment was a "frame-up" in which the republican national committee had a part, will be resumed by the Borah committee Monday with several witnesses from Montana on the stand.

DENY FRAUD IN TEAPOT LEASE

Sinclair's Attorneys File Answer to Suit Of United States Government.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., April 19. — Denying that anything fraudulent or illegal marked the leasing of the Teapot Dome naval reserve to Harry F. Sinclair, attorneys for the Mammoth Oil company today filed answer to the government's suit for cancellation of the lease.

The answer denies any knowledge of a rtansfer of jurisdiction over the reserve from the navy department to the department of the interior.

If such transfer was made, the answer alleges, the executive order decreeing it was neither illegal nor invalid.

All allegations of fact contained in the government's petition in equity are answered at great length and in minute detail.

Regarding charges that Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, made false representations in connection with the transfer of authority, the answer stated neither the company nor any person connected with it had knowledge of them.

It further denies knowledge of any attempts by Fall to secure any "advantage, profit or benefit for himself or for Harry F. Sinclair or for anyone else" or of his doing anything" not in the interests of and for the United States."

Negotiations preliminary to granting of the lease, it is asserted were conducted on behalf of the government by "Edwin Denby, secretary of the navy, who made use of officers of the navy, of Secretary Fall and of the bureaus and personnel of the interior department," that Denby proceeded lawfully and signed the lease in full exercise of the discretion invested in him by law, and that there was no secrecy about the negotiations.

GIRL MAKES PLEA FOR FORGIVENESS

Dorothy Miller La Roue Sends Letter To Farmer Nedrow.

OMAHA, April 19.—Tired of jail, and complaining that her back hurt her from lying on the hard cot in her cell, Dorothy Miller La Roue, deserted and plundered bride of a day, Saturday sent a written appeal to her first love, Art Nedrow, Stella, Neb., farmer, whose checks she raised in order to finance her marriage to Gene LaRoue.

"I know Art will forgive me if I can get him near enough to talk to him," the girl said. "Personal contact is all that is needed."

Five long-distance telephone calls to Nedrow on his farm brought no answer, she said. So she decided on a letter. Efforts to get a personal messenger to carry the letter to Nedrow failed, so she decided to mail it."

Here's the letter:

"Art: I know how foolish it is to ask you to forgive me but you have always been so good and kind that I am appealing to your great love for me, just to give me one more chance. I swear I will be a faithful wife, and if your love is strong you will not send me to the pen for three years. Oh, darling, come and see me for I am heartbroken! I made a big mistake and I am sorry Come and see me. Just to have your arms around me would be a difference. If you can give me one more chance I will yet be your wife. Lovingly,

DOT.

"I am in jail."

Meanwhile, Nedrow, whom the girl styles her "sugar pap," said today he had "absolutely nothing to say," He admitted, however, that he did feel "pretty bad" about it all, and had not made up his mind just what to do about it.

CLAY CENTER OUT FOR FOURTH TITLE

Coach Ward Haylett's Athletes Training in Effort to Win Another Cup.

(Special to The Star.)

CLAY CENTER, Neb., April 19.—Clay Center high school track men are working hard these days in an effort to chalk up a fourth consecutive county track championship. The locals have won the county meet the past three years and each time have copped the banner by a large score.

During the three years, Clay Center has twice placed second in group one of the state meet. Dewitt won by a margin of four points in 1921 while in 1923 Callaway nosed out with a two-point margin by defeating Clay Center in the relay. Clay Center made a good showing in group two in the 1922 meet.

Lettermen in the Clay Center camp this season are Captain Vernon Burt, hurdles, high jump, broad jump; Clayton Wolfe, 220-yard, 440-yard; Gene Sanderson, 100-yard, 220-yard, shot put, broad jump; O. Walker, distances; Norris Bonner, mile; John Newlen, pole vault, hurdles. New men showing up well are Everett Ablott, 440-yard, 880-yard; Ray Ransom, jumps.

The Clay Center track schedule follows:

April 25—Nebraska Wesleyan invitation meet at University Place. (Tentative.)

April 29—Dual meet with Geneva.

May 3—Hastings college invitation meet at Hastings.

May 10—State interscholastic meet at Lincoln.

May 16—Clay County meet at Clay Center.

Farrell Wins In Inter-Class Meet At Harvard High

(Special to The Star.)

HARVARD, Neb., April 19.—Howard Farrall, a senior and 1923 football captain as well as basketball center, won 38 of the 134 points made in the two-day inter-class track meet at Harvard, completed last night. Farrall's classmen won the meet with a total of 87 points. Farrall placed in eleven of the twelve events—not competing in the pole vault. He won first in the 220-yard dash, broad jump, 880-yard run, mile run; second in the discus throw, 440-yard dash, low hurdles, shot put; third in the high hurdles, 100-yard dash, and the high jump. Harold Brennomen, a junior, followed Farrall with 26 points of his class total of 37—which placed the juniors second.

Coach Furman, who had charge of the meet, expressed satisfaction, and said that he considered good records made in view of the fact that the training period has been short.

Adams Threatened With Serious Fire

ADAMS, Neb., April 19.—Fire which started in a row of frame building a block off Main street here threatened the business section of the town for a while, on account of a strong wind blowing and fanning the flames into a roaring furnace. The fire was finally controlled by the city chemical fire engine and a bucket brigade by many citizens, and the damage amounted to about $500, confined to storage and empty buildings. The blaze was said to have been caused by the wind blowing, burning embers from a rubbish pile across to the empty buildings.

Superior - Nelson Plan Relay Race For Twelve Miles

(Special to The Star.)

SUPERIOR, Neb., April 19—Superior high school will stage a rather unique relay event May 16.

A course has been laid out from Nelson to Superiro, twelve miles in length. Each school in the county has been invited to enter a team of six men, two of the schools to unite into a team of twelve men, each man to run a mile.

The school whose six winners make the best time will receive a silver trophy cup and the individual runner making the best time will receive a gold medal.

This is a rather unusual event and it is planned to include a large territory next year, according to A. L. Keester, athletic director of the Superior schools. The relay this year will be held in connection with the junior high school track and field meet at Superior.

SEWARD PIONEER IS BEING SOUGHT

Aged and Wealthy Man Disappears From Home Friday Evening.

(Special to The Star.)

SEWARD, Neb., April 19.—Officers are today searching for the whereabouts of Henry P. Sholl, 83, a pioneer in this county, who mysteriously disappeared from town sometime Friday night. Mr. Sholl has for some time been subject to the guardianship of his son, Louis Sholl, a farmer near Milford.

Some months ago, the elder Sholl employed attorneys in an effort to have the guardianship lifted, and the case has been warmly contested in the Seward county courts but void of success to the contestants.

Henry Sholl is reputed to be worth $100,000 He is quite feeble and much bent with age. It is thought that upon his departure from here he headed for Lincoln, and is being searched for in that direction. He once lived in College View, and among his assets is a small propert there. He came from Philadelphia to Seward about forty years ago and settled on a homestead in the southwestern part of the county, where he made his money farming.

CRETE NOTES.

CRETE, Neb., April 19.—Crete Music club met with Mrs. Charles V. Kettering, the program given being from a number of German composers. Mrs. Kettering, Miss Mildred Potter and Prof. C. V. Kettering presented the program of musical numbers and Mrs P. C. Swift a paper on the life of Schuman.

Boys' week will be observed in Crete this year, beginning April 27. It was also observed last year.

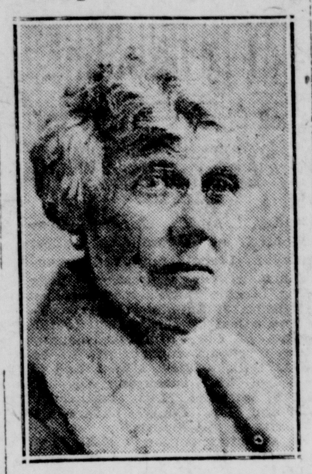
Miss Helen Jelinek, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jelinek of Crete, was married to Bloyce Bonebright. Upon the graduation of the groom from the state university they will make their homes at Estes Park, Col.

Twin daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. William Muff on April 16. This makes a family of twelve children and is the second pair of twins. All of the children are healthy and are a happy bunch.

Negotiations are now well under way for the taking over by the city of Riverside cemetery. The Crete Community club is behind the move, and it is very likely a cemetery association will be formed. Theodore Haden, the present owner and manager, is not able, by reason of the condition of his health, to carry on the work any longer and he is very anxious to dispose of the cemetery.

Passion week service have been held in the Crete M. E. church during the past week for the first time in its history Rev. A. R. Shellenbarger of Cotner university preached the sermon Monday, Rev J. H. Clemmons of Lincoln Tuesday, Rev. J R. Gettys, superintendent of the Beatrice district, Wednesday, Rev. E. J. T. Connelly of Nebraska Wesleyan university Tuesday and Rev. C. M. Shepherd of Lincoln Friday. Easter morning a sunrise meeting is to be held at 6 o'clock, the address being by Prof. J. W. Blair of Doane college, on "The Message of the Empty Tomb."

Delphian Director



Mrs. J. L. Hughes, divisional director of the National Delphian society. Mrs. Hughes has been located in Lincoln for several months and as a result many Delphian chapters are now busy with the study of Ancient Egypt. She, with her asistants, has secured two hundred and fifty members.

PLAN TO LOCATE ALL ILLITERATES

Organization Is Effected at First Meeting of Bryan's Commission.

The illiteracy commission recently appointed by Governor Bryan met in Lincoln Friday evening to effect an organiation. Tentative plans were made for a survey of the state with the object of locating the illiterates, these plans to be confirmed at the next meeting of the commission, May 26. The governor has been invited to hear the plans at this meeting.

The 1920 census found 13,784 illiterates in Nebraska, 1,908 in Lincoln and more than 4,000 in Omaha, according to Mrs. Paul Perryman of Ord, chairman of the commission. The commission defines an illiterate, one who cannot read or write in any language, and intends to locate all in the state, she said Saturday.

Other members of the commission are Miss E. Ruth Pyrtle, principal of the McKinley school, who is secretary of the commission Supt. M. C. Lefler, Charles Taylor, state commander of the American Legion; J. H. Beeridge, superintendent of the Omaha schools; Dr. Jennie Callfas, member of the Omaha board of education; E. L. Rouse, superintendent of the Scottsbluffs school, and Mrs. P. T. McGerr of Lincoln.

WHEELER READY FOR HIS HEARING

Montana Senator Gives Bond For Appearance At Great Falls May 5.

WASHINGTON, April, 19.—United States senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, chief prosecutor of the Daugherty investigation, appeared before the federal commissioner here today and gave his personal bond of $1,000 to appear for trial at Great Falls, Mont., on May 5, on his indictment for alleged illegal receipt of a retaining fee as a senator.

Wheeler was not arrested, the commissioner showing him every consideration. He was notified early today that a warrant for his arrest had arrived from Montana and he promptly presented himself to the commissioner to arrange bond.

The ceremony was very brief. Wheeler, accompanied by his secretary and William B. Colver, former federal trade commissioner, went from the capitol to the commissioner's office and offered his personal bond, which was accepted.

Colver signed the bond as surety.

Investigation of Wheeler's charge that the indictment was a "frame-up" in which the republican national committee had a part, will be resumed by the Borah committee Monday with several witnesses from Montana on the stand.

DENY FRAUD IN TEAPOT LEASE

Sinclair's Attorneys File Answer to Suit Of United States Government.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., April 19. — Denying that anything fraudulent or illegal marked the leasing of the Teapot Dome naval reserve to Harry F. Sinclair, attorneys for the Mammoth Oil company today filed answer to the government's suit for cancellation of the lease.

The answer denies any knowledge of a rtansfer of jurisdiction over the reserve from the navy department to the department of the interior.

If such transfer was made, the answer alleges, the executive order decreeing it was neither illegal nor invalid.

All allegations of fact contained in the government's petition in equity are answered at great length and in minute detail.

Regarding charges that Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, made false representations in connection with the transfer of authority, the answer stated neither the company nor any person connected with it had knowledge of them.

It further denies knowledge of any attempts by Fall to secure any "advantage, profit or benefit for himself or for Harry F. Sinclair or for anyone else" or of his doing anything" not in the interests of and for the United States."

Negotiations preliminary to granting of the lease, it is asserted were conducted on behalf of the government by "Edwin Denby, secretary of the navy, who made use of officers of the navy, of Secretary Fall and of the bureaus and personnel of the interior department," that Denby proceeded lawfully and signed the lease in full exercise of the discretion invested in him by law, and that there was no secrecy about the negotiations.

Walton League to Hold Convention

NORFOLK, Neb., April 19.—The first convention of the Izaak Walton league of America, Nebraska division, will be held in Norfolk on May 12, according to announcement made here today.

President Cobbey leaves for Indianapolis Thursday to attend the national meeting of the board of education of the Disciples of Christ.

Many Visit Auto Park.—The Lincoln automobile club park at Satillo is proving to be very popular this year. Over 400 visited the park last Sunday. The grounds have been cleaned and the caretaker is being kept busy. A new bridge is being constructed on the road to the club park between Fourteenth and Twenty-seventh street.

Two Bikes Stolen.—Jack Moore, 3417 Holdrege street and Floyd Wampler, 1215 P street, each reported to police Saturday the theft of a bicycle.

Extinguish Blaze.—Firemen Saturday extinguished a blaze in a rubbish receiver back of the Orpheum theatre. The origin of the blaze is not known. The damage was slight.

Will Plan Park.—The College View brotherhood will meet Monday evening at the Union church for a supper at 7 o'clock. Following the supper there will be a short program consisting of talks and music. Dr. Benjamin F. Bailey will speak. The purpose of the meeting is for futhering plans for the opening of a park near College View.

Reports Collision—Harry Tavlinsky, 1203 North Seventh street, reported to police Saturday evening that he had been struck while riding a bicycle by an automobile driven by O. S. Copeland. Copeland also made a report to police, and said the auto did not strike Tavlinsky. Tavlinsky was not injured, the report stated. The collision occurred at Thirteenth and P streets.

Atlas Club Elects.—The Atlas club, composed of graduates of the Palmer school of, chiropractic, met at a luncheon Tuesday and completed their organization by the election of officers. Dr. Jane B. Ringer was chosen president, and Dr. V. O. Rankin, secretary-treasurer. Following the business session, Dr. S. L. Ashworth gave a talk on "The Future of Chiropractic in America."

No Supreme Court Arbor Day.—The state supreme court calendar for this week's sittings has been left blank on Tuesday, which is Arbor day and will be observed at the capitol as a legal holiday. Instead, the judges will probably go into consultation on that day and consider their decisions in pending cases. Judge W. H. Thompson of Grand Island, the newly appointed member of the court, will take his seat Monday, and the bench will have a complete representation for the first time in more than a year.

Bank Suit in High Court.—Cherry county and the state of Nebraska have appealed to the state supreme court from a judgment obtained in the district court of Cherry county by the Frist National bank of Valentine, whereby it was allowed to deduct from its capital stock assessment the sum of $5,850 represented by a piece of land which it owns in South Dakota and which is taxed there. The suit is a test case which will determine the right of banks generally to offset their tax assessments in Nebraska with property owned elsewhere.

Road Boosters Meet.—C. H Roper, president of the Detroit-Lincoln-Denver highway association, and R. O. Green, division engineer of the state highway department, have returned from a road boosters meeting held at Gretna Friday night The object of the meeting was to secure federal aid for the road that now runs four miles north of Gretna, which meets with the paving that Douglas county is extending to Sarpy county. The county commissioners gave assurance that the roads would be kept in first class condition during the summer. A standing vote on the two cent gasoline tax showed that those at the meeting were in favor of the gasoline tax for Nebraska.

Deaths

Word was received Saturday by Otto Studts, 115 G street, University Place, of the death of his father, Peter Studts a Hyde Park, Calif. He was formerly a resident of Lincoln

Funeral services for Katherine Horch will be held at 1:30 p m., Sunday at the home, 812 Charleston street and at 2 p. m., at the Salem Congregational church, Ninth and Charleston streets. Rev. Jacog Wagner will officiate. Interment will be made in Wyuka cemetery.

The body of George Towle is being held at Roberts' chapel, pending the arrival of a daughter from Los Angeles. The funeral will probably be held Thursday.

B. J. Morey, undertaker.—Adv.

Coming Events

Obituary

Allan Duane Watts.

Funeral services for Allan D. Watts were held at the grave April 14, 1924. Rev. Ray E. Hunt officiated, and paid a beautiful tribute to one who was a faithful member of the First Christian Sunday school. To know the child's sunny disposition, said Rev. Hunt, is to love him. Annette Abbott sang "When He Cometh to Make Up His Jewels."

Allan entered the McKinley school kindergarten, and at the time of his death was in the 5B. He was a fine student, always ready and willing to help in any plans or work attempted. He took a prominent part in all of the school activities, and was a member of the orchestra and student council.

The short journey of Allan's life was marked with deeds of helpfulness, kindness and cheer. He scattered sunshine wherever he went. Relatives and friends sent flowers to be placed on the little casket. On his face was an expression in keeping with his pure and spotless life.

The parents mourn but not without hope. Their hearts cannot be comforted because the angel of their home is missing, but through this gloom there will come a bright beam of sunshine

There is always some song to sing, my friends,
Always some song that has not been sung,
A song that the broken hearts may hear,
From the long lost hopes they tread among.

—CONTRIBUTED.

Marion Lucile Kirby.

Marion Lucile Kirby was born at Beaver Crossing, Neb., August 23, 1916 and departed this life April 11, 1924, age 7 years, 8 months and 28 days.

From Beaver Crossing, Marion removed with her parents to Grand Island where they resided one year and from there came to Lincoln where they have since made their home.

After a few days severe illness. Elizabeth's hospital, passing away peacefully in the early morning.

Marion was attending the Bryant school and was in the second A grade. She was a bright, capable pupil and had made an excellent record in her school work.

She was baptized in the Methodist Episcopal church at Beaver Crossing and remained a member of the Cradle roll there until she had grown older when she became a regular member of the Sunday school, and has ever since been very much interested in Sunday school and religious work.

She made her religion practical by carrying it into her every-day life

At the close of her life she was a member of the Dunkard Sunday school at Twenty-third and O streets, Lincoln

Marion was a beautiful child and bore herself with a queenly dignity among her companions, that won their admiration and respect at the game time. She was modest but winning in her personality, and won many friends among her playmates.

Her life ended in the springtime of the year as well as the springtime of life to be perfectly in fruition in a far more perfect existence and a better world than this; God knows the future as we know the past, and our loss and bereavement is Marion's gain and reward. May the Lord's will be done.

Sleep on beloved, sleep on and take thy rest,
Lay down thy head upon the Savior's breast;
We love thee well but Jesus loves you best.
Goodnight, goodnight, goodnight.

Calm is thy slumber as an infant's sleep,
But thou shalt wake no more to toil and weep;
Thine is a perfect rest, secure and deep,
Goodnight.
Until the shadows from this earth are cast,
Until He gathers in His sheaves at last,
Until the twilight gloom be overcast,
Goodnight.

Many Visit Auto Park.—The Lincoln autmobile club park at Satillo is proving to be very popular this year. Over 400 visited the park last Sunday. The grounds have been cleaned and the caretaker is being kept busy. A new bridge is being constructed on the road to the club park between Fourteenth and Twenty-seventh street.

Two Bikes Stolen.—Jack Moore, 2417 Holdrege street and Floyd Wampler, 1215 P street, each reported to police Saturday the theft of a bicycle.

Extinguish Blaze.—Firemen Saturday extinguished a blaze in a rubbish receiver back of the Orpheum theatre. The origin of the blaze is not known. The damage was slight.

Will Plan Park.—The College View brotherhood will meet Monday evening at the Union church for a supper at 7 o'clock. Following the supper there will be a short program consisting of talks and music. Dr. Benjamin F. Bailey will speak. The purpose of the meeting is for futhering plans for the opening of a park near College View.

Reports Collision—Harry Tavlinsky, 1203 North Seventh street, reported to police Saturday evening that he had been struck while riding a bicycle by an automobile driven by O. S. Copeland. Copeland also made a report to police, and said the auto did not strike Tavlinsky. Tavlinsky was not injured, the report stated. The collision occurred at Thirteenth and P streets.

Atlas Club Elects.—The Atlas club, composed of graduates of the Palmer school of chiropractic, met at a luncheon Tuesday and completed their organization by the election of officers. Dr. Jane B. Ringer was chosen president, and Dr. V. O. Rankin, secretary-treasurer. Following the business session, Dr. S. L. Ashworth gave a talk on "The Future of Chiropractic in America."

No Supreme Court Arbor Day.—The state supreme court calendar for this week's sittings has been left blank on Tuesday, which is Arbor day and will be observed at the capitol as a legal holiday. Instead, the judges will probably go into consultation on that day and consider their decisions in pending cases. Judge W. H. Thompson of Grand Island, the newly appointed member of the court, will take his seat Monday, and the bench will have a complete representation for the first time in more than a year.

Bank Suit in High Court.—Cherry county and the state of Nebraska have appealed to the state supreme court from a judgment obtained in the district court of Cherry county by the Frist National bank of Valentine, whereby it was allowed to deduct from its capital stock assessment the sum of $5,850 represented by a piece of land which it owns in South Dakota and which is taxed there. The suit is a test case which will determine the right of banks generally to offset their tax assessments in Nebraska with property owned elsewhere.

Road Boosters Meet.—C. H. Roper, president of the Detroit-Lincoln-Denver highway association, and R. O. Green, division engineer of the state highway department, have returned from a road boosters meeting held at Gretna Friday night. The object of the meeting was to secure federal aid for the road that now runs four miles north of Gretna, which meets with the paving that Douglas county is extending to Sarpy county. The county commissioners gave assurance that the roads would be kept in first class condition during the summer. A standing vote on the two cent gasoline tax showed that those at the meeting were in favor of the gasoline tax for Nebraska.

Deaths

Word was received Saturday by Otto Studts, 115 G street, University Place, of the death of his father, Peter Studts a Hyde Park, Calif. He was formerly a resident of Lincoln.

Funeral services for Katherine Horch will be held at 1:30 p. m., Sunday at the home, 812 Charleston street and at 2 p. m., at the Salem Congregational church, Ninth and Charleston streets. Rev. Jacog Wagner will officiate. Interment will be made in Wyuka cemetery.

The body of George Towle is being held at Roberts' chapel, pending the arrival of a daughter from Los Angeles. The funeral will probably be held Thursday.

B. J. Morey, undertaker.—Adv.

Coming Events

Obituary

Allan Duane Watts.

Funeral services for Allan D. Watts were held at the grave April 14, 1924. Rev. Ray E. Hunt officiated, and paid a beautiful tribute to one who was a faithful member of the First Christian Sunday school. To know the child's sunny disposition, said Rev. Hunt, is to love him. Annette Abbott sang "When He Cometh to Make Up His Jewels."

Allan entered the McKinley school kindergarten, and at the time of his death was in the 5B. He was a fine student, always ready and willing to help in any plans or work attempted. He took a prominent part in all of the school activities, and was a member of the orchestra and student council.

The short journey of Allan's life was marked with deeds of helpfulness, kindness and cheer. He scattered sunshine wherever he went. Relatives and friends sent flowers to be placed on the little casket. On his face was an expression in keeping with his pure and spotless life.

The parents mourn but not without hope. Their hearts cannot be comforted because the angel of their home is missing, but through this gloom there will come a bright beam of sunshine.

There is always some song to sing,
my friends,
Always some song that has not been sung,
A song that the broken hearts may hear,
From the long lost hopes they tread among.

—CONTRIBUTED.

Marion Lucile Kirby.

Marion Lucile Kirby was born at Beaver Crossing, Neb., August 23, 1916 and departed this life April 11, 1924, age 7 years, 8 months and 28 days.

From Beaver Crossing, Marion removed with her parents to Grand island where they resided one year and from there came to Lincoln where they have since made their home.

After a few days severe illness. Elizabeth's hospital, passing away peacefully in the early morning.

Marion was attending the Bryant school and was in the second A grade. She was a bright, capable pupil and had made an excellent record in her school work.

She was baptized in the Methodist Episcopal church at Beaver Crossing and remained a member of the Cradle roll there until she had grown older when she became a regular member of the Sunday school, and has ever since been very much interested in Sunday school and religious work.

At the close of her life she was a member of the Dunkard Sunday school at Twenty-third and O streets, Lincoln.

Marion was a beautiful child and bore herself with a queenly dignity among her companions, that won their admiration and respect at the same time. She was modest but winning in her personality, and won many friends among her playmates.

Her life ended in the springtime of the year as well as the springtime of life to be perfectly in fruition in a far more perfect existence and a better world than this; God knows the future as we know the past, and our loss and bereavement is Marion's gain and reward. May the Lord's will be done.

Sleep on beloved, sleep on and take thy rest,
Lay down thy head upon the Savior's breast;
We love thee well but Jesus loves you best.
Goodnight, goodnight, goodnight.

Calm is thy slumber as an infant's sleep,
But thou shalt wake no more to toil and weep;
Thine is a perfect rest, secure and deep,
Goodnight.
Until the shadows from this earth are cast,
Until He gathers in His sheaves at last,
Until the twilight gloom be overcast,
Goodnight.

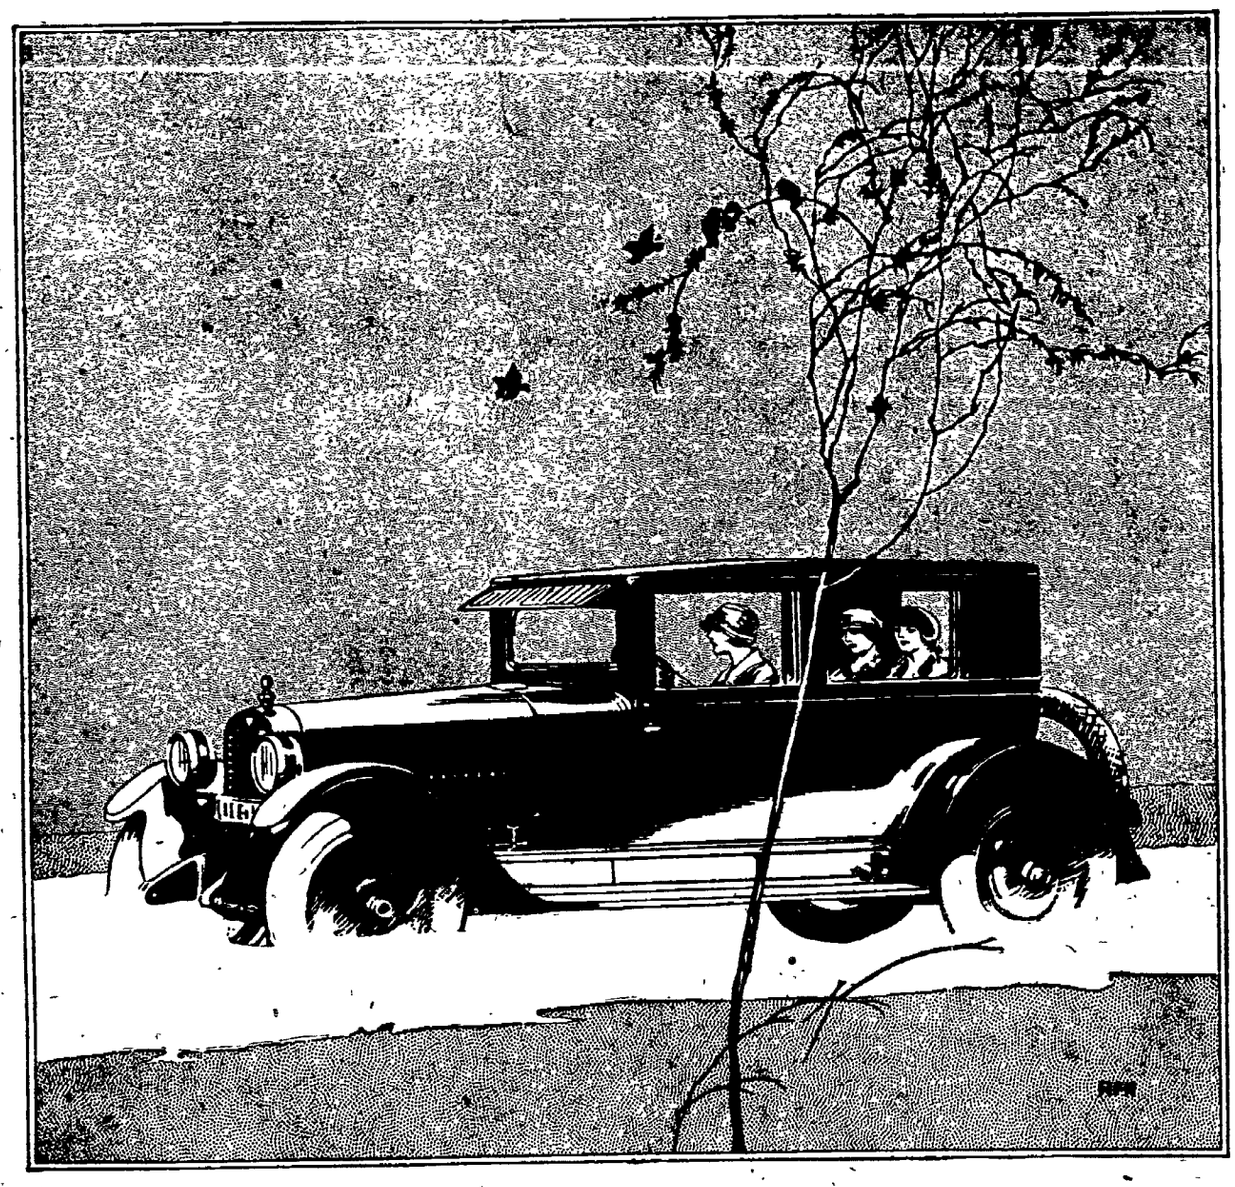
Why Buy an Open Car

The Coach Costs So Little More

No Wonder the Coach Owner is Envied

All year utility and comfort. Warm in winter. Wet-proof, dust-proof in summer. No curtains to bother. And you pay no more than open car cost.



Pride of Ownership in the Coach

Handsome appearance, roominess and personal comfort give a sense of well-being that completes the enjoyment of delightful performance in the Coach.

HUDSON SUPER-SIX COACH

Freight and Tax Extra

ESSEX SIX COACH

$975

Freight and Tax Extra

And the Coach is Exclusive to Hudson and Essex

The Coach is a Hudson-Essex invention. No other type and no other car gives closed car comforts at open car cost.

The Coach costs but little more than the open models of either Hudson or Essex. The extra cost of closed models on other cars is from $300 up, even on the lowest priced cars. More than 125,000 Coaches are in service. Sales exceed 3,000 every week. Everyone prefers a closed car. The Coach alone is the quality car within the reach of all. No wonder the Coach on Hudson and Essex is the world's largest selling six-cylinder closed car.

It is the Car for Everyone

In two and one-half years the Coach has proved a staunchness and reliability never before associated with a closed car. In all service in every part of the world it satisfies the pride of ownership. It gives all the utility you get in any closed car. No one who knows will be content with anything less than closed car comforts, and the Coach alone gives those comforts at open car cost.

The Evidence Detroit Gives

Sales leadership in Detroit is a far more important endorsement than its similar position elsewhere. For motor car values are better understood than anywhere else in the world.

More than 200,000 Detroit automobile workers know the inside of every automobile success. They appraise values as experts. They buy the cars they believe in.

For three successive months Hudson-Essex sales in Detroit and throughout Michigan have outnumbered any other makes with the exception of two widely known low-priced four-cylinder cars.

This unanswerable evidence is proof of what the most critical and best informed group of motor buyers in the world think of Hudson and Essex.

The cars they buy are the cars it is safe for you to buy.

Hudson and Essex Are of one Quality

Both are the creations of the same engineers. They are built in the same shops by the same workmen under the same patents. There is no difference in quality of material or workmanship.

The price you want to pay for a car will decide whether it shall be a Hudson or Essex. The closed car advantages of the Coach and its price leave no other consideration.

Hudson and Essex Are of One Quality

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO BUYERS:
The remarkable value offered in Hudson and Essex is matched by the astonishingly low parts prices and the progressive service policy that keeps maintenance down to a minimum. Be sure and get parts price list from your dealer.

HOOF AND MOUTH EPIDEMIC GRAVE

Fenton B. Fleming, Just Back From California, Describes Conditions.

Efforts Made to Check Conditions Which May Mean State Quarantine.

Fenton B. Fleming, who returned Tuesday, from a month's stay in California, has much to say of the seriousness of the hoof and mouth disease there, and the drastic methods being taken to prevent its spread.

Californian's are not anxious to spread the information, but they realize that conditions are so foreboding that they have stopped exportation of fruit, put counties under quarantine, and are using every means to, prevent further spread of the disease among the cattle and sheep which it attacks. Mr. Fleming states

They claim that they have the epidemic under control. If they do not, it may mean isolation of the state If herds in the mountains were attacked, authorities might not be able to eradicate the disease for a long time.

Mr. Fleming made his trip by train, but saw a good deal of the methods used to stop infection at the boundaries of quarantined counties. Autoists must drive their cars into disinfectant solutions, and themselves wade into the liquid over their shoe soles. It it is found that they had changed their shoes, they are subject to a $50 fine.

Fruit carried by travelers on the road is destroyed, as are pets of any kind.

When a livestock herd is found to contain a few infected animals, officials immediately bring a ditch digger and scoop out a huge trench; the herrd is driven in, the animals shot down, and buried Fifty dollars a head is paid to the owner.

In some counties, pigeons and blackbirds are killed in the efforts to stop all spread of the disease.

One case was found in Nevada, and this has prompted officials in that state to make their exacting regulations

Counties in the south seem to contain the largest number of infected animals, according to Mr. Fleming

Though the disease is often not fatal, there seems to be no cure for it, said Mr Fleming.

Mr Fleming visited Los Angeles, San Diego, Hollywood and Sacramento, and returned by the Denver route.

PLAN MILITARY SHOW FEATURES

134th Infantry Band of York to Take Part in Program May 23.

Cavalry and Artillery Troops to March to Lincoln From Kansas.

Preparations are being pushed by officials of the university and the army for the big military show to be held here, May 23, and new attractions are now planned.

The 134th infantry band of York has been ordered to Lincoln by General Paul, and will take part in the parade and in the events at the fair ground.

The Pershing rifles, honorary company of the university R. O. T. C. unit are making special preparations for their appearance in conjunction with the regular army troops.

Entertainment for the visitors will be provided by the American Legion at the auditorium in the evening. A military ball is being arranged by the military staff at the university for officers of the regular ramy, and official of the Missouri Valley track meet.

Regular troops will be guests of the university May 21 at the track meet held in the Nebraska stadium.

Cavalry and artillery troops to take part in the program will march from Fort Riley, Kas., at the rate of about twenty miles a day, and will arrive here a day or two in advance of the show.

"Athletic authorities of the state university, and reserve officers of Lincoln are assisting in every way to give Nebraska people the very best entertainment they have ever enjoyed," asserts Major J. G. Faes. "The Lincoln chamber of commerce is lending its assistance, and the business men of the city are bearing expenses, so that there will be no admission charged at the fair grounds."

ODD FELLOWS TO HOLD CELEBRATION

Commemorate One Hundred and Fifth Anniversary Thursday Evening.

Odd Fellows of Lincoln are planning on the celebrating of the one hundred and fifth anniversary of the birth of American Odd Fellowship on the evening of Thursday, April 24. A banquet wil lbe served in the hall, Eleventh and L streets, at 6 o'clock, to be followed by a program. It is reported that every member of the order will be present. Several grand officers have been invited and the address of the evening will be delivered by the grand warden, Rev. H. A. Taylor, of Osceola.

An unusually large attendance which filled the hall to capacity was present at the meeting of Capitol Lodge No. 11, I. O. O. F. Thursday night.

Members from Havelock, Greenwood, Milford, Vesta, Council Bluffs, Iowa and other cities were present, and the work in the third degree was exemplified upon candidates from Milford, Greenwood, and Lincoln Delegates from Capitol Lodge have been visiting the various lodges in the vicinity during the last few weeks in order to keep up the friendly spirit that is existing among the brethren at this time.

COTNER NOTES

Miss Dorothy Morgan of Omaha spent several days during the past week as a guest of her sister, Florence, who is a freshman.

WILL ENTERTAIN LEADER OF ELKS

Grand Exalted Ruler McFarland To Come To Lincoln In May.

Accompanied By Grand Secretary Fred C. Robinson On Visit.

For the first time in its history Lincoln lodge of Elks is to have the opportunity of entertaining a grand exalted ruler of the order. On Saturday, May 3, James G. McFarland of Watertown, S. D., present leader of all Elks, is to visit Lincoln as the guest of local members. He will be accompanied by Fred R. Robinson of Dubuque, Iowa, now and for the past eighteen years grand secretary. Mr. McFarland will also be accompanied by his private secretary, past exalted ruler of Watertown lodge.

The party will arrive on the Rock Island from the west at 11:25 a. m. and during the afternoon will attend a meeting in the Elks lodge room of the newly installed officers of the various lodges in the South Platte territory. At 6:30 a banquet will be served at which the grand exalted ruler and grand secretary will be the guests of honor and which will be for all members of the order.

Ever since his election to the office which he occupies members of Lincoln lodge have been endeavoring to secure a visit from Mr. McFarland, who is regarded as one of the brainiest and most eloquent men who ever headed the order, which now numbers approximately a million men. He will come to Omaha to dedicate the new building which the lodge of that city is just completing and will go from there to Fairbury where he will also dedicate a new lodge home and will visit Past Grand Exalted Ruler Frank L. Rain. From Fairbury he will come to Lincoln, driving to Fremont after the banquet to catch a Union Pacific train for Cheyenne on his way to the Pacific coast.

Mr. McFarland has seen long service in the grand lodge of Elks, having been for a number of years the chairman of the judiciary committee, considered the most important in the organization. Since his election at Atlanta last July he has visited lodges in all parts of the country, by his magnetic personality and thrilling eloquence aroused the most intense enthusiasm among the members. His speech following his elevation to the head of Elkdom has been pronounced a masterpiece of oratory and Lincoln Elks are looking forward to his visit here as one of the greatest events in the history of the local lodge.

The growth in membership of Lincoln lodge during the year which closed on April 1 was the greatest since its institution, the class received on March 31 being the largest since the lodge was established. With the enthusiasm aroused and the interest created by this visit of the grand officers Lincoln Elks expect the growth fo be even greater during the current year.

Favor Building New Cruisers

WASHINGTON, April 19. — The house naval affairs committee today recommended a naval construction program involving the reconditioning of six first line battleships and the building of eight new cruisers.

This construction is essential to the proper balance of the navy, the committee's report said. The battleships were said not to be in condition for actual battle and the cruisers are necessary on account of the navy's deficiency in this respect.

G. O. P. DELEGATES WILL MEET HERE

To Discuss Plans at Conference Preceding State Convention.

Delegates from Nebraska to the republican national convention will probably meet in Lincoln April 30, the day preceding the state convention, to discuss plans for the convention, Frank P. Corrick, Coolidge campaign manager, said Saturday.

National Committeeman-elect Charles A. McCloud and National Committeewoman-elect Minnie Freeman Penney will be at the meeting. All delegates will attend the state convention the next day, it is planned.

Gould Dietz, delegate from Omaha, who recently conferred with Senator R. B. Howell, present republican national committeeman, stated that Mr. Howell had arranged for quarters at the Colonial hotel at Cleveland for the Nebraska delegation. The Kansas, Maine and Oklahoma delegates will also be there. The arrangement of Senator Howell is subject to the approval of the delegation.

Lincoln Planes To Be Used By Chicago Air Line Company

Three passenger airplanes recently sold by the Lincoln Standard Aircraft corporation to the American Eagle Aerial Transportation company of Chicago will be on display all day Sunday at the flying field on South Twentieth street. They hop off Monday morning for Chicago.

Two of the machines carry five passengers, and one three passengers. They will be used in an air line service just started between Chicago and Detroit, Chicago and Minneapolis, and later, between other points.

Eyer Sloniger of Lincoln will pilot one of the planes to its destination; the other two pilots are furnished by the purchaser. All three machines are of the stock types being built by the Lincoln corporation and are sold for $3,950 and $2,650.

HOOF AND MOUTH EPIDEMIC GRAVE

Efforts Made to Check Conditions Which May Mean State Quarantine.

Fenton B. Fleming, who returned Tuesday from a month's stay in California, has much to say of the seriousness of the hoof and mouth disease there, and the drastic methods being taken to prevent its spread.

Californian's are not anxious to spread the information, but they realize that conditions are so foreboding that they have stopped exportation of fruit, put counties under quarantine, and are using every means to prevent further spread of the disease among the cattle and sheep which it attacks. Mr. Fleming states.

They claim that they have the epidemic under control. If they do not, it may mean isolation of the state. If herds in the mountains were attacked, authorities might not be able to eradicate the disease for a long time.

Mr. Fleming made his trip by train, but saw a good deal of the methods used to stop infection at the boundaries of quarantined counties. Autoists must drive their cars into disinfectant solutions, and themselves wade into the liquid over their shoe soles. It it is found that they had changed their shoes, they are subject to a $50 fine.

Fruit carried by travelers on the road is destroyed, as are pets of any kind.

When a livestock herd is found to contain a few infected animals, officials immediately bring a ditch digger and scoop out a huge trench; the herd is driven in, the animals shot down, and buried. Fifty dollars a head is paid to the owner.

In some counties, pigeons and blackbirds are killed in the efforts to stop all spread of the d isease.

One case was found in Nevada, and this has prompted officials in that state to make their exacting regulations.

Counties in the south seem to contain the largest number of infected animals, according to Mr. Fleming.

Though the disease is often not fatal, there seems to be no cure for it, said Mr. Fleming.

Mr. Fleming visited Los Angeles, San Diego, Hollywood and Sacramento, and returned by the Denver route.

PLAN MILITARY SHOW FEATURES

134th Infantry Band of York to Take Part in Program May 23.

Cavalry and Artillery Troops to March to Lincoln From Kansas.

Preparations are being pushed by officials of the university and the army for the big military show to be held here, May 23, and new attractions are now planned.

The 134th infantry band of York has been ordered to Lincoln by General Paul, and will take part in the parade and in the events at the fair ground.

The Pershing rifles, honorary company of the university R. O. T. C. unit are making special preparations for their appearance in conjunction with the regular army troops.

Entertainment for the visitors will be provided by the American Legion at the auditorium in the evening. A military ball is being arranged by the military staff at the university for officers of the regular ramy, and official of the Missouri Valley track meet.

Regular troops will be guests of the university May 24 at the track meet held in the Nebraska stadium.

Cavalry and artillery troops to take part in the program will march from Fort Riley, Kas., at the rate of about twenty miles a day, and will arrive here a day or two in advance of the show.

"Athletic authorities of the state university, and reserve officers of Lincoln are assisting in every way to give Nebraska people the very best entertainment they have ever enjoyed," asserts Major J. G. Faes. "The Lincoln chamber of commerce is lending its assistance, and the business men of the city are bearing expenses, so that there will be no admission charged at the fair grounds."

ODD FELLOWS TO HOLD CELEBRATION

Commemorate One Hundred and Fifth Anniversary Thursday Evening.

Odd Fellows of Lincoln are planning on the celebrating of the one hundred and fifth anniversary of the birth of American Odd Fellowship on the evening of Thursday, April 24. A banquet will lbe served in the hall, Eleventh and L streets, at 6 o'clock, to be followed by a program. It is reported that every member of the order will be present. Several grand officers have been invited and the address of the evening will be delivered by the grand warden, Rev. H. A. Taylor, of Osceola.

An unusually large attendance which filled the hall to capacity was present at the meeting of Capitol Lodge No. 11, I. O. O. F. Thursday night.

Members from Havelock, Greenwood, Milford, Vesta, Council Bluffs, Iowa and other cities were present, and the work in the third degree was exemplified upon candidates from Milford, Greenwood, and Lincoln. Delegates from Capitol Lodge have been visiting the various lodges in the vicinity during the last few weeks in order to keep up the friendly spirit that is existing among the brethren at this time.

COTNER NOTES

Miss Dorothy Morgan of Omaha spent several days during the past week as a guest of her sister, Florence, who is a freshman.

WILL ENTERTAIN LEADER OF ELKS

Grand Exalted Ruler McFarland To Come To Lincoln In May.

Accompanied By Grand Secretary Fred C. Robinson On Visit.

For the first time in its history Lincoln lodge of Elks is to have the opportunity of entertaining a grand exalted ruler of the order. On Saturday, May 3, James G. McFarland of Watertown, S. D., present leader of all Elks, is to visit Lincoln as the guest of local members. He will be accompanied by Fred R. Robinson of Dubuque, Iowa, now and for the past eighteen years grand secretary. Mr. McFarland wil also be accompanied by his private secretary, past exalted ruler of Watertown lodge.

The party will arrive on the Rock Island from the west at 11:25 a. m. and during the afternoon will attend a meeting in the Elks lodge room of the newly installed officers of the various lodges in the South Platte territory. At 6:30 a banquet will be served at which the grand exalted ruler and grand secretary will be the guests of honor and which will be for all members of the order.

Ever since his election to the office which he occupies members of Lincoln lodge have been endeavoring to secure a visit from Mr. McFarland, who is regarded as one of the brainiest and most eloquent men who ever headed the order, which now numbers approximately a million men. He will come to Omaha to dedicate the new building which the lodge of that city is just completing and will go from there to Fairbury where he will also dedicate a new lodge home and will visit Past Grand Exalted Ruler Frank L. Rain. From Fairbury he will come to Lincoln, driving to Fremont after the banquet to catch a Union Pacific train for Cheyenne on his way to the Pacific coast.

Mr. McFarland has seen long service in the grand lodge of Elks, having been for a number of years the chairman of the judiciary committee, considered the most important in the organization. Howard's Links In Victory Column By 8 to 4 Defeat of Saints

LINCOLN OUT OF LOSING STREAK; THUMPS SAINTS

Rose Pitches Full Nine-Inning Route and Team Pals Pound the Ball For 8 to 4 Victory.

(Special to The Star)

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 19.—Lincoln's Western league baseball team won its first game of the season today by defeating the St. Joseph Saints here today by a scare of 8 to 4.

"Bill" Rose pitched the entire distance for the Links and "Red" McColl also toiled the full route.

Lincoln scored four runs in the fifth inning on two hits. The other runs came in the third, fourth, sixth and the ninth. The Saints made two of their markers in the fourth frame, and the other pair in the seventh and ninth.

The massacre came in the fifth when Lincoln scored four. This almost disheartened the disorganized Saints, who are without the services of three outfielders — Demaggio, laid up with a bad toe; Miller, out with a bad back and Lewan, in Chicago on account of the illness of his mother

Links Peel Off Four.

To start the inning, Milan singled and Snyder shot a hit to right Kinsella singled and Milan scored. McDonald was walked and Milan scored on McDaniels' shot to center. Young was put out at first but an error by Mathes put Rose on first Gilbert caught out Moore after McDonald had scored. St. Joseph went out one-two-three on flies.

Lincoln's last run came in the ninth after Brown had caught out Kinsella incenter. McDonald singled to left and scored when Williams misjudged a fly off the bat of Young. McDaniels had previously gone out at first and Corrigan tossed out Rose for the last out of the Links

Drive Hits the Fence

St. Joseph scored in the fourth after Williams had sent a two-bagger to centerfield. The ball rattled the fence It was the first one this season in the local park. Love slugged a two-bagger to left and Williams scored. Fisher was out at first and McColl walked. Corrigan singled to left and Love scored Nufer flied out to Young and Mathes walked. Rose pitched himself out of a nice hole, for the bases were filled. He allowed a slow dribble to McDonald.

Rose pitched a nice game throughout and displayed little of the wildness he had with him when he was with St. Joseph in 1922. McColl was the offensive man for St. Joseph and besides hurling a nice game without support was on his toes all of the time. Cy Williams, left field sub, slammed two doubles and a single. The scores:

New Shortstop Joins Links At St. Joe Today

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 19. — Baker, a shortstop recommended to Howard Wakefield by the Kansas City American association club, for which he has been playing this spring, is to join the Lincoln club here tomorrow, which means that Baker and Young will fight it out for the short field position.

McDaniels playing the initial sack in his first game with the Links today, looked good to Wakefield, fielding cleanly and smacking a two-bagger which drove in two Lincoln runners.

Wakefield was feeling good tonight over Lincoln's first victory, and promised to make trouble for rival clubs before the season is far advanced.

Will the crown emblematic of the Nebraska golf championship be worn by an Omaha golfer when "finis" is written on the state title play over the Lincoln Country club course June 9-14 inclusive.

This is the first time in the history of the Scotch pastime, as played over Nebraska hill and dale, that the tournament has been held outside of Omaha and golf fans of the Cornhusker commonwealth are wondering if this summer the title will also stray away from metropolitan borders

The present champion, Sam W. Reynolds of the Omaha Field club, is the king pin of the lot, having an-

HUSKERS FLASH WINNING GOODS IN K. U. RELAYS

(Special to The Star.)

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 19.—University of Nebraska track athletes gave a good account of themselves in the second annual Kansas university relay carnival here this afternoon. The Cornhuskers won two first and a string of second places, as well as furnishing interesting competition in every event in which they were entered

A crowd of more than five thousand people witnessed the contests A west wind was blowing during the meet, but the day was ideal.

Nebraska won the 880-yard relay with 1 minute 29 5-10 seconds. The Cornhuskers led Iowa and Kansas across the finish line. The Huskers finished second to Northwestern in the two-mile relay and second in the quarter-mile relay

Turner Second in Jump.

Hobb Turner took second in the high jump Turner leaped 6 feet 3 inches, but Poor of Kansas cleared the bar at 6 feet 4 inches.

Locke of Nebraska made Irwin of Kansas Agricultural college do 10 seconds in the century sprint and came in second

Ced Hartman won the 16-pound shot put with a heave of 42 feet 7 3-4 inches He beat a field which included Quary of Illinois and Purma of Pittsburg Normal.

Weir placed fourth in the 220-yard low hurdles.

Northwestern university, Evanston, set a new record by winning the two mile relay in 8 minutes 49 1-10 seconds Nebraska was second, and Kansas third.

K. C. High Breaks Record.

Northeast high school, Kansas City, running in class B, clipped the Kansas two-mile relay record by negotiating the distance in 8 minutes 32 and 3-5 seconds Last year Cedar Rapids established a record by running the two miles in 8 minutes, 33 9-10 seconds Cedar Rapids was second today, Ottawa, Ill., third and Oskaloosa, Iowa, fourth

The University of Texas medley relay team established a new world's intercollegiate record in seven minutes and 39 2-10 seconds. The Irish-American Athletic club had held the old record since 1909.

ANNUAL MEET ON WESLEYAN FIELD

Methodists' Track Compet To Open Cinder Season In Lincoln.

Event Will Be Feature of High School Day Program At University Place.

By GREGG McBRIDE.

The lid will be officially lifted on the track season of Lincoln and vicinity next Friday afternoon when the Nebraska Wesleyan invitation championships get under way on Johnson Field. It will be the second annual interscholastic track compet at the Methodist institutions.

The cinder carnival is a part of the high school day program at the University Place school and a bumper outpouring of high school students is expected

The athletic meet in the afternoon is perhaps the only meet of its kind in the state. Under the rules laid down by those in charge of the meet each school is limited to five entries and each entrant may compete in only three events.

Medals to Winners.

Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded athletes who place one-two-three in the different events. A trophy will be awarded the individual high point winner, while a banner will go to the team winning the 880-yard relay.

Emphasis will be placed on the athlete rather than the team in the Friday meet, hence no trophy will be awarded the school winning the most points.

The list of schools already entered in the meet includes Tobias, Blanchard, la Eagle and Friend. Entries close Thursday and it is expected that other schools to compete in the meet will include Lincoln, University Place, Havelock, Crete, Dodge, Clay Center and Ohiowa.

Events of the meet are 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard dash, 880-yard run, mile run, 120-yard high hurdles, 220-yard low hurdles, high jump broad jump, pole vaault, 12-pound shot put, discus throw and 880-yard relay.

Uni. Place Won Last Year.

Last year the meet was staged on a team basis and University Place won the meet, with Havelock second. Wesleyan meet records:

Mile run—4 minutes 47 second by Moore, University Place.

220-yard dash—23 4-5 seconds by Pflug, Ohiowa.

120-yard high hurdles — 18 3-5 seconds by Miller, Havelock.

220-yard low hurdles — 30 1-5 seconds by Warga, Havelock.

880-yard run—2 minutes 16 seconds by Moore, University Place.

High jump—5 feet 3 inches by Ball, Shot put—34 feet 3 inches by Gass, University Place.

Discus throw—94 feet 6 inches by Gass, University Place.

Pole vault—9 feet 6 inches by Dowart, Friend.

Broad jump—20 feet 5 inches by Ball, University Place.

880-yard relay—1 minute 45 seconds by Friend.

Greb Loses To Black Fighter On Foul Blow

BOSTON, April 19.—Harry Greb, Pittsburgh fighter, tonight lost to Kid Norfolk, negro scrapper, on a foul in the sixth round.

Despite protests from all angles and also the fact that Norfolk hit Greb back after he was struck, the referee refused to change his decision.

Cash Refund To Hi Teams At Tourney

The greatest transportation cost any Nebraska high school paid to send an eight-man basketball team to the recent interscholastic cage carnival in Lincoln—the greatest basketball tournament in the world—was $40.

H. D. Gish, manager of the 1924 tourney, announced Saturday that a refund of 60 per cent of the transportation expense would be made this year. All schools with expenditures more than $100 will have the surplus above that sum refunded in addition to the sixty per cent.

The 60 per cent refund this year is made to 238 teams from net receipts of $7,631.47. A 60 per cent refund last year was made to 218 teams from net receipts of $6,755 88 Checks will be mailed Tuesday, it was announced at the University of Nebraska athletic department.

Howard's Links In Victory Column By 8 to 4 Defeat of Saints

LINCOLN OUT OF LOSING STREAK; THUMPS SAINTS

Rose Pitches Full Nine-Inning Route and Team Pals Pound the Ball For 8 to 4 Victory.

(Special to The Star)

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 19.—Lincoln's Western league baseball team won its first game of the season today by defeating the St. Joseph Saints here today by a scare of 8 to 4.

"Bill" Rose pitched the entire distance for the Links and "Red" McColl also toiled the full route.

Lincoln scored four runs in the fifth inning on two hits. The other runs came in the third, fourth, sixth and the ninth. The Saints made two of their markers in the fourth frame, and the other pair in the seventh and ninth.

The massacre came in the fifth when Lincoln scored four. This almost disheartened the disorganized Saints, who are without the services of three outfielders — Demaggio, laid up with a bad toe; Miller, out with a bad back and Lewan, in Chicago on account of the illness of his mother.

Links Peel Off Four.

To start the inning, Milan singled and Snyder shot a hit to right. Kinsella singled and Milan scored. McDonald was walked and Milan scored on McDaniels' shot to center. Young was put out at first but an error by Mathes put Rose on first. Gilbert caught out Moore after McDonald had scored. St. Joseph went out one-two-three on flies.

Lincoln's last run came in the ninth after Brown had caught out Kinsella incenter. McDonald singled to left and scored when Williams misjudged a fly off the bat of Young. McDaniels had previously gone out at first and Corrigan tossed out Rose for the last out of the Links.

Drive Hits the Fence

St. Joseph scored in the fourth after Williams had sent a two-bagger to centerfield. The ball rattled the fence. It was the first one this season in the local park. Love slugged a two-bagger to left and Williams scored. Fisher was out at first and McColl walked. Corrigan singled to left and Love scored. Nufer flied out to Young and Mathes walked. Rose pitched himself out of a nice hole, for the bases were filled. He allowed a slow dribble to McDonald.

Rose pitched a nice game throughout and displayed little of the wildness he had with him when he was with St. Joseph in 1922. McColl was the offensive man for St. Joseph and besides hurling a nice game without support was on his toes all of the time. Cy Williams, left field sub, slammed two doubles and a single. The score:

New Shortstop Joins Links At St. Joe Today

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 19. — Baker, a shortstop recommended to Howard Wakefield by the Kansas City American association club, for which he has been playing this spring, is to join the Lincoln club here tomorrow, which means that Baker and Young will fight it out for the short field position.

McDaniels, playing the initial sack in his first game with the Links today, looked good to Wakefield, fielding cleanly and smacking a two-bagger which drove in two Lincoln runners.

Wakefield was feeling good tonight over Lincoln's first victory, and promised to make trouble for rival clubs before the season is far advanced.

Will the crown emblematic of the Nebraska golf championship be worn by an Omaha golfer when "finis" is written on the state title play over the Lincoln Country club course June 9-14 inclusive.

This is the first time in the history of the Scotch pastime, as played over Nebraska hill and dale, that the tournament has been held outside of Omaha and golf fans of the Cornhusker commonwealth are wondering if this summer the title will also stray away from metropolitan borders.

The present champion, Sam W. Reynolds of the Omaha Field club, is the king pin of the lot, having an-

HUSKERS FLASH WINNING GOODS IN K. U. RELAYS

ANNUAL MEET ON WESLEYAN FIELD

Methodists' Track Compet To Open Cinder Season In Lincoln.

Event Will Be Feature of High School Day Program At University Place.

By GREGG McBRIDE.

The lid will be officially lifted on the track season of Lincoln and vicinity next Friday afternoon when the Nebraska Wesleyan invitation championships get under way on Johnson Field. It will be the second annual interscholastic track compet at the Methodist institutions.

The cinder carnival is a part of the high school day program at the University Place school and a bumper outpouring of high school students is expected.

The athletic meet in the afternoon is perhaps the only meet of its kind in the state. Under the rules laid down by those in charge of the meet each school is limited to five entries and each entrant may compete in only three events.

Medals to Winners.

Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded athletes who place one-two-three in the different events. A trophy will be awarded the individual high point winner, while a banner will go to the team winning the 880-yard relay.

Emphasis will be placed on the athlete rather than the team in the Friday meet, hence no trophy will be awarded the school winning the most points.

The list of schools already entered in the meet includes Tobias, Blanchard, Ia., Eagle and Friend. Entries close Thursday and it is expected that other schools to compete in the meet will include Lincoln, University Place, Havelock, Crete, Dodge, Clay Center and Ohiowa.

Events of the meet are 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard dash, 880-yard run, mile run, 120-yard high hurdles, 220-yard low hurdles, high jump, broad jump, pole vaulat, 12-pound shot put, discus throw and 880-yard relay.

Uni. Place Won Last Year.

Last year the meet was staged on a team basis and University Place won the meet, with Havelock second. Wesleyan meet records:

Mile run—4 minutes 47 second by Moore, University Place.

220-yard dash—23 4-5 seconds by Pflug, Ohiowa.

120-yard high hurdles — 18 3-5 seconds by Miller, Havelock.

220-yard low hurdles — 30 1-5 seconds by Warga, Havelock.

880-yard run—2 minutes 16 seconds by Moore, University Place.

High jump—5 feet 3 inches by Ball, University Place.

Shot put—34 feet 3 inches by Gass, University Place.

Discus throw—94 feet 6 inches by Gass, University Place.

Pole vault—9 feet 6 inches by Dowart, Friend.

Broad jump—20 feet 5 inches by Ball, University Place.

880-yard relay—1 minute 45 seconds by Friend.

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 19.—University of Nebraska track athletes gave a god account of themselves in the second annual Kansas university relay carnival here this afternoon. The Cornhuskers won two first and a string of second places, as well as furnishing interesting competition in every event in which they were entered.

A crowd of more than five thousand people witnessed the contests A west wind was blowing during the meet, but the day was ideal.

Nebraska won the 880-yard relay with 1 minute 29 5-10 seconds. The Cornhuskers led Iowa and Kansas across the finish line. The Huskers finished second fo Northwestern in the two-mile relay and second in the quarter-mile relay.

Turner Second in Jump.

Hobb Turner took second in the high jump. Turner leaped 6 feet 3 inches, but Poor of Kansas cleared the bar at 6 feet 4 inches.

Locke of Nebraska made Irwin of Kansas Agricultural college do 10 seconds in the century sprint and came in second.

Ced Hartman won the 16-pound shot put with a heave of 42 feet 7 3-4 inches. He beat a field which included Usuary of Illinois and Purma of Pittsburg Normal.

Weir placed fourth in the 220-yard low hurdles.

Northwestern university, Evanston, set a new record by winning the two mile relay in 8 minutes 49 1-10 seconds. Nebraska was second, and Kansas third.

K. C. High Breaks Record.

Northeast high school, Kansas City, running in class B, clipped the Kansas two-mile relay record by negotiating the distance in 8 minutes 32 and 3-5 seconds. Last year Cedar Rapids established a record by running the two miles in 8 minutes, 33 9-10 seconds. Cedar Rapids was second today, Ottawa, Ill., third and Oskaloosa, Iowa, fourth

The University of Texas medley relay team established a new world's intercollegiate record in seven minutes and 39 2-10 seconds. The Irish Amreican Athletic club had held the old record since 1909.

Greb Loses To Black Fighter On Foul Blow

BOSTON, April 19.—Harry Greb, Pittsburgh fighter, tonight lost to Kid Norfolk, negro scrapper, on a foul in the sixth round.

Despite protests from all angles and also the fact that Norfolk hit Greb back after he was struck, the referee refused to change his decision.

Cash Refund To Hi Teams At Tourney

The greatest transportation cost any Nebraska high school paid to send an eight-man basketball team to the recent interscholastic cage carnival in Lincoln—the greatest basketball tournament in the world—was $40.

H. D. Gish, manager of the 1924 tourney, announced Saturday that a refund of 60 per cent of the transportation expense would be made this year. All schools with expenditures more than $100 will have the surplus above that sum refunded in addition to the sixty per cent.

The 60 per cent refund this year is made to 238 teams from net receipts of $7,631.47. A 60 per cent refund last year was made to 218 teams from net receipts of $6,755.88 Checks will be mailed Tuesday, it was announced at the University of Nebraska athletic department.

DUNDEE ENIGMA OF GLOVE SPORT

NEW YORK, April 19.—In ring history it is difficult to find a single warrior of the countless legions who remotely approaches Johnny Dundee in that which is called enigmatical.

Seven years ago this Italian pinwheel, having fought for seven years, was knocked out by Willie Jackson. A sportive world felt that his best days were back beyond the hill of yesteryear; that he then must take the short trail that leads to fistic oblivion.

But Dundee, suffering then the first knockout of his career, made a comeback that not only was wonderful but utterly amazing. He proved, by whipping Jackson frequently in the years that followed, that the Jackson triumph was but a fluke.

Time passes. Dundee's years as a fighter stretched along far beyond the allotted time for any athlete. Yet there seemed to be no lessening of his boundless energy; no slip-back from greatness; no skidding of his tremendous durability; no loss of his power to take punishment and still carry on to victory.

Took Title from Criqui.

In his fifteenth year as a ringman, he fought around 135 pounds one nights. A few weeks later he easily made the featherweight limit and won the world's title in spectacular fashion from Eugene Criqui.

Then came the night when he fought Jack Bernstein for the world's junior lightweight championship. Dundee disported poorly; seemed lacking in much that had made him famed and famous. Bernstein, in the opinion of the majority of critics, won the bout by the proverbial 5,280 feet. But Dundee was given the decision—and so annexed another crown.

After the fight was done, one of the best fight experts in America stated that the time had come for Dundee to retire; that, of a sudden, the years had exacted their toll from him; that the ravages of age, long deferred, finally had seeped into his muscles and his bones, and that it was the better thing that he should fight no more, lest serious injury come to him.

Advised to Retire.

"No truer words were ever spoken," was the comment concerning that article from thousands who had seen Dundee in the Bernstein fight.

If ever it looked as though Dundee had made a mistake, it certainly looked so then. Moran, tough, rugged and aggressive, was a veteran himself, but through the winter he has been fighting in cyclonic fashion. He knocked out Charlie White; he knocked out Johnny Shugrue; he whipped every other man who faced him.

Took Moran to Trimming.

And so this swift traveling Moran went up against the "all-in" Dundee—with this result:

Dundee punched and pounded Moran all around the ring for 15 rounds. Moran, who had showered every other foeman with volleys of blows, found Dundee a phantom on defense. Moran, who easily had dodged the heavy leads of White, the slashing drives of Shugrue and the fire of other men, simply could not avoid a single lead that was made that night by Dundee.

Two months ago this battle-scarred Dundee was regarded as not merely beyond his best years, but in a condition where further fighting might prove either mentally or physically fatal to him.

On Leonard's Trail.

And now he stands forth alone as a foeman for Benny Leonard, king of all the lightweights; he has conquered every bit of opposition that stood in his pathway and Leonard must give him battle—or create the belief that, old as is Dundee, and battle worn though he is, he fears to meet him in a battle for the throne of the 135-pounders.

In all ring history there never was a time—and none ever will come again—when a fighter, after 15 years of battling, holds two world's titles and is a possibility to win a third.

Chance Forced To Quit As Manager; Evers In Command

CHICAGO, April 19—Johnny Evers has been appointed manager of the Chicago White Sox to replace Frank Chance, incapacitated by illness.

Chance, who has been ill for a long time, was ordered to California today.

It had been forecast for several months that Chance would not lead the Sox because of his condition was too delicate to permt his active participation. Today the doctor told Chance to go back to California as soon as possible and Chance decided to obey the order.

Evers was acting manager of the team during the spring training and has been in command since the opening of the regular season.

PRESNELL LEADS IN DEWITT MEET

Illinois Wins Cinder Meet From Bears

BERKELEY, Cal., April 19.—The University of Illinois got revenge on the University of California for past defeats on the track when, with the best team the Illini ever turned out, the middle western conference indoor champions ran away with a dual track meet here today 72 1-3 to 58 2-3.

Captain Neufeldt, California weightman; Evans, the Illinois sprinter, and Brownell, champion pole vaulter of Illinois, were the heroes of the meet.

Neufeldt, Witter and Laing accounted for every point in the weights, Neufeldt taking both first places.

Evans took first place in both dashes, running the 220-yard dash in 21 3-5 seconds, only 2-5 of a second behind the inter-collegiate record.

Brownell stayed in the pole event after his right shoulder, which had been bothering him, almost refused to function. Time and time again he soared over the crossbar, to come back to the bench holding the arm to his side. It was a splendid exhibition of gameness and he won the event.

SILER FEARLESS AS RING REFEREE

Famous Arbiter of 30 Years Ago Had Nerves of Iron And Heart of Steel.

Defied Thugs With Knives and Guns In Deciding Fights On Their Merits.

Referees of prize ring duels of this era line care-free lives in comparison with fistic arbitrators of long ago.

A generation or two ago the ring official always went within the roped arena realizing that, in the end, he might suffer mobbing injury and perhaps death at the hands of the mobs who had backed the ultimate loser to win the battle. Every effort was made to brow-beat referees into certain decisions and those who refused often were beaten for their fearlessness and their honesty.

Of all the referees of other days none was more courageous, none more honorable than George Siler, who was in his hey day during the '80s and '90s. When honest men fought each other they would have no other man than Siler, realizing that the ruling he made would be honest.

Somewhere along in 1891 two heavyweights, Pat Killen and Bob Ferguson, men in a finish fight outside of Chicago, wearing two-ounce gloves. The battle ground was a secret spot, inasmuch as the Chicago civic rules then barred such fighting.

Lugged Guns and Knives.

As the men stepped into the ring, it was discovered that the original referee and failed to put in an appearance. He had a reason. For the crowd was made up mainly of representatives of the Killen and Ferguson gangs and gunmen in Chicago.

Every rival gangman had a revolver and some carried knives in addition.

Siler was influenced to referee the bout by Chicago newspaper men, who knew that if he didn't the match would fall through.

In the second round Ferguson was in a bad way. After about two minutes of fighting had been recorded, the cry of "time" was heard. The fighters ceased battling. But Siler realizing that the call had not come from the timekeeper, but that one of the Ferguson gang had uttered it, ordered the fighters to continue.

Killen, thereupon, rushed in and hit Ferguson a terrific right hand body punch. Just then the bell rang. The Ferguson crowd howled "fowl," and the Killenites bellowed "you're a lot of liars."

In a second a free-for-all fight was on.

One of Ferguson's seconds grabbed a chair, swung it out of the ring and smashed a Killen supporter on the head. Several of the hoodlums whipped out revolvers and cracked heads with the butts. Frank Ware, chief second for Ferguson, rushed over at Siler and threatened his life. Siler, cool and collected, told Ware to "go right ahead." Siler then backed up into a corner and squared away for the threatened fight but Ware changed his mind.

Forced Fighters to Resume.

When "time" was called for the third round, the battle royal was still going on, but Siler had succeeded in clearing the ring. Then he forced the fighters to resume their glove battle.

During the rest of the fight every man possessed of a gun or knife war around the ring, holding the weapons in readiness for instant use. The ring was on the turf. One fellow with a knife ten inches long, pricked Siler's back whenever he got the chance and would threaten "if Ferguson loses, I'll ram this through you."

But every time he jabbed Siler with the knife, Siler would jam an elbow into the fellow's stomach. Shouts of "kill the referee" and "jab a shiv (knife) through him" never worried Siler.

Siler Defied the Mob.

Killen knocked out Ferguson in the sixth. As Siler declared Killen the winner, Ferguson's supporters threatened that they were going to kill Siler. And then Siler gave an exhibition of courage that ever was equalled.

Scorning to jump out of the ring from a neutral corner, he walked across to Ferguson's corner and elbowed his way right through the infuriated Ferguson crowd. Although a dozen men tried to halt him with guns and knives, Siler continued and never deviated from his course.

When Siler had cleared the crowd, and was on his way to the station, a shot was fired at him. Others followed. But Siler never turned back to look, nor did he run to cover. More shots followed. But none hit Siler. Having arrived at the train Siler, instead of getting into the car with the Killen followers, climbed into the Ferguson car and remained there during the entire trip to Chicago.

Boston Runner Breaks Record For Marathon

BOSTON, April 19.—Clarence Demar of Boston, the grand old man of long distance running today shattered the world's record in winning for the fourth time the annual B. A. A. Marathon. The distance had been extended to twenty-six miles, 385 yards to conform with Olympic requirements and Demar covered the distance in two hours, twenty-nine minutes, forty and one-fifth seconds.

Charles ("Chuck") Mellor of the Illinois A. C., Chicago, finished second in 2 hours 34 minutes and 4 2-4 seconds.

The world's record, established at the Olympic meet of 1920, by Hans Kolhmainien was 2 hours 32 minutes 35 4-5 seconds.

Louis Tikkanen, Finnish-American A. C. New York, set the pace for the first part of the race, but by the time the runners had reached Wellesley, the half way point, Demar had taken the lead and he was never headed.

Mellor, Churchill and Wendling had a hard fight for second place all the way in from Wellesley. Zuna had crept up into fourth place shortly before stomach trouble forced him to quit.

Hubbard Near to Record.

OHIO STADIUM, Columbus, O. — April 19.—Dehart Hubbard, sensational negro athlete of University of Michigan, came within a quarter of an inch of establishing a new world's record for the running broad jump here this afternoon.

In an exhibition jump, which featured the annual Ohio relays, conducted under the auspices of the athletic department of Ohio state university, Hubbard made 25 feet 2⅞ inches.

Lincoln Pro Plans Nine-Hole Course For Seward Club

Seward is busy building a new golf course which promises to be one of the leading nine-hole courses in this section of the state. The new course was laid out by Norman Sommers, Lincoln Country club professional, and will be 3,235 yards in length.

The Seward club has purchased a 73-acre tract southwest of the city and is turning 53 acres of this plot into the present course, leaving room for enlarging the course at a later date.

The new course has already been graded and seeded and Seward fans are looking forward to playing on their new links in the near future.

The new course, as laid out by "Pro" Sommers, is a beautiful bit of golfing architecture, the line following the Blue river with several of the greens near the stream. Length of the holes follow:

No. 1—420.
No. 2—265.
No. 3—465.
No. 4—400.
No. 5—110.
No. 6—410.

FATES FICKLE IN DIAMOND PASTIME

Most of the Stars Started In One Position; Won Fame In New Position.

Celebrities Such as Wagner, Ruth, Sisler and Anson Shifted Stations.

Almost unusual thing about baseball is that the men who have gained undying fame in one position started their careers elsewhere.

Babe Ruth, achieving immortality as a home run hitter, began as a pitcher. Had he remained so he never would have become king of all the sluggers, because a pitcher rarely, figures in more than 25 or 30 games per season.

George Sisler, regarded by many as the greatest all around first baseman that ever lived, was a pitcher during his college days and really did pitch early in his big league career.

Honus Wagner, premier of all the shortstops of any era, was an outfielder for a number of years—and became a shortstop by accident. And Larry Lajoie, perhaps the greatest of all second basemen, was originally a catcher.

Wallace Once A Pitcher.

Bobby Wallace, who knew few superiors at third and short, was a pitcher who was sent to third one day to fill the gap made by accident. He played so brilliantly in his debut that he never afterward was permitted to go back into the box.

Hughie Jennings wasn't sure whether he wanted to pe a catcher or a first baseman. All that he was sure apout in his early days was that he could NOT play shortstop. Yet he eventually became one of the most remarkable of all shortfielders.

Kid Gleason is best remember because of his brilliant play at second. Yet the "Kid" was a pitcher for many years, and took up second base play only after his slinging arm went wrong.

Tenney First Back of Bat.

Fred Tenney, wonder first baseman of long ago, started as a catcher. So did Frank Chance, who now is remembered only because of his great work around the keystone sack. Charlie "Duke" Farrell, ranked as one of the greatest of backstops, began as an infielder. Mike Donlin was a pitcher before John McGraw made an outfielder out of him.

Joe Wood, who outfielded for the Indians for several years, was a pitcher at the start. Jimmy Calahan of the old Chicago White Sox was a pitcher, but became one of the greatest of outfielders.

Johnny Ward, captain and shortstop of the Giants of 40 years ago, started as a pitcher. He was a wonder on the mound for several years. Then his arm went wobbly. He tried the infield and quickly came to be known as the greatest infielder of his generation.

Lange ex-Backstopper.

Bill Lange, outfielding marvel, was a catcher. Lave Cross of the Athletics of 20 years ago was a catcher before he gained unforgettable glory as an infielder. And Captain Adrian Anson played second, short and the outfield indifferently before he took real rank as one of the greatest of all first basemen.

Frankie Frisch was a third baseman before he took rank as one of the greatest second sackers in baldom. Rogers Hornsby played short until he found that second base was his real station in life. Max Carey was a shortstop. So was Eddie Collins. Harry Heilman, now an outfielder, was a first baseman.

McInnis Started at Short.

"Stuffy" McInnis was a shortstop when he played his first season for the Athletics. Eddie Roush originally was a pitcher. Bill Wambsganss was a shortstop. Ross Young, one of the outfielding stars of the National league, was a second baseman. Mordecai Brown was a third baseman. Billy Sullivan started as an infielder and became world famous at a catcher.

Those are only a few of the mighty legion of players who started in one position and then began to write their names indelibly in the pages of baseball history because of their greatness elsewhere.

REYNOLDS LEADS IN STATE TITLES

nexed six state championships. S. Blaine Young and Frank H. Gaines, both of the Omaha Country club, twice won the title.

But times have changed since the first tournament was held in 1905. Twenty years ago the golf clubs in Nebraska could have been counted on a couple of hands, now the total has topped the hundred mark and going strong.

Several years ago the personnel of the championship flight was made up entirely of Omaha players. Last year Lincoln and Norfolk players broke the ice, with Grand Island, Fremont and Columbus golfers knocking at the door.

In 1924 it may be a different story for the caliber of game displayed by out-state players have been improving by leaps and bounds, and out from the herd may leap a dark horse to upset pre-tourney dope and carry home the trophy.

"The 1924 tourney should be especially attractive to out-state golfers," says Secretary Merle Rathburn of the Nebraska association. "They will not only have an opportunity to qualify for the places in the 'favored ninety-six' but those remaining will help make up a special flight composed entirely of golfers living outside Lincoln and Omaha.

"I look for a large crowd here for the state tournament. Inquires are already coming in from all sections of the state and the 1924 classic promises to be a representative tournament."

The entry fee per player will be $4. Team entry fee will be $5, while a fee of $2 will be charged for doubles.

Golfers will qualify Monday and Tuesday, June 2 and 3. The Lincoln Country club course will probably be open for practice rounds four or five days before the opening of the state tourney.

A glittering array of twenty-five prizes will be distributed at the end of the tourney.

The best 96 scores in the medal round will qualify for the tournament play. The best 32 scores will land in the championship flight, the sixteen losers in the first round matches dropping back in a consolation flight.

The second best 32 scores will place in the president's flight, the sixteen losers in first round matches dropping back into the vice president's flight. The third best 32 scores place in the secretary's flight, the sixteen losers in the first round matches dropping back into the director's flight.

In addition there will be club team matches, an Omaha-Lincoln match, inter-city matches and doubles. Outstate golfers failing to place in the first 96 will be grouped in an outstate flight.

Giants Spurt Ahead Of Boston's Braves

NEW YORK, April 19—Joe Genewich of the Braves was lenient with the Giants toward the close of today's contest and the champions scored in the eighth and ninth to annex a 3 to 2 victory. Giant fans welcomed Dave Bancroft, former New York shortstop, returning as manager of the Braves. The score:

DUNDEE ENIGMA OF GLOVE SPORT

NEW YORK, April 19.—In ring history it is difficult to find a single warrior of the countless legions who remotely approaches Johnny Dundee in that which is called enigmatical.

Seven years ago this Italian pinwheel, having fought for seven years, was knocked out by Willie Jackson. A sportive world felt that his best days were back beyond the hill of yesteryear; that he then must take the short trail that leads to fistic oblivion.

But Dundee, suffering then the first knockout of his career, made a comeback that not only was wonderful but utterly amazing. He proved, by whipping Jackson frequently in the years that followed, that the Jackson triumph was but a fluke.

Time passes. Dundee's years as a fighter stretched along far beyond the allotted time for any athlete. Yet there seemed to be no lessening of his boundless energy; no slip-back from greatness; no skidding of his tremendous durability; no loss of his power to take punishment and still carry on to victory.

Took Title from Criqui.

In his fifteenth year as a ringman, he fought around 135 pounds one nights. A few weeks later he easily made the featherweight limit and won the world's title in spectacular fashion from Eugene Criqui.

Then came the night when he fought Jack Bernstein for the world's junior lightweight championship. Dundee disported poorly; seemed lacking in much that had made him famed and famous. Bernstein, in the opinion of the majority of critics, won the bout by the proverbial 5,280 feet. But Dundee was given the decision—and so annexed another crown.

After the fight was done, one of the best fight experts in America stated that the time had come for Dundee to retire; that, of a sudden, the years had exacted their toll from him; that the ravages of age, long deferred, finally had seeped into his muscles and his bones, and that it was the better thing that he should fight no more, lest serious injury come to him.

Advised to Retire.

"No truer words were ever spoken," was the comment concerning that article from thousands who had seen Dundee in the Bernstein fight.

If ever it looked as though Dundee had made a mistake, it certainly looked so then. Moran, tough, rugged and aggressive, was a veteran himself, but through the winter he has been fighting in cyclonic fashion. He knocked out Charlie White; he knocked out Johnny Shugrue; he whipped every other man who faced him.

Took Moran to Trimming.

And so this swift traveling Moran went up against the "all-in" Dundee—with this result:

Dundee punched and pounded Moran all around the ring for 15 rounds. Moran, who had showered every other foeman with volleys of blows, found Dundee a phantom on defense. Moran, who easily had dodged the heavy leads of White, the slashing drives of Shugrue and the fire of other men, simply could not avoid a single lead that was made that night by Dundee.

Two months ago this battle-scarred Dundee was regarded as not merely beyond his best years, but in a condition where further fighting might prove either mentally or physically fatal to him.

On Leonard's Trail.

And now he stands forth alone as a foeman for Benny Leonard, king of all the lightweights; he has conquered every bit of opposition that stood in his pathway and Leonard must give him battle—or create the belief that, old as is Dundee, and battle worn though he is, he fears to meet him in a battle for the throne of the 135-pounders.

In all ring history there never was a time—and none ever will come again—when a fighter, after 15 years of battling, holds two world's titles and is a possibility to win a third.

Chance Forced To Quit As Manager; Evers In Command

CHICAGO, April 19—Johnny Evers has been appointed manager of the Chicago White Sox to replace Frank Chance, incapacitated by illness.

Chance, who has been ill for a long time, was ordered to California today.

It had been forecast for several months that Chance would not lead the Sox because of his condition was too delicate to permt his active participation. Today the doctor told Chance to go back to California as soon as possible and Chance decided to obey the order.

Evers was acting manager of the team during the spring training and has been in command since the opening of the regular season.

SILER FEARLESS AS RING REFEREE

Famous Arbiter of 30 Years Ago Had Nerves of Iron And Heart of Steel.

Referees of prize ring duels of this era line care-free lives in comparison with fistic arbitrators of long ago.

A generation or two ago the ring official always went within the roped arena realizing that, in the end, he might suffer mobbing injury and perhaps death at the hands of the mobs who had backed the ultimate loser to win the battle. Every effort was made to brow-beat referees into certain decisions and those who refused often were beaten for their fearlessness and their honesty.

Of all the referees of other days none was more courageous, none more honorable than George Siler, who was in his hey day during the '80s and '90s. When honest men fought each other they would have no other man than Siler, realizing that the ruling he made would be honest.

Somewhere along in 1891 two heavyweights, Pat Killen and Bob Ferguson, men in a finish fight outside of Chicago, wearing two-ounce gloves. The battle ground was a secret spot, inasmuch as the Chicago civic rules then barred such fighting.

Lugged Guns and Knives.

As the men stepped into the ring, it was discovered that the original referee and failed to put in an appearance. He had a reason. For the crowd was made up mainly of representatives of the Killen and Ferguson gangs and gunmen in Chicago.

Every rival gangman had a revolver and some carried knives in addition.

Siler was influenced to referee the bout by Chicago newspaper men, who knew that if he didn't the match would fall through.

In the second round Ferguson was in a bad way. After about two minutes of fighting had been recorded, the cry of "time" was heard. The fighters ceased battling. But Siler realizing that the call had not come from the timekeeper, but that one of the Ferguson gang had uttered it, ordered the fighters to continue.

Killen, thereupon, rushed in and hit Ferguson a terrific right hand body punch. Just then the bell rang. The Ferguson crowd howled "fowl," and the Killenites bellowed "you're a lot of liars."

In a second a free-for-all fight was on.

One of Ferguson's seconds grabbed a chair, swung it out of the ring and smashed a Killen supporter on the head. Several of the hoodlums whipped out revolvers and cracked heads with the butts. Frank Ware, chief second for Ferguson, rushed over at Siler and threatened his life. Siler, cool and collected, told Ware to "go right ahead." Siler then backed up into a corner and squared away for the threatened fight but Ware changed his mind.

Forced Fighters to Resume.

When "time" was called for the third round, the battle royal was still going on, but Siler had succeeded in clearing the ring. Then he forced the fighters to resume their glove battle.

During the rest of the fight every man possessed of a gun or knife war around the ring, holding the weapons in readiness for instant use. The ring was on the turf. One fellow with a knife ten inches long, pricked Siler's back whenever he got the chance and would threaten "if Ferguson loses, I'll ram this through you."

But every time he jabbed Siler with the knife, Siler would jam an elbow into the fellow's stomach. Shouts of "kill the referee" and "jab a shiv (knife) through him" never worried Siler.

Siler Defied the Mob.

Killen knocked out Ferguson in the sixth. As Siler declared Killen the winner, Ferguson's supporters threatened that they were going to kill Siler. And then Siler gave an exhibition of courage that ever was equalled.

Scorning to jump out of the ring from a neutral corner, he walked across to Ferguson's corner and elbowed his way right through the infuriated Ferguson crowd. Although a dozen men tried to halt him with guns and knives, Siler continued and never deviated from his course.

When Siler had cleared the crowd and was on his way to the station, a shot was fired at him. Others followed. But Siler never turned back to look, nor did he run to cover. More shots followed. But none hit Siler. Having arrived at the train Siler, instead of getting into the car with the Killen followers, climbed into the Ferguson car and remained there during the entire trip to Chicago.

Illinois Wins Cinder Meet From Bears

BERKELEY, Cal., April 19.—The University of Illinois got revenge on the University of California for past defeats on the track when, with the best team the Illini ever turned out, the middle western conference indoor champions ran away with a dual track meet here today 72 1-3 to 58 2-3.

Captain Neufeldt, California weightman; Evans, the Illinois sprinter, and Brownell, champion pole vaulter of Illinois, were the heroes of the meet.

Neufeldt, Witter and Laing accounted for every point in the weights, Neufeldt taking both first places.

Evans took first place in both dashes, running the 220-yard dash in 21 3-5 seconds, only 2-5 of a second behind the inter-collegiate record.

Brownell stayed in the pole event after his right shoulder, which had been bothering him, almost refused to function. Time and time again he soared over the crossbar, to come back to the bench holding the arm to his side. It was a splendid exhibition of gameness and he won the event.

Boston Runner Breaks Record For Marathon

BOSTON, April 19.—Clarence Demar of Boston, the grand old man of long distance running today shattered the world's record in winning for the fourth time the annual B. A. A. Marathon. The distance had been extended to twenty-six miles, 385 yards to conform with Olympic requirements and Demar covered the distance in two hours, twenty-nine minutes, forty and one-fifth seconds.

Charles ("Chuck") Mellor of the Illinois A. C., Chicago, finished second in 2 hours 34 minutes and 4 2-4 seconds.

The world's record, established at the Olympic meet of 1920, by Hans Kolhmainien was 2 hours 32 minutes 35 4-5 seconds.

Louis Tikkanen, Finnish-American A. C. New York, set the pace for the first part of the race, but by the time the runners had reached Wellesley, the half way point, Demar had taken the lead and he was never headed.

Mellor, Churchill and Wendling had a hard fight for second place all the way in from Wellesley. Zuna had crept up into fourth place shortly before stomach trouble forced him to quit.

Hubbard Near to Record.

OHIO STADIUM, Columbus, O.—April 19.—Dehart Hubbard, sensational negro athlete of University of Michigan, came within a quarter of an inch of establishing a new world's record for the running broad jump here this afternoon.

In an exhibition jump, which featured the annual Ohio relays, conducted under the auspices of the athletic department of Ohio state university, Hubbard made 25 feet 2⅞ inches.

Lincoln Pro Plans Nine-Hole Course For Seward Club

Seward is busy building a new golf course which promises to be one of the leading nine-hole courses in this section of the state. The new course was laid out by Norman Sommers, Lincoln Country club professional, and will be 3,235 yards in length.

The Seward club has purchased a 73-acre tract southwest of the city and is turning 53 acres of this plot into the present course, leaving room for enlarging the course at a later date.

The new course has already been graded and seeded and Seward fans are looking forward to playing on their new links in the near future.

The new course, as laid out by "Pro" Sommers, is a beautiful bit of golfing architecture, the line following the Blue river with several of the greens near the stream. Length of the holes follow:

FATES FICKLE IN DIAMOND PASTIME

Most of the Stars Started In One Position; Won Fame In New Position.

Almost unusual thing about baseball is that the men who have gained undying fame in one position started their careers elsewhere.

Babe Ruth, achieving immortality as a home run hitter, began as a pitcher. Had he remained so he never would have become king of all the sluggers, because a pitcher rarely figures in more than 25 or 30 games per season.

George Sisler, regarded by many as the greatest all around first baseman that ever lived, was a pitcher during his college days and really did pitch early in his big league career.

Honus Wagner, premier of all the shortstops of any era, was an outfielder for a number of years—and became a shortstop by accident. And Larry Lajoie, perhaps the greatest of all second basemen, was originally a catcher.

Wallace Once A Pitcher.

Bobby Wallace, who knew few superiors at third and short, was a pitcher who was sent to third one day to fill the gap made by accident. He played so brilliantly in his debut that he never afterward was permitted to go back into the box.

Hughie Jennings wasn't sure whether he wanted to pe a catcher or a first baseman. All that he was sure apout in his early days was that he could NOT play shortstop. Yet he eventually became one of the most remarkable of all shortfielders.

Kid Gleason is best remember because of his brilliant play at second. Yet the "Kid" was a pitcher for many years and took up second base play only after his slinging arm went wrong.

Tenney First Back of Bat.

Fred Tenney, wonder first baseman of long ago, started as a catcher. So did Frank Chance, who now is remembered only because of his great work around the keystone sack. Charlie "Duke" Farrell, ranked as one of the greatest of backstops, began as an infielder. Mike Donlin was a pitcher before John McGraw made an outfielder out of him.

Joe Wood, who outfielded for the Indians for several years, was a pitcher at the start. Jimmy Calahan of the old Chicago White Sox was a pitcher, but became one of the greatest of outfielders.

Johnny Ward, captain and shortstop of the Giants of 40 years ago, started as a pitcher. He was a wonder on the mound for several years. Then his arm went wobbly. He tried the infield and quickly came to be known as the greatest infielder of his generation.

Lange ex-Backstopper.

Bill Lange, outfieding marvel, was a catcher. Lave Cross of the Athletics of 20 years ago was a catcher before he gained unforgettable glory as an infielder. And Captain Adrian Anson played second, short and the outfield indifferently before he took real rank as one of the greatest of all first basemen.

Frankie Frisch was a third baseman before he took rank as one of the greatest second sackers in balldom. Rogers Hornsby played short until he found that second base was his real station in life. Max Carey was a shortstop. So was Eddie Collins. Harry Heilman, now an outfielder, was a first baseman.

McInnis Started at Short.

"Stuffy" McInnis was a shortstop when he played his first season for the Athletics. Eddie Roush originally was a pitcher. Bill Wambsganss was a shortstop. Ross Young, one of the outfielding stars of the National league, was a second baseman. Mordecai Brown was a third baseman. Billy Sullivan started as an infielder and became world famous at a catcher.

Those are only a few of the mighty legion of players who started in one position and then began to write their names indelibly in the pages of baseball history because of their greatness elsewhere.

nexed six state championships. S. Blaine Young and Frank H. Gaines, both of the Omaha Country club, twice won the title.

But times have changed since the first tournament was held in 1905. Twenty years ago the golf clubs in Nebraska could have been counted on a couple of hands, now the total has topped the hundred mark and going strong.

Several years ago the personnel of the championship flight was made up entirely of Omaha players. Last year Lincoln and Norfolk players broke the ice, with Grand Island, Fremont and Columbus golfers knocking at the door.

In 1924 it may be a different story for the caliber of game displayed by out-state players have been improving by leaps and bounds, and out from the herd may leap a dark horse to upset pre-tourney dope and carry home the trophy.

"The 1924 tourney should be especially attractive to out-state golfers," says Secretary Merle Rathburn of the Nebraska association. "They will not only have an opportunity to qualify for the places in the 'favored ninety-six' but those remaining will help make up a special flight composed entirely of golfers living outside Lincoln and Omaha.

"I look for a large crowd here for the state tournament. Inquires are already coming in from all sections of the state and the 1924 classic promises to be a representative tournament."

The entry fee per player will be $4. Team entry fee will be $5, while a fee of $2 will be charged for doubles.

Golfers will qualify Monday and Tuesday, June 2 and 3. The Lincoln Country club course will probably be open for practice rounds four or five days before the opening of the state tourney.

A glittering array of twenty-five prizes will be distributed at the end of the tourney.

The best 96 scores in the medal round will qualify for the tournament play. The best 32 scores will land in the championship flight, the sixteen losers in the first round matches dropping back in a consolation flight.

The second best 32 scores will place in the president's flight, the sixteen losers in first round matches dropping back into the vice president's flight. The third best 32 scores place in the secretary's flight, the sixteen losers in the first round matches dropping back into the director's flight.

In addition there will be club team matches, an Omaha-Lincoln match, inter-city matches and doubles. Out-state golfers failing to place in the first 96 will be grouped in an out-state flight.

ESSEX BUSINESS SHOWS BIG GAIN

C. A. Lord Says, Present Year Promises to Be Record-Breaker.

Double As Many Cars Sold As In 1923 Despite Talk Of Slack Times.

"Our Essex business to date this year has been double as many cars as in 1923, which was itself a record-breaker," declares C. A. Lord of Lord Auto Co., Houdson and Essex distributor

"Despite any talk of slack times, our volume of business has gone ahead on a scale of unprecedented improvement.

"Now that spring is here, and with it is the customary rush for cars, we feel conservative in saying that buyers had better place their orders now i fthey want to be sure of the delivery of an Essex car.

"We want every motorist to recognize clearly the identity of Hudson-Essex and the type of car known as the coach. The coach is Hudson-Essex, and Hudson-Essex is the coach.

"The Society of Automotive Engineers now has recognize the coach, and has formally defined it as a distinctive type. But the best definition is the one given by Hudson-Essex when they invented the coach. It is a car which gives closed car comforts at open car cost.

Cars of Best Pattern.

"There is a Hudson coach and an Essex coach. They are just alike in their comfort, their durability and their all-season usefulness. The Essex is just so much Hudson, and a man can make up his mind on whether to buy a Hudson or Essex coach purely on the issue of how much he wishes to pay.

"The coach is an exclusive Hudson-Essex product. Despite the popularity of Hudson-Essex open cars and the Hudson sedan, the coach is the car which makes up the very great bulk of Hudson-Essex business.

"We do not know who started this talk about a lull in the automobile business. Certainly Hudson-Essex has not felt it. The fact probably is that the motoring public has become more discriminating in its choice, and a few lines which best meet the public's preference have been getting the big mass of the whole business. Every intelligent observer has known right along that this would be a highly competitive year.

"But for Hudson-Essex—why, the pace was never before so fast."

Balloon Tire Is Part of Equipment On Cleveland Six

"Due to extra long, resilient springs and a specially designed spring mounting, the Cleveland Six has always been known as a comfortable riding car but now that balloon tires are specified as optional equipment with the 1924 Cleveland line, it is anticipated by factory engineers that the Cleveland Six will afford even greater riding comfort," says The Card-Adams Co., local Cleveland Six distributor.

"For years it has been generally admitted that tires with low inflation gave more satisfactory riding comfort than those with high inflation but the 'hitch' came with regard to service.

"The balloon tire has a large section, thinner walls and is designed to provide ideal riding comfort, at approximately the same cost as the ordinary tire. Manufacturers at this time advocate that with balloon tires a motor car has less chance of rear-end skids, and much greater efficiency in braking action due to the increased contact area of balloon tires.

"The improved appearance of Cleveland cars equipped with balloon tires, together with the other advantages of this type of tire, gives rise to the belief that balloon tires will be exceedingly popular with buyers of Cleveland cars during 1924," they conclude.

Dodge Brothers Set New Record For Week's Sales

Dodge Brothers have again established a new record for retail deliveries.

During the week ending April 5, 5,694 cars were placed in the hands of buyers by Dodge Brothers dealers. This exceeded the best previous week's deliveries by more than 100 cars. The former record was made the week of May 7, 1923.

In making these figures public, Dodge Brothers emphasize the fact that they represent actual retail deliveries to users, not factory production. They have an accurate system which gives them a weekly check on the exact number of cars in transit, in dealer's stock and weekly deliveries to users. Deliveries to users, they point out, rather than production, is the real basis for judging business conditions.

Not only was the week of April 5 a record breaker, according to the factory's official figures, but the entire period dating from December 1, 1923, when the production of the present new types of Dodge Brothers cars began reaching large proportions, shows a tremendous gain in retail deliveries over the corresponding period of the previous year. The first quarter of 1924, in fact, was 21 per cent greater than first quarter of 1923. Every week of this quarter was far ahead of the corresponding week of the year before.

Despite the great increase in production which makes these deliveries possible—Dodge Brothers are now building close to 1,000 cars a day—the stock of cars in dealers' hands available for delivery to customers, is lower than ever before during any corresponding period since Dodge Brothers attained a real volume production.

Early Demand Is Cause Car Shortage and Price Increase

DETROIT, Mich., April 19.—Upward price tendencies of six-cylinder automobiles in the $1,000 field indicates a shortage in cars of this price because of a heavy early spring demand, states Harry M. Jewett, president of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car company.

Asked as to possibilities of an increase in the price of the Jewett, the Paige company president said:

"We note that three of our competitors in the $1,000 field have been forced to increase their prices. Certainly this indicates the present tendency. It is our fixed policy to give the public the biggest possible dollars worth, to operate on a reasonable margin of profit and to avoid price increases.

"We have seen many indications of a shortage of six-cylinder cars in the popular priced field during the coming spring.

"Every possible effort has been made to make certain that we can supply quality cars at reasonable prices. The wise buyer should recognize that there is likely to be a spring shortage of desirable makes of motor cars and that the price tendency is sharply upwards."

Car Inspection From Back Seat.

To become thoroughly acquainted with the action of a car, the owner or driver should ride on the back seat while someone else is operating. By careful inspection, a lot of noises will be heard that would not come to the driver's attention because of the noise of the engine. Loose spring bolts and spring clips rattle, and excessive humming can be noticed from the differential and pinion gears. From the rear seat, it will be noticed if the brakes are not properly adjusted because of the swaying of the car. Among the other things noticed in the back seat is the manner in which power is transmitted too quickly to the rear, which causes the head to be jerked back suddenly.

600 PUNCTURES BUT STILL FULL OF AIR

A new puncture-proof inner tube has been introduced in Chicago which was punctured 600 times without the loss of any air. Motorists can increase their tire mileage over 12,000 miles by using this tube without removing it from the wheel. It costs no more than the ordinary tube. If you are interested you can write Mr. H. J. Gates at 9 West Illinois street, Chicago, for full information as he wants these tubes introduced everywhere. Wonderful opportunity for agents—Simply send name, a post card will do.—Advertisement.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Back Fire Peril.

An automobile will catch fire more quickly from back fire than from any other cause. Too lean a mixture fed to the cylinders will produce a sheet of flame from the air intake of the carburetor.

Remove Tar Spots.

Vaseline, if given reasonable time, will soften tar spots. When these have been softened, wash away the grease spots with a mild soap, and make sure all soapy water is rinsed off before it dries, otherwise, it will leave spots.

Overcoming Brake Trouble.

Examine the brakes. Determine that they are free and do not drag with lever and pedal released, and that they hold with pressure even when pedal is depressed or lever drawn back. Brakes should be so adjusted that the car can be brought to a stop without grabbing.

Eliminate Annoying Noises.

A motorist should train his ears for any existing rattles, especially when the car is traveling at different speeds. Many annoying noises coming from doors, hood, fenders and shock absorbers can be stopped and the riding value of the car can be increased greatly.

A Tire Tip.

Save tires by avoiding driving on the shoulder of the road. This is the ledge where the cement ends and the earth and gravel commence. The rough surface will cut the tires and a little care will obviate the necessity of traveling much on this portion of the highway.

Good Manners on the Road.

It is not only a serious breach of motoring etiquette but also a violation of the laws of a majority of the state to speed up and attempt to race a car which has signalled its intention of passing to the left. The moment the horn is sounded behind, draw as far as possible to the right without endangering the car, and let the other driver pass.

Washing the Car.

Use plenty of water when washing the car, but not at high pressure. Much force to the stream will drive grit into the varnish; it will also drive water into cracks and joints where it will do damage. Wooden parts will not hold together well if water is constantly forced into the joints. Let the hard mud spots have time to soften by soaking. Do not rub them off, if at all possible, but should it be necessary, do it gently. Grease spots should be removed with a soapy cloth. Avoid lye soap, as it will deaden the varnish. The result of the wash will depend much upon the final wiping given the car. Never use hot water.

Proper Way to Fill Radiator.

Inefficient handling of the cooling system is not always caused by a defect in the system, but frequently by an improper method of filling the radiator. If the radiator is completely empty, the water should not be poured in at a rapid rate, as this tends to form air pockets which prevent the water from circulating. On forced circulation systems the outlet at the water pumps should first be opened, while on the thermosyphon system the drain cock should be opened. The water should then be poured in until it passes out of the per cock. This permits the air to escape as the water enters, preventing the formation of pockets.

Importance of Wheel Care.

As the wheels of a motor car are under strain at sharp turning of corners and similar driving emergency, it is well to periodically check over the condition of the wheels and tighten the loose flange nuts. Creaking of the wheels when this is neglected is an audible warning that trouble is ahead unless this detail is looked after.

In Case of Emergency.

An emergency repair to the radiator hose can be made by cutting an inner tube in long sheets and wrapping it around the hose. Though it may not be desirable to cut a tube, nevertheless the cost of a new tube will frequently be less than the towing or services from the nearest garage, not to mention the inconvenience which may be avoided.

Headlights.

A lamp should be strong enough to throw the light ahead of a car so the driver can see objects in the road 20 feet away.

Never drive a "one-eyed" car.

Carry extra bulbs in the car.

See that the lens is kept right side up.

Make frequent tests on the focus of the lamps.

The light should have sufficient spread so that people walking along the side of the road can be seen.

Lamps should be equipped with a lens which will prevent glare in the eyes of the person who is approaching the car.

When cleaning the running gear parts it is advisable to use a wire brush.

If you keep a schedule of battery examinations, you will never find yourself without lights or unable to start, or with a battery worn out before its time.

The different connections of an automobile or truck, just as the different climates necessitate the wearing of different clothing, require different kinds of packing.

A creaking noise which sounds like a loose wheel when starting from a standstill may be caused by engaging the clutch too harshly. To prevent this noise let the clutch in easier.

Faulty ignition or carburetor and the improper functioning of the valves will cause misfiring. Very irregular misfiring is usually caused by poor carburetion, but may also result from dirty breaker points.

A hood that has a tendency to rattle with the vibration of the motor may be silenced by drilling a series of holes in the band of metal, on which the hood rests, and threading a strip of leather through the holes.

Wheel bearings that have been too tightly adjusted will burn out quickly

Note operation of clutch and whether there is excessive play in clutch pedal.

Always remove tools or inventory them, when taking car into a strange garage.

Wheels of new cars require less toeing in than the wheels of cars already limbered up.

Test the steering gear to see that it does not bind at any point and is thoroughly lubricated.

Before washing a car, remove mats and side curtains, and then brush top seats, etc., with whisk.

Always make a lot of noise when backing the car, to attract the attention of anyone who may be in its path.

Cadillac Dealer Declares Business Is Satisfactory

According to Harry Williams, the Cadillac man, there is no room for complaint at this time. People seem to be more determined in their purchasing than in former years. They have thought seriously about the permanency of their automobile purchase. He says:

"The used car business has been quite satisfactory but there is room for improvement. The great amount of road work that has been done and is now in process in Nebraska is responsible for the better conditions in the high grade automobile business. People are driving more and consequently getting more use out of their cars.

"We have a number of unfilled orders on our books at this time and the possibilities are that there will be an actual shortage of Cadillacs this year. The factory is working on a schedule of 100 cars per day and is now short on a number of different types. New V-63s were delivered last week to E. E. Henkle of Henkle and Joyce Hardware Co., Mrs Caroline Rudge and Mr. J. E Wiedeman of this city."

CHADRON NORMAL NOTES.

Dan VanIngen, who will complete his work in the high school course this semester, has been appointed cadet to West Point representing Nebraska at large.

Clara Chaulk Leech, '19, has accepted a position in the Gordon high school for the next year.

The Truth

About this Light-Six—plus proof on proof

THIS Studebaker Light-Six is the supreme value in the "thousand-dollar" class.

It offers, not a few, but scores of advantages. In its chassis it represents the best that modern engineering knows. In its steels and quality of construction it is identical with the costliest cars we build.

This is to offer you proofs. Then urge that you see it before paying $1,000 or more for a car.

Some evidence

The extra values which this car typifies have made Studebaker the largest builder of quality cars.

They have made these cars a sensation. Sales have almost trebled in three years. Last year 145,167 people paid $201,000,000 for Studebaker cars.

The multiplying demand has forced an investment of $50,000,000 in model plants and equipment. Of this, $38,000,000 has been spent in the past five years, so the plants are up-to-date.

The engineering department which designs and superintends this Light-Six costs $500,000 per year.

The machines which build it are modern and exact. 517 operations on this car are exact to 1/1000th of an inch. 122 operations are exact to one-half 1/10000th of an inch.

1,200 inspectors are employed to submit each car in the making to 32,000 inspections.

Infinite care

The steels are selected from 35 formulas, each one proved best by years of test for its purpose. On some we pay the makers 15% premium to get them exactly right.

The crankshafts are machined on all surfaces, as was done in the Liberty Airplane Motors. This to give perfect motor balance, at an extra cost to us of $600,000 yearly.

It has more Timken bearings than any other competitive car within $1,500 of its price.

The equipment is unusual. The cushions are of genuine leather, and are ten inches deep.

Every part and detail accords with Studebaker traditions. And the name Studebaker has for 72 years stood for quality and class.

Mark this result

Some men who operate fleets of cars in this class called in auditors to compare the operating costs. They made comparisons on 329 cars, running up to 25,000 miles.

It was found that this Studebaker Light-Six cost for operation 11.4% less than the average of its rivals. This figure included depreciation. That meant $207.50 saved on 25,000 miles. All because of this quality construction.

ESSEX BUSINESS SHOWS BIG GAIN

C. A. Lord Says Present Year Promises to Be Record-Breaker.

Double As Many Cars Sold As In 1923 Despite Talk Of Slack Times.

"Our Essex business to date this year has been double as many cars as in 1923, which was itself a record-breaker," declares C. A. Lord of Lord Auto Co., Houdson and Essex distributor

"Despite any talk of slack times, our volume of business has gone ahead on a scale of unprecedented improvement.

"Now that spring is here, and with it is the customary rush for cars, we feel conservative in saying that buyers had better place their orders now i fthey want to be sure of the delivery of an Essex car.

"We want every motorist to recognize clearly the identity of Hudson-Essex and the type of car known as the coach. The coach is Hudson-Essex, and Hudson-Essex is the coach.

"The Society of Automotive Engineers now has recognize the coach, and has formally defined it as a distinctive type. But the best definition is the one given by Hudson-Essex when they invented the coach. It is a car which gives closed car comforts at open car cost.

Cars of Best Pattern.

"There is a Hudson coach and an Essex coach. They are just alike in their comfort, their durability and their all-season usefulness. The Essex is just so much Hudson, and a man can make up his mind on whether to buy a Hudson or Essex coach purely on the issue of how much he wishes to pay.

"The coach is an exclusive Hudson-Essex product. Despite the popularity of Hudson-Essex open cars and the Hudson sedan, the coach is the car which makes up the very great bulk of Hudson-Essex business.

"We do not know who started this talk about a lull in the automobile business. Certainly Hudson-Essex has not felt it. The fact probably is that the motoring public has become more discriminating in its choice, and a few lines which best meet the public's preference have been getting the big mass of the whole business. Every intelligent observer has known right along that this would be a highly competitive year.

"But for Hudson-Essex—why, the pace was never before so fast."

Balloon Tire Is Part of Equipment On Cleveland Six

"Due to extra long, resilient springs and a specially designed spring mounting, the Cleveland Six has always been known as a comfortable riding car but now that balloon tires are specified as optional equipment with the 1924 Cleveland line, it is anticipated by factory engineers that the Cleveland Six will afford even greater riding comfort," says The Card-Adams Co., local Cleveland Six distributor.

"For years it has been generally admitted that tires with low inflation gave more satisfactory riding comfort than those with high inflation but the 'hitch' came with regard to service.

"The balloon tire has a large section, thinner walls and is designed to provide ideal riding comfort, at approximately the same cost as the ordinary tire. Manufacturers at this time advocate that with balloon tires a motor car has less chance of rear-end skids, and much greater efficiency in braking action due to the increased contact area of balloon tires.

"The improved appearance of Cleveland cars equipped with balloon tires, together with the other advantages of this type of tire, gives rise to the belief that balloon tires will be exceedingly popular with buyers of Cleveland cars during 1924," they conclude.

Dodge Brothers Set New Record For Week's Sales

Dodge Brothers have again established a new record for retail deliveries.

During the week ending April 5, 5,694 cars were placed in the hands of buyers by Dodge Brothers dealers. This exceeded the best previous week's deliveries by more than 100 cars. The former record was made the week of May 7, 1923.

In making these figures public, Dodge Brothers emphasize the fact that they represent actual retail deliveries to users, not factory production. They have an accurate system which gives them a weekly check on the exact number of cars in transit, in dealer's stock and weekly deliveries to users. Deliveries to users, they point out, rather than production,, is the real basis for judging business conditions.

Not only was the week of April 5 a record breaker, according to the factory's official figures, but the entire period dating from December 1, 1923, when the production of the present new types of Dodge Brothers cars began reaching large proportions, shows a tremendous gain in retail deliveries over the corresponding period of the previous year. The first quarter of 1924, in fact, was 21 per cent greater than first quarter of 1923. Every week of this quarter was far ahead of the corresponding week of the year before.

Despite the great increase in production which makes these deliveries possible—Dodge Brothers are now building close to 1,000 cars a day—the stock of cars in dealers' hands available for delivery to customers, is lower than ever before during any corresponding period since Dodge Brothers attained a real volume production.

Early Demand Is Cause Car Shortage and Price Increase

DETROIT, Mich., April 19.—Upward price tendencies of six-cylinder automobiles in the $1,000 field indicates a shortage in cars of this price because of a heavy early spring demand, states Harry M. Jewett, president of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car company.

Asked as to possibilities of an increase in the price of the Jewett, the Paige company president said:

"We note that three of our competitors in the $1,000 field have been forced to increase their prices. Certainly this indicates the present tendency. It is our fixed policy to give the public the biggest possible dollars worth, to operate on a reasonable margin of profit and to avoid price increases.

"We have seen many indications of a shortage of six-cylinder cars in the popular priced field during the coming spring.

"Every possible effort has been made to make certain that we can supply quality cars at reasonable prices. The wise buyer should recognize that there is likely to be a spring shortage of desirable makes of motor cars and that the price tendency is sharply upwards."

Car Inspection From Back Seat.

To become thoroughly acquainted with the action of a car, the owner or driver should ride on the back seat while someone else is operating By careful inspection, a lot of noises will be heard that would not come to the driver's attention because of the noise of the engine. Loose spring bolts and spring clips rattle, and excessive humming can be noticed from the differential and pinion gears. From the rear seat, it will be noticed if the brakes are not properly adjusted because of the swaying of the car. Among the other things noticed in the back seat is the manner in which power is transmitted too quickly to the rear, which causes the head to be jerked back suddenly.

600 PUNCTURES BUT STILL FULL OF AIR

A new puncture-proof inner tube has been introduced in Chicago which was punctured 600 times without the loss of any air. Motorists can increase their tire mileage over 12,000 miles by using this tube without removing it from the wheel. It costs no more than the ordinary tube. If you are interested you can write Mr. H. J. Gates at 9 West Illinois street ,Chicago, for full information as he wants these tubes introduced everywhere. Wonderful opportunity for agents —Simply send name, a post card will do.—Advertisement.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Back Fire Peril.

An automobile will catch fire more quickly from back fire than from any other cause. Too lean a mixture fed to the cylinders will produce a sheet of flame from the air intake of the carburetor.

Remove Tar Spots.

Vaseline, if given reasonable time, will soften tar spots. When these have been softened, wash away the grease spots with a mild soap, and make sure all soapy water is rinsed off before it dries, otherwise, it will leave spots.

Overcoming Brake Trouble.

Examine the brakes. Determine that they are free and do not drag with lever and pedal released, and that they hold with pressure even when pedal is depressed or lever drawn back. Brakes should be so adjusted that the car can be brought to a stop without grabbing.

Eliminate Annoying Noises.

A motorist should train his ears for any existing rattles, especially when the car is traveling at different speeds. Many annoying noises coming from doors, hood, fenders and shock obsorbers can be stopped and the riding value of the car can be increased greatly.

A Tire Tip.

Save tires by avoiding driving on the shoulder of the road. This is the ledge where the cement ends and the earth and gravel commence. The rough surface will cut the tires and a little care will obviate the necessity of traveling much on this portion of the highway.

Good Manners on the Road.

It is not only a serious breach of motoring etiquette but also a violation of the laws of a majority of the state to speed up and attempt to race a car which has signalled its intention of passing to the left. The moment the horn is sounded behind, draw as far as possible to the right without endangering the car, and let the other driver pass.

Washing the Car.

Use plenty of water when washing the car, but not at high pressure. Much force to the stream will drive grit into the varnish; it will also drive water into cracks and joints where it will do damage. Wooden parts will not hold together well if water is constantly forced into the joints. Let the hard mud spots have time to soften by soaking. Do not rub them off, if at all possible, but should it be necessary, do it gently. Grease spots should be removed with a soapy cloth. Avoid lye soap, as it will deaden the varnish. The result of the wash will depend much upon the final wiping given the car. Never use hot water.

Proper Way to Fill Radiator.

Inefficient handling of the cooling system is not always caused by a defect in the system, but frequently by an improper method of filling the radiator. If the radiator is completely empty, the water should not be poured in at a rapid rate, as this tends to form air pockets which prevent the water from circulating. On forced circulation systems the outlet at the water pumps should first be opened, while on the thermosyphon system the drain cock should be opened. The water should then be poured in until it passes out of the pet cock. This permits the air to escape as the water enters, preventing the formation of pockets.

Importance of Wheel Care.

As the wheels of a motor car are under strain at sharp turning of corners and similar driving emergency, it is well to periodically check over the condition of the wheels and tighten the loose flange nuts. Creaking of the wheels when this is neglected is an audible warning that trouble is ahead unless this detail is looked after.

In Case of Emergency.

An emergency repair to the radiator hose can be made by cutting an inner tube in long sheets and wrapping it around the hose. Though it may not be desirable to cut a tube, nevertheless the cost of a new tube will frequently be less than the towing or services from the nearest garage, not to mention the inconvenience which may be avoided.

Headlights.

A lamp should be strong enough to throw the light ahead of a car so the driver can see objects in the road 20 feet away.

Never drive a "one-eyed" car.

Carry extra bulbs in the car.

See that the lens is kept right side up.

Make frequent tests on the focus of the lamps.

The light should have sufficient spread so that people walking along the side of the road can be seen.

Lamps should be equipped with a lens which will prevent glare in the eyes of the person who is approaching the car.

When cleaning the running gear parts it is advisable to use a wire brush.

If you keep a schedule of battery examinations, you will never find yourself without lights or unable to start, or with a battery worn out before its time.

The different connections of an automobile or truck, just as the different climates necessitate the wearing of different clothing, require different kinds of packing.

A creaking noise which sounds like a loose wheel when starting from a standstill may be caused by engaging the clutch too harshly. To prevent this noise let the clutch in easier.

Faulty ignition or carburetor and the improper functioning of the valves will cause misfiring. Very irregular misfiring is usually caused by poor carburetion, but may also result from dirty breaker points.

A hood that has a tendency to rattle with the vibration of the motor may be silenced by drilling a series of holes in the band of metal, on which the hood rests, and threading a strip of leather through the holes.

Wheel bearings that have been too tightly adjusted will burn out quickly

Note operation of clutch and whether there is excessive play in clutch pedal.

Always remove tools or inventory them, when taking car into a strange garage.

Wheels of new cars require less toeing in than the wheels of cars already limbered up.

Test the steering gear to see that it does not bind at any point and is thoroughly lubricated.

Always make a lot of noise when backing the car, to attract the attention of anyone who may be in its path.

Cadillac Dealer Declares Business Is Satisfactory

According to Harry Williams, the Cadillac man, there is no room for complaint at this time. People seem to be more determined in their purchasing than in former years. They have thought seriously about the permanency of their automobile purchase. He says:

"The used car business has been quite satisfactory but there is room for improvement. The great amount of road work that has been done and is now in process in Nebraska is responsible for the better conditions in the high grade automobile business. People are driving more and consequently getting more use out of their cars.

"We have a number of unfilled orwers on our books at this time and the possibilities are that there will be an actual shortage of Cadillacs this year. The factory is working on a schedule of 100 cars per day and is now short on a number of different types. New V-63s were delivered last week to E. E. Henkle of Henkle and Joyce Hardware Co., Mrs. Caroline Rudge and Mr. J. E. Wiedeman of this city."

CHADRON NORMAL NOTES.

Dan VanIngen, who will complete his work in the high school course this semester, has been appointed cadet to West Point representing Nebraska at large.

Clara Chaulk Leech, '19, has accepted a position in the Gordon high school for the next year.

NONPAROLABLE CASES LISTED

Included in Requests to Be Heard by Pardon Board May 13.

Plan to Transfer Cave to Prison to Serve For Jail Breaking.

Two convicts in the Nebraska penitentiary and two in the men's reformatory, all serving for non-parolable crimes of violence against the person, are on the state pardon board's list as applicants for parole to be heard at the next meeting on May 13. At nearly every session, the boards hears one or more of such illegal requests to be paroled from men who are not eligible for that form of clemency.

Those of this class slated to appear before the board in May are:

Frank Caldwell, Sheridan county, assault with intent to kill, 1 to 5 years in penitentiary sentenced October 11, 1922.

Earl Kincannon, Boone county, assault with intent to do great bodily harm, 1 to 5 years in penitentiary; sentenced December 8, 1921

George Cave, Hall county, shooting with intent to wound, 1 to 10 years in reformatory; sentenced December 15, 1922, also under conviction and penitentiary sentence of 1 to 10 years fro breaking jail at Grand Island.

Manuel Martinez, Cheyenne county, shooting with intent to kill, 1 to 3 years; sentenced February 19, 1923.

Law Clear and Specific.

While none of these men is considered a desperate criminal, and the board of pardons might find good reasop to be lenient to one or more of them, the law plainly says that anyne convicted of a crime of violence against the person, or an attempted crime of that kind, shall not be subject to parole.

If they were applying for commutation of sentence or pardon, their cases could be legally heard and acted upon But in advertising and hearing their applicatiois for parole, the board seems to be acting in total disregard of the law. Of course, a commutation cannot legally be allowed on an application for parole, or vice versa.

It will be noted that all four of the prisoners named in this connection were convicted and sentenced after the present indeterminate sentence law took effect in 1921, so that their cases cannot properly be dealt with under the former law. which did not draw the same distinction.

Would Transfer Cave.

In explanation of the proposed parole for Cave, State Probation Officer Harmon said that this is intended simply to permit his transfer to the penitentiary to begin serving his sentence there for jail-breaking. Judge B. H. Paine of Grand Island and County Attorney William Suhr of Hall county have written that they will not object to this action.

Caldwell claims to be innocent of the offense charged against him, which was breaking the skull of A. L. Spittler by hitting him with a baseball bat, during a quarrel in which he claims the latter attacked him with a piece of 2 by 4. He says he has an affidavit by a doctor who treated Spittler for a skull fracture several years prior to the altercation.

Kincannon is in the penitentiary as a result of forcing a schoolteacher to get into an automobile with him, being chased by officers and finally caught, after shots had been fired and one of his pursuers finally caught, after shots had been fired and one of his pursuers wounded in the foot. He admitted that he intended to take the young woman with him to Missouri. In his application, he says he resisted arrest "while having a spell of momentary insanity." C. A. McCloud of York has written a letter mildly endorsing his request.

Mexican Writes Good English.

According to the story of Marinez, who is a Mexican youth 25 years old, he was more sinned against than sinning when arrested and convicted in Cheyenne county. He had been "bumming" his way on a freight train and was thrown off by a brakeman near Sidney, in January, 1923. As he ran down the track, he says, the station agent saw him and began shooting, whereupon he pulled his revolver and shot back. One of the agent's bullets lodged in his left foot. The young man writes excellent English and shows good choice of words, indicating familiarity with the language.

Alfred H. Garret, convicted of embezzlement in Johnson county on two different counts, is applying for commutation and parole. His first penitentiary term started April 2, 1923, to run one year; but two months and one day have been deducted therefrom as "good time," so that the sentence was figured to have expired on February 1 this year. He is now doing his second term of 1 1-2 to 4 years, and his minimum period, with good time allowance, would not end until April 30, 1925. Garrett wants to hurry things up by having the present minimum sentence commuted so as to get around the law's requirement. He was represented at the trial by F. C. Radke, Governor Bryan's private secretary. The charges against him were in connection with his alleged failure to account for all the money he received while running a filling station for L. L. Coryell & Son at Tecumseh.

Would-Be Sleuth Up Again.

Clyde E. Bowers, serving 1 to 10 years for robbery of a companion in Lincoln, who has been in prison four and a half years, is making his second try for a parole. In 1922 he claimed to have a theory as to who committed the murder of Adrian Barstow in this city three years ago and promised to help bring the guilty person to justice if he were set at liberty. The former board declined to enter into such a bargain, and he was turned down.

Following is a list of the cases set for hearing May 13:

Penitentiary—(Paroles.)

Virgil King, Douglas, grand larceny, 1-7.

Henry Metcalf, Douglas, forgery, 1-20.

Luther Richardson, Douglas, robbery, 3-15.

Clyde Bowers, Lancaster, robbery, 1-10.

Frank Caldwell, Eheridan, assault to kill, 1-5.

Harvey Pace, Dodge, grand larceny, 1-4.

Commutations.

Men's Reformatory—(Paroles.)

John R. Condit, Douglas, stealing auto and receiving stolen auto, 1-2.

Harold Stockdale, Dawson, breaking and entering, 1-10.

Ross Stockdale, Dawson, breaking and entering, 1-10.

Claude Stockdale, Dawson, breaking and entering, 1-10.

Anthony Christopher, Greeley, auto stealing, 1-10.

Tony Collela, Greeley, auto stealing, 1-10.

John Haynes, Lincoln, burglary, 1-3.

Clarence Keeley, Gage, burglary and grand larceny, 1-5.

Napoleon Franklin, Douglas, breaking and entering, 1-7.

George Cave, Hall, shooting with intent to wound, 1-10.

Women's Reformatory—(Paroles.)

Anna Johnson, Hall, vagrancy, indeterminate.

Mrs. Lillian Howard, Lancaster, vagrancy, indeterminate.

Mary Pickford Is Planning to Retire From Films Soon

LONDON, April 19.—Mary Pickford intends to retire from the films after making three or four more pictures, she is quoted as saying in an interview published in the Sunday Express tonight.

The film star arrive dthis evening from Southhampton, is quoted by the newspaper as saying that "my type of character is practically finished."

Mary and her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, arrived at Southhampton on the Olympic this morning and reached London this evening. They were given a great welcome.

Fairbanks said they expected to spend some two or three months on the continent visiting the offices of their film distributing company. Later Doug will go to Paris, where he will be one of the officials at the opening of the Olympic games.

The couple may return to the United States by way of Siberia and Japan, although this has not been decided definitely.

A NEW LETTER FRO MHANIHARA IS SENT HUGHES

immigration, was made a subject of discussion in the senate. In the Record it is reported that some of the senators expressed the opinion, which was apparently accepted by many other members of that body, that my letter contained 'a veiled threat.' As it appears from the Record that it is the phrase 'grave consequences' which I used in the concluding part of my letter that some of the senators construed it 'a veiled threat,' I may be permitted to quote here the full text of the sentence which contained the words in question.

"Relying upon the confidence you have been good enough to show me at all times, I have stated, or rather repeated, all this to you very candidly and in a most friendly spirit, for I realize, as I believe you do, the grave consequences which the enactment of the measure retaining that particular provision would inevitably bring upon the otherwise and mutually advantageous relations between our two countries.'

"Frankly, I must say I am unable to understand how the two words, read in their context, could be construed as meaning anything like a threat. I simply tried to emphasize the most unfortunate and deplorable effect upon our traditional friendship which might result from the adoption of a particular clause in the proposed measure. It would seriously impair the good and mutually helpful relationship and disturb the spirit of mutual regard and confidence which characterizes our intercourse of the last three-quarters of a century and which was considerably strengthened by the Washington conference as well as by the most magnanimous sympathy shown by our people in the recent calamity in my country. Whereas, there is otherwise every promise of hearty co-operation between Japan and the United States, which is believed to be essential to the welfare not only of themselves, but of the rest of the world, it would create, or at least, tend to create, an unhappy atmosphere of ill-feeling and misgiving over the relations between our two countries.

Meant No Discourtesy.

"As the representative of my country, whose supreme duty is to maintain and if possible to draw still closer the bond of friendship so happily existing between our two peoples, I honestly believe such effects, as I described, to be 'grave consequences.' In using these words, which I did quite ingenuously, I had no thought of being in any way disagreeable or discourteous, and still less of conveying 'a veiled threat.' On the contrary, it was in a spirit of the most sincere respect, confidence and candor that I used these words, which spirit I hope is manifested throughout my entire letter, for it was in that spirit that I wrote you. I never suspected that these words, used as I used them, would ever afford an occasion for such comment or interpretation as have been given them.

"You know, I am sure, that nothing could be further from my thought than to give cause for offense to your people and their government. and I have not the slightest doubt that you have no such misunderstanding as to either the spirit in which the letter in question was written, or the meaning I intended for the phrase that I used therein.

"In view, however, of what has transpired in the course of the public discussion in the senate, I feel constrained to write you as a matter of record that I did not use the phrase in question in such a sense as has been attributed.

"I am, my dear Mr. Secretary, yours very truly,

"M. HANIHARA."

Answer of Hughes.

The Hughes letter follows:

"My dear Mr. Ambassador:

"I am gratified to receive your letter of the seventeenth instant with your frank and friendly explanation of the intent of your recent note. It gives me pleasure to be able to assure you that reading the words 'grave consequence' in the light of their context, and knowing the spirit of friendship and understanding you have always manifested in our long association, I had no doubt that these words were to be taken in the sense you have stated, and I was quite sure that it was far from your thoughts to express or imply any threats. I am happy to add that I have deeply appreciated your constant desire to promote the most cordial relations between the peoples of the two countries.

"With high esteem, I am, my dear Mr. Hanihara, very sincerely yours,

"CHARLES E. HUGHES."

ENGINEER SHOW BEING PREPARED

Exhibits Arranged for Display in Windows of Seven Downtown Stores.

Freak Experiments, Architectural Drawing, Radio Power Included.

Student engineers of the University of Nebraska have prepared a series of window displays in downtown store windows. Each of the seven departments have obtained a window and have arranged an exhibit for it.

Chemical engineers in Farquhar's window have fixed a device which generates a vivid red liquid when two colorless streams meet in the air. Also a ball will be suspended in midair, seemingly without support. Other exhibits of chemical nature will fill the window.

The electrical department will bring to life Andy Gump's campaign for office and will back him to the last kilowatt. In addition to supporting Andy an experiment in the latest triumph of radio art, transmission of power, will be preformed in Miller and Paine's window. Students at WFAV will transmit enough power to light an ordinary electric globe. The wave length is very low so that radio outfits over the city will not be destroyed by the power.

The agriqultural engineers have furnished a display of models. A well planned farm will be the largest display. This will represent the latest ideas in farm management. It is said that it contanls ideas which if put into practice would mean many thousands of dollars to the Nebraska farmer.

A model of the first suspension bridge will be put on display at Mayer Bros. company by the civil engineers. The original bridge was built by primitive men. A miniature of the cement plant used in erecting the stadium will be on display.

Ten Pot dome oil well models will be exhibited in Huffman Furniture company's window by geology students. This model as an enterprise is guaranteed to be honestly promoted. A large collection of geological exhibits will be on display.

Drawings of all sorts of architecture will be shown in the window prepared by the architectural engineers.

Mechanical engineers are to have a display of liquid air in one of the windows. An air machine will run mechanical models. The display will also include many articles of mechanical engineering.

SUBURB IMPROVES FIRE PROTECTION

Uni. Place Building Reservoir to Hold Half Million Gallons Water.

Work is half finished on the new University Place reservoir, and C. O. Bickel, contractor for that and other improvements in the city's water system, states that it will probably be ready for use in a little over a month.

Its capacity of 500,000 gallons is expected to remove the fire menace which some feel has threatened the community, and will provide a large reserve for summer months. $30,000 contract covers it and the other improvements.

Of concrete construction, the reservoir will be 60 feet wide by 80 feet long, and about 15 feet in depth. It is to be sunk two thirds of its depth in the ground, and the earth will be graded up to cover the roof. Work men will begin pouring cement Tuesday.

A new well, 160 feet deep, has already been dug near the reservoir to help supply water, and two pumps are provided to force the water from the reservoir into the stand pipe. Both well and resevoir are located near Twelfth and Q streets.

About eleven blocks of ten and eight inch mains, to replace six inch mains now used in the business district, will soon be put in. Some new hydrants and valves are also included in the contract.

Brings Family To Lincoln In Traveling House

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Harkey, who once lived in Arkansas but who for the last six months have carried their home around with them, are visiting with their children, Virginia, 2, and John Henry, jr., 6, at the home of Mrs. Harkey's sister, Mrs. Pearl Manrose, 2755 Pear street.

The home consists of a specially built body mounted on the chassis of a Reo speed wagon at a total cost of $3,500. Its equipment includes all sorts of conveniences, from showers bath to gas stove, and in it the family comfortably lived during weather this winter when the thermometer showed 26 below zero.

Mr. Harkey tied a Ford, and, by means of an especially devised iron bar, trails it behind the home while on the move. By thus occasionally moving his base of supplies, he easily covers a wide territory in the small car.

Virginia, of course, does not go to school, and she remembers practically no other home than the car, but John Henry, does. He has become so accustomed to moving declares his father, that on arrival in a new town, his first question is "where is the school." He is now attending Hartley.

The family expects to continue their visit here for a week or more.

Easter Pageant at University Place

The University Place Methodist church will present the Easter pageant, "The City Beautiful," at the church Sunday evening, beginning at 7:30. The pageant has as its central thought the "Redeemed City." The play opens with the triumphal entry of David into Jerusalem and continues through six scenes. In the last two scenes justice, righteousness and love prevail over evil, cruelty, ignorance and crime.

Nearly 100 people will take part in the pageant. The public is invited.

Bottle of Furniture Polish Is Beginning of Romance and Difficulty for Mrs. Wallace

And that's how her romance and all the trouble that came with it began, she told Judge Stewart Saturday in di strict court. This is her story, as told in court:

Mrs. Balster, who is 54 years old, lives in Normal, just south of Bailey's Green Gables sanitarium. One day in November, 1921, a stranger came to the door selling furniture polish.

She liked him

In fact she was so impressed with his personality that she invited him to dinner the next Sunday. He came. When she knew him better, she liked him even more. So, about a week later the stranger, Alva M. Wallace, moved into Mrs. Balster's home as a roomer and boarder. He brought with him his son and daughter-in-law.

Helps Sell Polish.

Mrs. Balster felt that she would like to help the new rooner as much as possible so she went with him on his trips selling furniture polish.

In Fremont, in the summer of '22, Wallace was given a check for seventy-five cents by a woman who bought some of the polish. Through a mistake, the check was thought to be for $75 and Wallace was placed in the Fremont jail for some two months. Then he was released.

Mrs. Balster came home while Wallace was in jail and said that she was going to mortgage her house and the twelve lots surrounding it to get some ready cash.

Her children believed that it was to get money to help Wallace out of trouble, Clark Jeary, attorney for the children said.

Mrs. Balster said that it was because she no longer had the revenue coming in from the rent of Wallace's room and that she needed money.

The children, Robert Balster, and Verna Sanden, filed a petition in county court to have her declared incompetent. County Judge Robin R. Reid complied with their request. and appointed the Federal Trust Co., her guardian.

Mrs. Balster filed a petition to have the guardianship set aside. Judge Reid overruled the motion.

Mrs. Balster appealed to district court.

She Becomes Mrs. Wallace.

Wallace wanted to marry Mrs Balster; she was willing; but Wallace wasn't sure that he was di vorced from his f irst wife. This was cleared up, though, and Mrs. Balster became Mrs. Wallace December 29, 1923.

Since then she has been reading the Sunset magazine and has been overcome with a passionate longing to go to California. She wants to sell her property, which, she says, is worth $12,000, and go. If she is declared competent she will do it, she says.

The children object. They believe Attorney Jeary said, that she wants to give Wallace the money.

Dr. Joseph Adolphus and Dr. E. W. Rowe testified that in their belief Mrs. Wallace was perfectly sane. But they distinguished between insanity and incompetency.

The case will probably be completed next Saturday. Then it will be up to Judge Stewart to decide whether Mrs. Wallace heeds the call of Sunset magazine and the golden west or remains in Lincoln with her property still in her own name.

was awarded in March and amounted to $1,000,000 or so. Those included in the April letting were estimated by the state engineer's office to total $1,525,000, but unusually close competition by a large number of bidders scaled down the cost to something like $1,250,000. Thus, a grand total of I$2,250,000, more or less, has been contracted for up to the present time. To this must be added possibly $150,000 of expense for the biennium for engineering and supervision, which raises the total outlay under present plans to $2,400,000.

The remaining $600,000 will be available for other projects and to allow for extra items of cost on those already approved and contracted. It will be seen that the state engineer has more than an ample margin left to work on. He will be able to take care of quite a little more work before the end of the biennium, but there will be no more big general lettings. Any additional highway undertaking will be provided for one at a time, as they can be conveniently handled by the engineers and not too fast to anticipate tax collections.

Counties Meeting Federal Aid. —

Besides the $3,000,000 being jointly expended by the federal and state government on road construction in Nebraska, a number of counties are matching federal funds with their own money. State Engineer Cochran figures that another $1,000,000 will be spent in this way during the biennium, without any aid from the state. His office supervises the federal-county projects the same as it does those in which the state is directly interested.

Douglas county is furnishing $150,000 for paving rural highways leading to Omaha, and the federal government pays a like amount there. About $40,000 is being used by Lancaster county this year to secure federal aid for an equal sum on its roads and bridges. In Morrill county the cost of a $75,000 bridge over the North Platte at Broadwater is being split between the county and the federal government. Madison county is graveling 10 miles of road south of Norfolk and Otoe county is spending about $35,000 for graveled surfacing north. south and west of Nebraska City, both on a fifty-fifty basis with Uncle Sam. A few other counties are filling out their state highway apportionments with their own money, in order to get the maximum amount of federal funds.

The first state aid bridge contract awarded since 1922 will be for a steel structure over the North Platte river at Oshkosh, bids on which have been called for May 5. Its estimated cost is $75,000, of which the state pays half and Garden county the other half. State aid bridges represent an expenditure additional to that provided for highways.

Antelope Park Dance Pavilon Opens April 28

The spring opening of the Antelope park dance pavilion will be held Monday evening, April 28. Music will be furnished by "The Collegians", the orchestra which has formerly been known as "Leo Beck's" orchestra.

With the coming of the warm spring evenings the enthusiasts of the dance flock to the open air pavilions. The Antelope pavilion will be particularly attractive during the coming season. The management has spent considerable money in redecorating the interior of the pavilion. A new plush curtain has been purchased for the stage and lights have been rearranged.

The city has added to the attractiveness of the park by recent work on the drives. Boulevard lights have been installed along the drives. The drive near the pavilion has been widened considerably thus providing more space for automobile parking.

The Collegians have proven a very popular orchestra during the winter season. The orchestra consists of seven pieces and has a wide variance of instruments.

Young Wood Goes To Monte Carlo

MONTE CARLO, April 19—Even Monte Carlo, hardened to extravagance, and averse to thrills, sat up and took notice of a young American officer who arrived here this week from the Philippines accompanied wherever he went by a Chinese servant who carried a bag stuffed to the bursting point with francs.

It was Lieut. Osborn E. Wood, son of General Leonard Wood, governor general of the Philippines and former candidate for the republican nomination for president, who made a killing in Wall street.

INVENTS RAILROAD CROSSING SIGNAL

C. L. Vincent of Omaha Will Soon Give His Devise Practical Trial.

A new device designed to safeguard the public from railroad crossing accidents, has recently bene patented by C. L. Vincent if Omaha. The invention has already attracted considerable attention in the railroad circles and it is expected that a working model will be placed for trial at one or more crossings in the state in the near future.

After a thorough preliminary tryout here, Mr. Vincent plans to take his invention to Chicago where it will be shown and demonstrated before various safety organizations.

Mr. Vincent secured his patent on the Automatic Grade Crossing Signal March 11, at which time the patent board granted every one of his seven claims.

The signal device gives every promise of giving the service which has long been sought by railroads for the prevention of crossing accidents which have become so numerous since the advent of the automobile. It is a combination of a forewarning signal device and a semaphore guard arm.

The signal is operated by springs rather than by electricity. This feature of the device is for the purpose of eliminating the upkeep expense attached to the electrical signal systems.

A train passing over the track at a distance from the grade crossing releases a catch which causes an arm on the signal block at the crossing to be let down across the road. The train passing over another catch on the far side of the signal block will cause the arm to raise back into a vertical position.

This semaphore arm is so designed that the driver approaching it is either forced to stop before crossing the track or go around the arm. In this manner the driver is forced to take notice of the warning. It is Mr. Vincent's idea that the semaphore block be placed on each side of the road at such a distance apart that the arms will not entirely block the passage when in a horizontal position but will leave enough room for a vehicle to pass between them. Thus in case of an approaching train which is far enough away or going so slowly that the driver can cross the track in safety the traffic is not entirely blocked but merely a warning is placed for safety.

County Association Sunday Schools Fix Date for Convention

The annual meeting of the Lancaster County Sunday School association will be held May 1 and 2, with the Union church at College View, according to an announcement Friday by officers of the association The meeting will be of interest to every Sunday school and Sunday school worker in the county.

The sessions will open at 2:30 Thursday afternoon and continue through Friday evening. A program designed to be of particular interest and helpfulness to the Sunday school folk has been prepared. Three speakers from outside the county have been secured and they will present phases of Sunday school problems intended to be beneficial to those attending the convention.

Rev. Walter C. Plank of Malvern, Ia., who has successfully conducted several daily vacation Bible schools, will speak on "The Vacation Bible School, an Asset to Our Religious Education Program." Another speaker will be Dr. J. S. Durham of the International Sunday School council of religious education. His subject will be "Knowing Our Community." "Developing Helpful Worship Service," will be the subject of an address by Miss Katherine Webb of Beatrice.

Miss Ruth Easterday o Westminster Presbyterian church, Lincoln, will have charge of an exhibit which is expected to be the feature of the convention.

Orchestra Accepts Sioux City Contract

"Bill" Ackerman, a former student at the University of Nebraska and member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, has received an indefinite engagement for himself and his Omaha orchestra to play at the Martin hotel room garden in Sioux City. Several other of the seven members of the group were also students of the university. They played Friday night at the New Danceland in Havelock, and their music has been broadcast from the Woodman of the World station in Omaha.

CZARS OF TENNIS STICK WITH RULE

Declare Tilden Must Drop Writing If He Wishes To Continue Playing.

BY HHENRY L. FARRELL.

NEW YORK, April 19.—In an apparent effort to stop the circulation of reports that it would be forced to back down in its attempt to enforce the rule against player-writers, the amateur rules committee of the U. S. Lawn Tennis association bore down again today on William T. Tilden and other prominent journalists against the players.

In a lengthy statement addressed to the members of the executive committee, Holcombe Ward, chairman of the amateur rules committee, defended its action in recommending the disqualification of player-writers and gave reasons why it would be impossible for the association to do otherwise than force the issue with the players.

Tilden Sought Rehearing.

After the rule had been adopted at the annual meeting of the association by a vote of nearly 8 to 1, Tilden appelaed to the executive committee for a hearing and it was granted. Tilden pleaded that he had been a newspaper reporter before he became a tennis player, that writing was to be his life's work and that he could not sacrifice his vocation for tennis. Stripped of its polite language, the reply of the committee was: "You'll quit writing or you won't play tennis."

Commenting upon Tilden's appeal for exception from the rule, the report made public today says:

A Versatile Champion.

"Our present champion is extremely versatile without doubt; he is not only a great tennis player, but he is an interesting writer, a lover of music, an actor and I don't know what else." He has been writing off and on since 1913, when, I am told, he won his first national title, writing not only on tennis, but also dramatic criticism, fiction, magazine articles and books.

"He now regards writing as his permanent business, so far as it is possible for him to tell, although we understand he contemplates finishing a moving picture soon, namely, 'The Dover Road' with Constance Binney.

Should Set Example.

"Some people feel," the report continues, "that it it is quite proper to enforce this resolution against the smaller fry, who probably have no great ability as writers or players, but that we should be very careful to proceed against the present champion because his writings have literary merit. I doubt whether this is a sound position to take. If the evils which we are attempting to curb really are evils, then the man who holds the position of champion of the United States should be the one to take the leadership in maintaining our amateur standards."

U. S. Recognizes Greek Republic

ATHENS, April 19.—The American charge d'affaires today recognized in writing the new republic of Greece. The Belgian minister took similar action.

AUTOISTS FACE NEW TROUBLES IN THE SOUTH

California, Governor Hunt of Arizona, charged Imperial county, California, authorities with responbility for last night's near riots at the bridge when efforts were made to break through. Shots were fired by motorists and deputy sheriffs guarding the bridge were forced to resort to the use of fire hose to hold the bridge.

NEBRASKA SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

Dwight G. Burrage, registrar at Doane college, was a caller at the school Friday.

Miss Eva Thompson has been elected commercial teacher in the high school at Centerville, Iowa

Miss Maggie Christensen is able to be back in classes again, following an absence of several days due to illness. Her home is at Loup City.

The class of 1924 met at the convocation hour Wednesday, to make preliminary arrangements for the annual graduation exercises, which will be held Thursday evening, May 29.

Miss Ruth K. Denison has been added to the teaching staff of Nebraska School of Business, summer quarter. In addition to her supervisor's normal course in N. S. B., Miss Denison has her bachelor's degree from Doane college, and has had several years' teaching experience.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Senator Thomas J. Walsh, democrat, of Montana, the chief inquisitor in the senate's oil investigation, is still hopeful that he can get Harry F. Sinclair, the oil magnate, on the witness stand and make him testify concerning the leasing of Teapot Dome from former Secretary of the Interior Fall, it was learned tonight.

BIG FIRE LOSS.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., April 19.—Damage estimated at $200,000 was caused by fire fanned by a high wind which destroyed the Illmo Lumber company yards here tonight.

Blaze Damages Liner Leviathan

SOUTHAMPTON, England, April 19.—The solon and pantry of the giant United States liner Leviathan were gutted today by a mysterious fire. It is believed to have originated from the fusing of an electric heater.

The blaze was discovered at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the smoke room on the forward deck. The dock fireman fought the flames, assisted by members of the crew and the Southampton firemen.

The firemen were frequently forced to retreat by fumes.

All the passengers had previously landed and no lives were endangered.

Leon Trotzky Denies Red Army Being Mobilized On War Basis

(Copyright, 1924, International News Service.)

MOSCOW, April 19.—Leon Trotzky, commisar for war in the soviet government, in a special interview with International News Service today denied that the red army is being mobilized on a war basis. Trotzky pins his hope for the future of Europe upon a "united states of Europe" carried out by the working classes.

The red army chief, who has just returned from southern Russia, where he recuperated his failing health, looks hale and hearty.

The correspondent submitted the following questions to him:

1.—What is the basis of the persistent rumor in Europe about mobilization of the red army?

2.—What extent of truth is there in statements in the British press that your speech at Tiflis may be construed as an attack against England?

3.—In view of the growing aggressiveness in the policy of France and Japan against Russia, (which may result in a new international conflict) do you consider that the interests of the Russian and American peoples are identical in preventing a world catastrophe?

4.—What is your opinion on the claims of the British bankers?

5.—What was meant by your Baku statement that war is not outside the range of possibilities?

6.—Do you think that racial revision of the Versailles treaty would create a basis for the pacification of Europe?

Reply of Trotzky.

Trotzky replied.

"As to your first question. It is utter nonsense. Indeed, we are now demobilizing those born in 1901 and are recruiting youths born in 1902. But simultaneously we are turning part of the regular army divisions into militia. This may be the basis of the mobilization rumor.

"As to your second question, you ask whether the British justly viewed my Tiflis speech as an attack against England or more exactly as an attack against Premier Ramsay Macdonald. I am not exactly sure how you interpret 'attack' Premier Macdonald frequently attacked the soviet system and the government of the communist party.

"It is well known that Macdonald's party (British labor party) fiercely attacked us for our policy in Georgia. I am sorry Macdonald cannot visit Georgia to learn the mood of the Georgian workers and peasants.

"I doubt whether the mood of the Indian and Egyptian peasants can compare with that of the Georgians.

"Macdonald frequently accused us of violating the 'methods of formal democracy.' True, we place predominance of the working class above formal democracy, but we had the right. I hope that Macdonald and his party place democracy above all.

Says Speeches Plain.

"All this I pointed out in my speeches at Tiflis and Baku. Does that mean an unfriendly attitude toward England? Does Macdonald's criticism of the soviet system and the communist policy signify an unfriendly attitude toward our country?

"But I cannot see why our disagreements regarding the soviet system with a revolutionary dictatorship and the English monarchy with the church must interfere with our efforts to establish broad economic ties equally useful to both sides.

"Taking you rthird question the policy of Japan and that of France are really aggressive, but we see no greater friendliness on the part of the United States. It is scarcely possible there would be a severance of the relations between two peoples each numbering over 100,000. Responsibility for such a severance would rest wholly with the United States

"Naturally, we are still willing to participate in any international agreement aimed at real limitation of armament, to diminish the danger of a new war.

Dislikes Financiers.

"Regarding your fourth question, my opinion of English bankers is very bad.

"Fifth, my statement at Baku that war involving Russia is generally possible must be understood in the sense that Russian amiability and her readiness for economic co-operation, notwithstanding the aggressive and imperialistic "grab-all" policies, do not preclude the danger of war, nor the absence of any such danger. But, we do not need armed force.

"Sixth, whether revision of the Versailles treaty will lead to the pacificaton of Europe depends upon persons and methods. Europe in her present state, has little capacity for revival. The continent seems doomed to economic and military convulsions.

"Only a confederation of the United States of Europe can insure her economic revival with cultural progress.

"But there was no evi dence that the ruling class at present is able to carry out such a program. Only the working class, by assuming power, will unite Europe and save her civilization."

High School Day Feature of Week At Nebraska Wesleyan University

The big event on the Nebraska Wesleyan campus this week will be the annual high school day celebration Friday, April 25. Guests for this occasion will begin to arrive Thursday. A general convocation will be held Friday at 10 a. m. in the Wiesleyan auditorium. Convocation greetings will be given. The Wesleyan band led by Robert Shepard will play. The dramatic club will present a short sketch. State Superintendent C. E. Matzen will make an address.

The second year of the scholastic meet will be held high school day. Prof. J. C. Jensen will have general charge. Three types of medals have been arranged for winners in these events which have been scheduled as follows:

Botany, 8 a. m., room 202, main building.

English, 8 a. m., room 310, main building.

Extempore speaking, 10:45 a. m., Huntington hall, white building.

Geography, 10:45 a. m., room 303, main building.

Bookkeeping, 8 a. m., accounting room, white building.

Mathematics, algebra, 8 a. m., main building; geometry, 10:45 a. m., room 302, main building.

Hygiene, 10:45 a. m., psychology reading room, main building.

Civics, 8 a. m. room 304, Teachers' college.

History, 10:45 a. m., history room, main building.

Music, singing, 10:45 a. m., auditorium, main building; piano playing, 8 a. m., auditorium white building.

Physics, 10:45 a. m., physics lecture room, physics building.

Spelling, 6:45 p. m., expression hall, white building.

Awards Friday Evening.

Awards for the winners will be made Friday evening, both in the scholastic events and the athletic.

The afternoon will be given over largely to athletics, including a high school track meet and a college inter-class meet The evening meeting will contain the class stunts which have become an annual feature at Wesleyan.

General arrangements for the high school day celebration are in the hands of the Wesleyan college council of which Irving Wiltse is president. Roscoe Chenoweth has served as chairman of high school day. The university will provide dinner and supper to all high school seniors and contest students who register for the day. Lodging for one night will be provided for those who live at such distance that return will be impossible.

Among the towns and cities which have indicated intention of attending the 1924 high school day at Wesleyan are Eagle, Filley, Harvard, Ohlown, University Place, Tobias, Hickman, Walton, Bellwood, Aurora, Lincoln and Havelock.

U. S. Vistors In Paris Find Skirts Are Out of Style

PARIS, April 19.—The French capital has been deluged by an influx of American and English visitors for Easter. It is estimated that 90,000 Britishers and 5,000 Americans arrived within the past few days.

Two thousand visitors from the United States arrived today and the women found themselves in a terrible dilemma. Their skirts were inches out of style, owing to the fact that French fashion dictators have shortened the skirts at the rate of about an inch every fortnight for the past few months.

Fashionable Parisienne now wears hers just below the knee.

Johnson Cancels Half Room Space

Cleveland, O., April 19—Cancellation of half of the room space that Senator Hiram Johnson reserved in Hotel Cleveland for his republican convention headquarters in June was announced tonight by W. L. Bonneville, acting manager of the hotel here.

Eighty-five sleeping rooms were reserved by Frank H. Hitchcock, Johnson's manager, last January, when the Californian made his campaign debut here, Bonneville.

Johnson, however, has not given up the race for the nomination for president, for he is scheduled to invade Ohio next weke on a barnstorming tour.

COTNER NOTES

B. F. Tice of Leavenworth, Kan. is visiting his niece, Anah, who is a freshman.

Clyde Sherman was a campus visitor Thursday and Friday.

Cotner held its second annual campus day Thursday, April 17. A full day had been planned under the direction of the Blue Flame and the Lachesis, the two honor organizations for men and women. The program for the day had been divided between committees who had charge of the campus clean up, the dinner, the athletic program for the afternoon, and the evening party. Students assembled for flag raising where directions for the different squads were given a thorough overhauling, and flower beds and shrubs were planted. Dinner was served on the campus by the home economic students, at which Dr. Cobbey presided. Frank Tomson, chairman of the city planning committee of the Lincoln chamber of commerce talked on "The Part Cotner College Might Play in the greater Lincoln as a City beautiful." E. H. Smith of York, was unable to be present but sent a message stressing Cotner's campus in reregard to the expansion program which was read by his son, Leslie, a student in Cotner. Pres. Minor Lee Bates of Hiram brought greetings from that college and spoke of the coming expansion program for Cotner. Adrian Newens, director of the University School of Music, and E. F. Snavely, chairmand of the board of trustees were both introduced and given over to field sports, the sophomores winning first place with 75 points in the intra-mural contest, the freshmen gaining second with 33 points and the juunior with 30 points A formal party was held in the recreation building in the evening. A group of entertainers from the University School of Music furnished the following program:

Negro Spirituals in costume—Raymond Hasford.

The Patch Work Quilt— Evabelle Long-Fuller.

Campus day was originated last year under the auspices of the community leadership class and has made a place for itself in the leading events of the college calendar

NONPAROLABLE CASES LISTED

Included in Requests to Be Heard by Pardon Board May 13.

Plan to Transfer Cave to Prison to Serve For Jail Breaking.

Two convicts in the Nebraska penitentiary and two in the men's reformatory, all serving for non-parolable crimes of violence against the person, are on the state pardon board's list as applicants for parole to be heard at the next meeting on May 13. At nearly every session, the boards hears one or more of such illegal requests to be paroled from men who are not eligible for that form of clemency.

Those of this class slated to appear before the board in May are:

Frank Caldwell, Sheridan county, assault with intent to kill, 1 to 5 years in penitentiary sentenced October 11, 1922.

Earl Kincannon, Boone county, assault with intent to do great bodily harm, 1 to 5 years in penitentiary; sentenced December 8, 1921.

George Cave, Hall county, shooting with intent to wound, 1 to 10 years in reformatory; sentenced December 18, 1922; also under conviction and penitentiary sentence of 1 to 10 years fro breaking jail at Grand Island.

Manuel Martinez, Cheyenne county, shooting with intent to kill, 1 to 3 years; sentenced February 19, 1923.

Law Clear and Specific.

While none of these men is considered a desperate criminal, and the board of pardons might find good reasop to be lenient to one or more of them, the law plainly says that anyne convicted of a crime of violence against the person, or an attempted crime of that kind, shall not be subject to parole.

If they were applying for commutation of sentence or pardon, their cases could be legally heard and acted upon But in advertising and hearing their applicatiois for parole, the board seems to be acting in total disregard of the law. Of course, a commutation cannot legally be allowed on an application for parole, or vice versa.

It will be noted that all four of the prisoners named in this connection were convicted and sentenced after the present indeterminate sentence law took effect in 1921, so that their cases cannot properly be dealt with under the former law which did not draw the same distinction.

Would Transfer Cave.

In explanation of the proposed parole for Cave, State Probation Officer Harmon said that this is intended simply to permit his transfer to the penitentiary to begin serving his sentence there for jail-breaking. Judge B. H. Paine of Grand Island and County Attorney William Suhr of Hall county have written that they will not object to this action.

Caldwell claims to be innocent of the offense charged against him, which was breaking the skull of A. L. Spittler by hitting him with a baseball bat, during a quarrel in which he claims the latter attacked him with a piece of 2 by 4. He says he has an affidavit by a doctor who treated Spittler for a skull fracture several years prior to the altercation.

Kincannon is in the penitentiary as a result of forcing a schoolteacher to get into an automobile with him, being chased by officers and finally caught, after shots had been fired and one of his pursuers finally caught, after shots had been fired and one of his pursuers wounded in the foot. He admitted that he intended to take the young woman with him to Missouri. In his application, he says he resisted arrest "while having a spell of momentary insanity." C. A. McCloud of York has written a letter mildly endorsing his request.

Mexican Writes Good English.

According to the story of Marinez, who is a Mexican youth 25 years old, he was more sinned against than sinning when arrested and convicted in Cheyenne county. He had been "bumming" his way on a freight train and was thrown off by a brakeman near Sidney, in January, 1923. As he ran down the track, he says, the station agent saw him and began shooting, whereupon he pulled his revolver and shot back. One of the agent's bullets lodged in his left foot. The young man writes excellent English and shows good choice of words, indicating familiarity with the language.

Alfred H. Garret, convicted of embezzlement in Johnson county on two different counts, is appiying for commutation and parole. His first penitentiary term started April 2, 1923, to run one year; but two months and one day have been deducted therefrom as "good time," so that the sentence was figured to have expired on February 1 this year. He is now doing his second term of 1 1-2 to 4 years, and his minimum period, with good time allowance, would not end until April 30, 1925. Garrett wants to hurry things up by having the present minimum sentence commuted so as to get around the law's requirement. He was represented at the trial by F. C. Radke, Governor Bryan's private secretary. The charges against him were in connection with his alleged failure to account for all the money he received while running a filling station for L. L. Coryell & Son at Tecumseh.

Would-Be Sleuth Up Again.

Clyde E. Bowers, serving 1 to 10 years for robbery of a companion in Lincoln, who has been in prison four and a half years, is making his second try for a parole. In 1922 he claimed to have a theory as to who committed the murder of Adrian Barstow in this city three years ago and promised to help bring the guilty person to justice if he were set at liberty. The former board declined to enter into such a bargain, and he was turned down.

Following is a list of the cases set for hearing May 13:

Penitentiary—(Paroles.)

Virgil King, Douglas, grand larceny, 1-7.

Henry Metcalf, Douglas, forgery, 1-20.

Luther Richardson, Douglas, robbery, 3-15.

Clyde Bowers, Lancaster, robbery, 1-10.

Frank Caldwell, Eheridan, assault to kill, 1-5.

Fred Smith, Adams, burglary and larceny, 1-3

Harvey Pace, Dodge, grand larceny, 1-4.

Commutations.

Men's Reformatory—(Paroles.)

John R. Condit, Douglas, stealing auto and receiving stolen auto, 1-2.

Harold Stockdale, Dawson, breaking and entering, 1-10.

Ross Stockdale, Dawson, breaking and entering, 1-10.

Claude Stockdale, Dawson, breaking and entering, 1-10.

Anthony Christopher, Greeley, auto stealing, 1-10.

Tony Collela, Greeley, auto stealing, 1-10.

John Haynes, Lincoln, burglary, 1-3.

Clarence Keeley, Gage, burglary and grand larceny, 1-5.

Napoleon Franklin, Douglas, breaking and entering, 1-7.

George Cave, Hall, shooting with intent to wound, 1-10.

Women's Reformatory—(Paroles.)

Anna Johnson, Hall, vagrancy, indeterminate.

Mrs. Lillian Howard, Lancaster, vagrancy, indeterminate.

Mary Pickford Is Planning to Retire From Films Soon

LONDON, April 19.—Mary Pickford intends to retire from the films after making three or four more pictures, she is quoted as saying in an interview published in the Sunday Express tonight.

The film star arrive dthis evening from Southhampton, is quoted by the newspaper as saying that "my type of character is practically finished."

Mary and her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, arrived at Southhampton on the Olympic this morning and reached London this evening. They were given a great welcome.

Fairbanks said they expected to spend some two or three months on the continent visiting the offices of their film distributing company. Later Doug will go to Paris, where he will be one of the officails at the opening of the Olympic games.

The couple may return to the United States by way of Siberia and Japan, although this has not been decided definitely.

A NEW LETTER FRO MHANIHARA IS SENT HUGHES

immigration, was made a subject of discussion in the senate. In the Record it is reported that some of the senators expressed the opinion, which was apparently accepted by many other members of that body, that my letter contained 'a veiled threat.' As it appears from the Record that it is the phrase 'grave consequences' which I used in the concluding part of my letter that some of the senators construed it 'a veiled threat,' I may be permitted to quote here the full text of the sentence which contained the words in question.

"'Relying upon the confidence you have been good enough to show me at all times, I have stated, or rather repeated, all this to you very candidly and in a most friendly spirit, for I realize, as I believe you do, the grave consequences which the enactment of the measure retaining that particular provision would inevitably bring upon the otherwise and mutually advantageous relations between our two countries.'

"Frankly, I must say I am unable to understand how the two words, read in their context, could be construed as meaning anything like a threat. I simply tried to emphasize the most unfortunate and deplorable effect upon our traditional friendship which might result from the adoption of a particular clause in the proposed measure. It would seriously impair the good and mutually helpful relationship and disturb the spirit of mutual regard and confidence which characterizes our intercourse of the last three-quarters of a century and which was considerably strengthened by the Washington conference as well as by the most magnanimous sympathy shown by our people in the recent calamity in my country. Whereas, there is otherwise every promise of hearty co-operation between Japan and the United States, which is believed to be essential to the welfare not only of themselves, but of the rest of the world, it would create, or at least, tend to create, an unhappy atmosphere of ill-feeling and misgiving over the relations between our two countries.

Meant No Discourtesy.

"As the representative of my country, whose supreme duty is to maintain and if possible to draw still closer the bond of friendship so happily existing between our two peoples, I honestly believe such effects, as I described, to be 'grave consequences.' In using these words, which I did quite ingenuously, I had no thought of being in any way disagreeable or discourteous, and still less of conveying 'a veiled threat.' On the contrary, it was in a spirit of the most sincere respect, confidence and candor that I used these words, which spirit I hope is manifested throughout my entire letter, for it was in that spirit that I wrote you. I never suspected that these words, used as I used them, would ever afford an occasion for such comment or interpretation as have been given them.

"You know, I am sure, that nothing could be further from my thought than to give cause for offense to your people and their government, and I have not the slightest doubt that you have no such misunderstanding as to either the spirit in which the letter in question was written, or the meaning I intended for the phrase that I used therein.

"In view, however, of what has transpired in the course of the public discussion in the senate, I feel constrained to write you as a matter of record that I did not use the phrase in question in such a sense as has been attributed.

"I am, my dear Mr. Secretary, yours very truly,

"M. HANIHARA."

Answer of Hughes.

The Hughes letter follows:

"My dear Mr. Ambassador:

"I am gratified to receive your letter of the seventeenth instant with your frank and friendly explanation of the intent of your recent note. It gives me pleasure to be able to assure you that reading the words 'grave consequence' in the light of their context, and knowing the spirit of friendship and understanding you have always manifested in our long association, I had no doubt that these words were to be taken in the sense you have stated, and I was quite sure that it was far from your thoughts to express or imply any threats. I am happy to add that I have deeply appreciated your constant desire to promote the most cordial relations between the peoples of the two countries.

"With high esteem, I am, my dear Mr. Hanihara, very sincerely yours,

"CHARLES E. HUGHES."

ENGINEER SHOW BEING PREPARED

Exhibits Arranged for Display in Windows of Seven Downtown Stores.

Freak Experiments, Architectural Drawing, Radio Power Included.

Student engineers of the University of Nebraska have prepared a series of window displays in downtown store windows. Each of the seven departments have obtained a window and have arranged an exhibit for it.

Chemical engineers in Farquhar's window have fixed a device which generates a vivid red liquid when two colorless streams meet in the air. Also a ball will be suspended in midair, seeminbly without support. Other exhibits of chemical nature will fill the window.

The electrical department will bring to life Andy Gump's campaign for offfce and will back him to the last kilowatt. In addition to supporting Andy an experiment in the latest triumph of radio art, transmission of power, will be preformed in Miller and Paine's window. Students at WFAV will transmit enough power to light an ordinary electric globe. The wave length is very low so that radio outfits over the city will not be destroyed by the power.

The agricultural engineers have furnished a display of models. A well planned farm will be the largest display. This will represent the latest ideas in farm management. It is said that it contanls ideas which if put into practice would mean many thousands of dollars to the Nebraska farmer.

A model of the first suspension bridge will be put on display at Mayer Bros. company by the civil engineers. The original bridge was built by primitive men. A miniature of the cement plant used in erecting the stadium will be on display.

Tea Pot dome oil well models will be exhibited in Huffman Furniture company's window by geology students. This model as an enterprise is guaranteed to be honestly promoted. A large collection of geological exhibits will be on display.

Drawings of all sorts of architecture will be shown in the window prepared by the architecturdl engineers.

Mechanical engineers are to have a display of liquid air in one of the windows. An air machine will run mechanical models. The display will also include many articles of mechanical engineering.

SUBURB IMPROVES FIRE PROTECTION

Uni. Place Building Reservoir to Hold Half Million Gallons Water.

Work is half finished on the new University Place reservoir, and C. C. Bickel, contractor for that and other improvements in the city's water system, states that it will probably be ready for use in a little over a month.

Its capacity of 500,000 gallons is expected to remove the fire menace which some feel has threatened the community, and will provide a large reserve for summer months. $30,000 contract covers it and the other improvements.

Of concrete construction, the reservoir will be 60 feet wide by 80 feet long, and about 15 feet in depth. It is to be sunk two thirds of its depth in the ground, and the earth will be graded up to cover the roof. Work men will begin pouring cement Tuesday.

A new well, 160 feet deep, has already been dug near the reservoir to help supply water, and two pumps are provided to force the water from the reservoir into the stand pipe. Both well and resevoir are located near Twelfth and Q streets.

About eleven blocks of ten and eight inch mains, to replace six inch mains now used in the business district, will soon be put in. Some new hydrants and valves are also included in the contract.

Brings Family To Lincoln In Traveling House

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Harkey, who once lived in Arkansas but who for the last six months have carried their home around with them, are visiting with their children, Virginia, 2, and John Henry, jr., 6, at the home of Mrs. Harkey's sister, Mrs. Pearl Manrose, 2755 Pear street.

The home consists of a specially built body mounted on the chassis of a Reo speed wagon at a total cost of $3,500. Its equipment includes all sorts of conveniences, from shower bath to gas stove, and in it the family comfortably lived during weather this winter when the thermometer showed 26 below zero.

Mr. Harkey tied a Ford, and, by means of an especially devised iron bar, trails it behind the home while on the move. By thus occasionally moving his base of supplies, he easily covers a wide territory in the small car.

Virginia, of course, does not go to school, and she remembers practically no other home than the car, but John Henry, does. He has become so accustomed to moving declares his father, that on arrival in a new town, his first question is "where is the school." He is now attending Hartley.

The family expects to continue their visit here for a week or more.

Easter Pageant at University Place

The University Place Methodist church will present the Easter pageant, "The City Beautiful," at the church Sunday evening, beginning at 7:30. The pageant has as its central thought the "Redeemed City." The play opens with the triumphal entry of David into Jerusalem and continues through six scenes. In the last two scenes justice, righteousness and love prevail over evil, cruelty, ignorance and crime.

Nearly 100 people will take part in the pageant. The public is invited.

Bottle of Furniture Polish Is Beginning of Romance and Difficulty for Mrs. Wallace

And that's how her romance and all the trouble that came with it began, she told Judge Stewart Saturday in di strict court. This is her story, as told in court:

Mrs. Balster, who is 54 years old, lives in Normal, just south of Bailey's Green Gables sanitarium. One day in November, 1921, a stranger came to the door selling furniture polish.

She liked him.

In fact she was so impressed with his personality that she invited him to dinner the next Sunday. He came. When she knew him better, she liked him even more. So, about a week later the stranger, Alva M. Wallace, moved into Mrs. Balster's home as a roomer and boarder. He brought with him his son and daughter-in-law.

Helps Sell Polish.

Mrs. Balster felt that she would like to help the new roomer as much as possible so she went with him on his trips selling furniture polish.

In Fremont, in the summer of '22, Wallace was given a check for seventy-five cents by a woman who bought some of the polish. Through a mistake, the check was thouhgt to be for $75 and Wallace was placed in the Fremont jail for some two months. Then he was released.

Mrs. Balster came home while Wallace was in jail and said that she was going to mortgage her house and the twelve lots surrounding it to get some ready cash.

Her children believed that it was to get money to help Wallace out of trouble, Clark Jeary, attorney for the children said.

Mrs. Balster said that it was because she no longer had the revenue coming in from the rent of Wallace's room and that she needed money.

The children, Robert Balster, and Verna Sanden, filed a petition in county court to have her declared incompetent. County Judge Robin R. Reid complied with their request, and appointed the Federal Trust Co., her guardian.

Mrs. Balster filed a petition to have the guardianship set aside. Judge Reid overruled the motion.

Mrs. Balster appealed to district court.

She Becomes Mrs. Wallace.

Wallace wanted to marry Mrs. Balster; she was willing; but Wallace wasn't sure that he was di vorced from his f irst wife. This was cleared up, though, and Mrs. Balster became Mrs. Wallace December 29, 1923.

Since then she has been reading the Sunset magazine and has been overcome with a passionate longing to go to California. She wants to sell her property, which, she says, is worth $12,000, and go. If she is declared competent she will do it, she says.

The children object. They believe Attorney Jeary said, that she wants to give Wallace the money.

After Mrs. Wallace has testified at the hearing Saturday, the case was conti n ued a week.

Dr. Joseph Adolphus and Dr. E. W. Rowe testified that in their belief Mrs. Wallace was perfectly sane. But they distinguished between insanity and incompetency.

The case will probably be completed next Saturday. Then it will be up to Judge Stewart to decide whether Mrs. Wallace heeds the call of Sunset magazine and the golden west or remains in Lincoln with her property still in her own name.

was awarded in March and amounted to $1,000,000 or so. Those included in the April letting were estimated by the state engineer's office to total $1,525,000, but unusually close competition by a large number of bidders scaled down the cost to something like $1,250,000. Thus, a grand total of I$2,250,000, more or less, has been contracted for up to the present time. To this must be added possibly $150,000 of expense for the biennium for engineering and supervision, which raises the total outlay under present plans to $2,400,000.

The remaining $600,000 will be available for other projects and to allow for extra items of cost on those already approved and contracted. It will be seen that the state engineer has more than an ample margin left to work on. He will be able to take care of quite a little more work before the end of the biennium, but there will be no more big general lettings. Any additional highway undertaking will be provided for one at a time, as they can be conveniently handled by the engineers and not too fast to anticipate tax collections.

Counties Meeting Federal Aid. —

Besides the $3,000,000 being jointly expended by the federal and state government on road construction in Nebraska, a number of counties are matching federal funds with their own money. State Engineer Cochran figures that another $1,000,000 will be spent in this way during the biennium, without any aid from the state. His office supervises the federal-county projects the same as it does those in which the state is directly interested.

Douglas county is furnishing $150,000 for paving rural highways leading to Omaha, and the federal government pays a like amount there. About $40,000 is being used by Lancaster county this year to secure federal aid for an equal sum on its roads and bridges. In Morrill county the cost of a $75,000 bridge over the North Platte at Broadwater is being split between the county and the federal government. Madison county is graveling 10 miles of road south of Norfolk and Otoe county is spending about $35,000 for graveled surfacing north, south and west of Nebraska City, both on a fifty-fifty basis with Uncle Sam. A few other counties are filling out their state highway apportionments with their own money, in order to get the maximum amount of federal funds.

The first state aid bridge contract awarded since 1922 will be for a steel structure over the North Platte river at Oshkosh, bids on which have been called for May 5. Its estimated cost is $75,000, of which the state pays half and Garden county the other half. State aid bridges represent an expenditure additional to that provided for highways.

Antelope Park Dance Pavilon Opens April 28

The spring opening of the Antelope park dance pavilion will be held Monday evening, April 28. Music will be furnished by "The Collegians", the orchestra which has formerly been known as "Leo Beck's" orchestra.

With the coming of the warm spring evenings the enthusiasts of the dance flock to the open air pavilions. The Antelope pavilion will be particularly attractive during the coming season. The management has spent considerable money in redecorating the interior of the pavilion. A new plush curtain has been purchased for the stage and lights have been rearranged.

The city has added to the attractiveness of the park by recent work on the drives. Boulevard lights have been installed along the drives. The drive near the pavilion has been widened considerably thus providing more space for automobile parking.

The Collegians have proven a very popular orchestra during the winter season. The orchestra consists of seven pieces and has a wide variance of instruments.

Young Wood Goes To Monte Carlo

MONTE CARLO, April 19—Even Monte Carlo, hardened to extravagance, and averse to thrills, sat up and took notice of a young American officer who arrived here this week from the Philippines accompanied wherever he went by a Chinese servant who carried a bag stuffed to the bursting point with francs.

It was Lieut. Osborn E. Wood, son of General Leonard Wood, governor general of the Philippines and former candidate for the republican nomination for president, who made a killing in Wall street.

INVENTS RAILROAD CROSSING SIGNAL

C. L. Vincent of Omaha Will Soon Give His Devise Practical Trial.

A new device designed to safeguard the public from railroad crossing accidents, has recently bene patented by C. L. Vincent if Omaha. The invention has already attracted considerable attention in the railroad circles and it is expected that a working model will be placed for trial at one or more crossings in the state in the near future.

After a thorough preliminary tryout here, Mr. Vincent plans to take his invention to Chicago where it will be shown and demonstrated before various safety organizations.

Mr. Vincent secured his patent on the Automatic Grade Crossing Signal March 11, at which time the patent board granted every one of his seven claims.

The signal device gives every promise of giving the service which has long been sought by railroads for the prevention of crossing accidents which have become so numerous since the advent of the automobile. It is a combination of a forewarning signal device and a semaphore guard arm.

The signal is operated by springs rather than by electricity. This feature of the device is for the purpose of eliminating the upkeep expense attached to the electrical signal systems.

A train passing over the track at a distance from the grade crossing releases a catch which causes an arm on the signal block at the crossing to be let down across the road. The train passing over another catch on the far side of the signal block will cause the arm to raise back into a vertical position.

This semaphore arm is so designed that the driver approaching it is either forced to stop before crossing the track or go around the arm. In this manner the driver is forced to take notice of the warning. It is Mr. Vincent's idea that the semaphore block be placed on each side of the road at such a distance apart that the arms will not entirely block the passage when in a horizontal position but will leave enough room for a vehicle to pass between them. Thus in case of an approaching train which is far enough away or going so slowly that the driver can cross the track in safety the traffic is not entirely blocked but merely a warning is placed for safety.

County Association Sunday Schools Fix Date for Convention

The annual meeting of the Lancaster County Sunday School association will be held May 1 and 2, with the Union church at College View, according to an announcement Friday by officers of the association. The meeting will be of interest to every Sunday school and Sunday school worker in the county.

The sessions will open at 2:30 Thursday afternoon and continue through Friday evening. A program designed to be of particular interest and helpfulness to the Sunday school folk has been prepared. Three speakers from outside the county have been secured and they will present phases of Sunday school problems intended to be beneficial to those attending the convention.

Rev. Walter G. Plank of Malvern, Ia., who has successfully conducted several daily vacation Bible schools, will speak on "The Vacation Bible School, an Asset to Our Religious Education Program." Another speaker will be Dr. J. S. Durham of the International Sunday School council of religious education. His subject will be "Knowing Our Community." "Developing Helpful Worship Service," will be the subject of an address by Miss Katherine Webb of Beatrice.

Miss Ruth Easterday o Westminster Presbyterian church, Lincoln, will have charge of an exhibit which is expected to be the feature of the convention.

Orchestra Accepts Sioux City Contract

"Bill" Ackerman, a former student at the University of Nebraska and member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, has received an indefinite engagement for himself and his Omaha orchestra to play at the Martin hotel room garden in Sioux City. Several other of the seven members of the group were also students of the university. They played Friday night at the New Danceland in Havelock, and their music has been broadcast from the Woodman of the World station in Omaha.

CZARS OF TENNIS STICK WITH RULE

Declare Tilden Must Drop Writing If He Wishes To Continue Playing.

BY HHENRY L. FARRELL.

NEW YORK, April 19.—In an apparent effort to stop the circulation of reports that it would be forced to back down in its attempt to enforce the rule against player-writers, the amateur rules committee of the U. S. Lawn Tennis association bore down again today on William T. Tilden and other prominent journalists against the players.

In a lengthy statement addressed to the members of the executive committee, Holcombe Ward, chairman of the amateur rules committee, defended its action in recommending the disqualification of player-writers and gave reasons why it would be impossible for the association to do otherwise than force the issue with the players.

Tilden Sought Rehearing.

After the rule had been adopted at the annual meeting of the association by a vote of nearly 8 to 1, Tilden appelaed to the executive committee for a hearing and it was granted. Tilden pleaded that he had been a newspaper reporter before he became a tennis player, that writing was to be his life's work and that he could not sacrifice his vocation for tennis. Stripped of its polite language, the reply of the committee was: "You'll quit writing or you won't play tennis."

Commenting upon Tilden's appeal for exception from the rule, the report made public today says:

A Versatile Champion.

"Our present champion is extremely versatile without doubt; he is not only a great tennis player, but he is an interesting writer, a lover of music, an actor and I don't know what else." He has been writing off and on since 1913, when, I am told, he won his first national title, writing not only on tennis, but also dramatic criticism, fiction, magazine articles and books.

"He now regards writing as his permanent business, so far as it is possible for him to tell, although we understand he contemplates finishing a moving picture soon, namely, 'The Dover Road' with Constance Binney.

Should Set Example.

"Some people feel," the report continues, "that it it is quite proper to enforce this resolution against the smaller fry, who probably have no great ability as writers or players, but that we should be very careful to proceed against the present champion because his writings have literary merit. I doubt whether this is a sound position to take. If the evils which we are attempting to curb really are evils, then the man who holds the position of champion of the United States should be the one to take the leadership in maintaining our amateur standards."

U. S. Recognizes Greek Republic

ATHENS, April 19.—The American charge d'affaires today recognized in writing the new republic of Greece. The Belgian minister took similar action.

AUTOISTS FACE NEW TROUBLES IN THE SOUTH

California, Governor Hunt of Arizona, charged Imperial county, California, authorities with responbility for last night's near riots at the bridge when efforts were made to break through. Shots were fired by motorists and deputy sheriffs guarding the bridge were forced to resort to the use of fire hose to hold the bridge.

NEBRASKA SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

Dwight G. Burrage, registrar at Doane college, was a caller at the school Friday.

Miss Eva Thompson has been elected commercial teacher in the high school at Centerville, Iowa.

Miss Maggie Christensen is able to be back in classes again, following an absence of several days due to illness. Her home is at Loup City.

The class of 1924 met at the convocation hour Wednesday, to make preliminary arrangements for the annual graduation exercises, which will be held Thursday evening, May 29.

Miss Ruth K. Denison has been added to the teaching staff of Nebraska School of Business, summer quarter. In addition to her supervisor's normal course in N. S. B., Miss Denison has her bachelor's degree from Doane college, and has had several years' teaching experience.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Senator Thomas J. Walsh, democrat, of Montana, the chief inquisitor in the senate's oil investigation, is still hopeful that he can get Harry F. Sinclair, the oil magnate, on the witness stand and make him testify concerning the leasing of Teapot Dome from former Secretary of the Interior Fall, it was learned tonight.

BIG FIRE LOSS.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., April 19.—Damage estimated at $200,000 was caused by fire fanned by a high wind which destroyed the Illmo Lumber company yards here tonight.

Blaze Damages Liner Leviathan

SOUTHAMPTON, England, April 19.—The solon and pantry of the giant United States liner Leviathan were gutted today by a mysterious fire. It is believed to have originated from the fusing of an electric heater.

The blaze was discovered at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the smoke room on the forward beck. The dock fireman fought the flames, assisted by members of the crew and the Southampton firemen.

The firemen were frequently forced to retreat by fumes.

All the passengers had previously landed and no lives were endangered.

Leon Trotzky Denies Red Army Being Mobilized On War Basis

(Copyright, 1924, International News Service.)

MOSCOW, April 19.—Leon Trotzky, commisar for war in the soviet government, in a special interview with International News Service today denied that the red army is being mobilized on a war basis. Trotzky pins his hope for the future of Europe upon a "united states of Europe" carried out by the working classes.

The red army chief, who has just returned from southern Russia, where he recuperated his failing health, looks hale and hearty.

The correspondent submitted the following questions to him:

1.—What is the basis of the persistent rumor in Europe about mobilization of the red army?

2.—What extent of truth is there in statements in the British press that your speech at Tiflis may be construed as an attack against England?

3—In view of the growing aggressiveness in the policy of France and Japan against Russia, (which may result in a new international conflict) do you consider that the interests of the Russian and American peoples are identical in preventing a world catastrophe?

4.—What is your opinion of the claims of the British bankers?

5.—What was meant by your Baku statement that war is not outside the range of possibilities?

6.—Do you think that racial revision of the Versailles treaty would create a basis for the pacification of Europe?

Reply of Trotzky.

Trotzky replied:

"As to your first question. It is utter nonsense. Indeed, we are now demobilizing those born in 1901 and are recruiting youths born in 1902. But simultaneously we are turning part of the regular army divisions into militia. This may be the basis of the mobilization rumor.

"As to your second question, you ask whether the British justly viewed my Tiflis speech as an attack against England or more exactly as an attack against Premier Ramsay Macdonald. I am not exactly sure how you interpret 'attack.' Premier Macdonald frequently attacked the soviet system and the government of the communist party.

"It is well known that Macdonald's party (British labor party) fiercely attacked us for our policy in Georgia. I am sorry Macdonald cannot visit Georgia to learn the mood of the Georgian workers and peasants.

"I doubt whether the mood of the Indian and Egyptian peasants can compare with that of the Georgians.

"Macdonald frequently accused us of violating the 'methods of formal democracy.' True, we place predominance of the working class above formal democracy, but we had the right. I hope that Macdonald and his party place democracy above all.

Says Speeches Plain.

"All this I pointed out in my speeches at Tiflis and Baku. Does that mean an unfriendly attitude toward England? Does Macdonald's criticism of the soviet system and the communist policy signify an unfriendly attitude toward our country?

"But I cannot see why our disagreements regarding the soviet system with a revolutionary dictatorship and the English monarchy with the church must interfere with our efforts to establish broad economic ties equally useful to both sides.

"Taking you rthird question, the policy of Japan and that of France are really aggressive, but we see no greater friendliness on the part of the United States. It is scarcely possible there would be a severance of the relations between two peoples each numbering over 100,000. Responsibility for such a severance would rest wholly with the United States.

"Naturally, we are still willing to participate in any international agreement aimed at real limitation of armament, to diminish the danger of a new war.

Dislikes Financiers.

"Regarding your fourth question, my opinion of English bankers is very bad.

"Fifth, my statement at Bkau that war involving Russia is generally possible must be understood in the sense that Russian amiability and her readiness for economic co-operation, notwithstanding the aggressive and imperialistic "grab-all" policies, do not preclude the danger of war, nor the absence of any such danger. But, we do not need armed force.

"Sixth, whether revision of the Versailles treaty will lead to the pacificaton of Europe depends upon persons and methods, Europe in her present state, has little capacity for revival. The continent seems doomed to economic and military convulsions.

"Only a confederation of the United States of Europe can insure her economic revival with cultural progress.

"But there was no evi dence that the ruling class at present is able to carry out such a program. Only the working class, by assuming power, will unite Europe and save her civilization."

High School Day Feature of Week At Nebraska Wesleyan University

The big event on the Nebraska Wesleyan campus this week will be the annual high school day celebration Friday, April 25. Guests for this occasion will begin to arrive Thursday. A general convocation will be held Friday at 10 a. m. in the Wiesleyan auditorium. Convocation greetings will be given. The Wesleyan band led by Robert Shepard will play. The dramatic clhb will present a short sketch. State Superintendent C. E. Matzen will make an address.

The second year of the scholastic meet will be held high school day. Prof. J. C. Jensen will have general charge. Three types of medals have been arranged for winners in these events which have been scheduled as follows:

Botany, 8 a. m., room 202, main building.

English, 8 a. m., room 310, main building.

Extempore speaking, 10:45 a. m., Huntington hall, white building.

Music, singing, 10:45 a. m., auditorium, main building; piano playing, 8 a. m., auditorium white building.

Physics, 10:45 a. m., physics lecture room, physics building.

Spelling, 6:45 p. m., expression hall, white building.

Awards Friday Evening.

Awards for the winners will be made Friday evening, both in the scholastic events and the athletic. The afternoon will be given over largely to athletics, including a high school track meet and a college inter-class meet. The evening meeting will contain the class stunts which have become an annual feature at Wesleyan.

General arrangements for the high school day celebration are in the hands of the Wesleyan college council of which Irving Wiltse is president. Roscoe Chenoweth has served as chairman of high school day. The university will provide dinner and supper to all high school seniors and contest students who register for the day. Lodging for one night will be provided for those who live at such distance that return will be impossible.

Among the towns and cities which have indicated intention of attending the 1924 high school day at Wesleyan are Eagle, Filley, Harvard, Ohiowa, University Place, Tobias, Hickman, Walton, Bellwood, Aurora, Lincoln and Havelock.

Johnson Cancels Half Room Space

Cleveland, O., April 19—Cancellation of half of the room space that Senator Hiram Johnson reserved in Hotel Cleveland for his republican convention headquarters in June was announced tonight by W. L. Bonneville, acting manager of the hotel here.

Eighty-five sleeping rooms were reserved by Frank H. Hitchcock, Johnson's manager, last January, when the Californian made his campaign debut here, Bonneville.

Johnson, however, has not given up the race for the nomination for president, for he is scheduled to invade Ohio next weke on a barnstorming tour.

COTNER NOTES

B. F. Tice of Leavenworth, Kan. is visiting his niece, Anah, who is a freshman.

Clyde Sherman was a campus vistor Thursday and Friday.

Dr. J. W. Hilton, state university pastor, spoke before the Aylsworth club Monday night.

Cotner held its second annual campus day Thursday, April 17. A full day had been planned under the direction of the Blue Flame and the Lachesis, the two honor organizations for men and women. The program for the day had been divided between committees who had charge of the campus clean up, the dinner, the athletic program for the afternoon, and the evening party. Students assembled for flag raising where directions for the different squads were given a thorough overhauling and flower beds and shrubs were planted. Dinner was served on the campus by the home economic students, at which Dr. Cobbey presided. Frank Tomson, chairman of the city planning committee of the Lincoln chamber of commerce talked on "The Part Cotner College Might Play in the greater Lincoln as a City beautiful." E. H. Smith of York, was unable to be present but sent a message stressing Cotner's campus in regard to the expansion program which was read by his son, Leslie, a student in Cotner. Pres. Minor Lee Bates of Hiram brought greetings from that college and spoke of the coming expansion program for Cotner. Adrian Newens, director of the University School of Music, and E. F. Snavely, chairmand of the board of trustees were both introduced and given over to field sports, the sophomores winning first place with 75 points in the intra-mural contest, the freshmen gaining second with 33 points and the juunior with 30 points. A formal party was held in the recreation building in the evening. A group of entertainers from the University School of Music furnished the following program:

Negro Spirituals in costume—Raymond Hasford.

The Patch Work Quilt— Evabelle Long-Fuller.

Campus day was originated last year under the auspices of the community leadership class and has made a place for itself in the leading events of the college calendar.

U. S. Vistors In Paris Find Skirts Are Out of Style

PARIS, April 19.—The French capital has been deluged by an influx of American and English visitors for Easter. It is estimated that 90,000 Britishers and 5,000 Americans arrived within the past few days.

Two thousand visitors from the United States arrived today and the women found themselves in a terrible dilemma. Their skirts were inches out of style, owing to the fact that French fashion dictators have shortened the skirts at the rate of about an inch every fortnight for the past few months.

Fashionable Parisienne now wears hers just below the knee.

GRAIN MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 19.

Fear that the McNary-Haugen bill in some form is going to be passed gave strength to wheat today and during the first hour it advanced more than a cent. Corn did not share the pronounced strength of wheat, but was firm while oats were weak. At the close, wheat was up 1½ to 1¾c, corn was ⅝ to ¾c higher and oats unchanged to ⅛c lower.

WHEAT—Wheat was steady to ¾c higher at the opening today. Commission houses were active on both sides of the market.

CORN—Corn opened unchanged to ¾c lower, with some local selling and only a limited demand. Trade as moderate.

OATS—Oats started steady to ⅛c higher, offerings were light and a few buying orders in hand.

PROVISIONS—Provisions opened higher for lard. Offerings were small.

KING TUT WAS GAY OLD SOUL

NEW YORK, April 19.—Old King Tut, asleep in a gold casket over in the Valley of the Kings near the site of ancient Thebes, was a merry soul in his day and age, with a liking for beer and geese, Howard Carter, British explorer, who found the former pharoah's tomb, said on arrival here today aboard the Berengaria.

Of course, according to the ancient papyrus and the hieroglyphics, King Tut was but a stripling of 18 when he went to join his fathers in the blistering valley by the Nile. But they were giants in those days, and Carter reported that close-ups of decorations on Tut's tomb show he had raised a sizable crop of those funny Egyptian chin whiskers.

As for the curse that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Marie Corelli and the Sunday supplements would have us believe followed those who defiled the last resting place of King Tut.

"There's nothing to it," said Carter. "I mean to say, It's all bally rot."

Carter is here to lecture on his find. At present he is in trouble with the Egyptian authorities at Luxor as a result of a dispute over visitors and publicity. He wanted to dictate who should visit the tomb, and to sell all the rights of publication of information about the discovery to a single newspaper for serialization.

Ohiowa Hi Youth Hopes to Break State Records

Clifford Freels of Ohiowa is out to break the state interscholastic records for the mile and half-mile runs. A previous dispatch gave Freels' home as Tobias, but the lad is an Ohiowa product and running under the colors of Ohiowa high school.

He has been doing the mile in 4 minutes 50 seconds and has also been turning in good time in the half-mile. He is a cousin of Hubert Franck of Tobias who holds the state mile record.

Scouts to Broadcast Muscal Program and Talks Monday Night

Lincoln Boy Scouts Monday night will broadcast a program from radio station W. M. A. H. (254 meter wave) Lincoln. The program, according to scout officials, will be unusually interesting, and radio owners are urged to tune in and learn something about what the scouts are doing.

The program follows:

Music by Brinton's boy orchestra.

Talk—"What It Means to be an Eagle Scout," Harold Hildreth.

Songs by Roy Wall of the University of Nebraska.

Scouting talk, S. W. Lamphere. Mr. Lamphere will discuss the foundation of Boy Scouts in America: progress and development of the boy; and what the scouts can do for a community.

Music, orchestra.

Taps, 9 o'clock.

GRAIN MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 19.

Fear that the McNary-Haugen bill in some form is going to be passed gave strength to wheat today and during the first hour it advanced more than a cent. Corn did not share the pronounced strength of wheat, but was firm while oats were weak. At the close, wheat was up 1¼ to 1⅝c, corn was ⅛ to ¾c higher and oats unchanged to ⅛c lower.

WHEAT—Wheat was steady to ¾c higher at the opening today. Commission houses were active on both sides of the market.

CORN—Corn opened unchanged to ¼c lower, with some local selling and only a limited demand. Trade as moderate.

OATS—Oats started steady to ⅛ ¼ higher, offerings were light and a few buying orders in hand.

PROVISIONS—Provisions opened higher for lard. Offerings were small.

KING TUT WAS GAY OLD SOUL

NEW YORK, April 19.—Old King Tut, asleep in a gold casket over in the Valley of the Kings near the site of ancient Thebes, was a merry soul in his day and age, with a liking for beer and geese, Howard Carter, British explorer, who found the former pharoah's tomb, said on arrival here today aboard the Berengaria.

Of course, according to the ancient papyrus and the hieroglyphics, King Tut was but a stripling of 18 when he went to join his fathers in the blistering valley by the Nile. But they were giants in those days, and Carter reported that close-ups of decorations on Tut's tomb show he had raised a sizable crop of those funny Egyptian chin whiskers.

As for the curse that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Marie Corelli and the Sunday supplements would have us believe followed those who defiled the last resting place of King Tut

"There's nothing to it," said Carter. "I mean to say, It's all bally rot."

Carter is here to lecture on his find. At present he is in trouble with the Egyptian authorities at Luxor as a result of a dispute over visitors and publicity. He wanted to dictate who should visit the tomb, and to sell all the rights of publication of information about the discovery to a single newspaper for serialization.

Ohiowa Hi Youth Hopes to Break State Records

Clifford Freels of Ohiowa is out to break the state interscholastic records for the mile and half-mile runs. A previous dispatch gave Freels' home as Tobias, but the lad is an Ohiowa product and running under the colors of Ohiowa high school.

He has been doing the mile in 4 minutes 50 seconds and has also been turning in good time in the half-mile He is a cousin of Hubert Franck of Tobias who holds the state mile record.

Scouts to Broadcast Muscal Program and Talks Monday Night

Lincoln Boy Scouts Monday night will broadcast a program from radio station W. M. A. H. (254 meter wave) Lincoln. The program, according to scout officials, will be unusually interesting, and radio owners are urged to tune in and learn something about what the scouts are doing.

The program follows:

Music by Brinton's boy orchestra.

Talk—"What It Means to be an Eagle Scout," Harold Hildreth.

Songs by Roy Wall of the University of Nebraska.

Scouting talk, S. W. Lamphere. Mr. Lamphere will discuss the foundation of Boy Scouts in America; progress and development of the boy; and what the scouts can do for a community.

Music, orchestra.

Taps, 9 o'clock.

A TWO-FAMILY BRICK COLONIAL

Conservative in every line is this dignified brick Colonial house of the semi-detached type. Whether you are building as a home or as an investment, you will make no mistake in selecting this type.

There is no gingerbread ornament to get out of date. For ornament, the house depends entirely upon excellent proportions, and the good design and balanced placnig of such elements as the pleasing, unassumingp orches, the correctly-designed dormers, and interesting chimneys. Even the Colonial twelve-light windows, symmetrically placed, become a decorative element, with their header courses of brick and their blinds and shutters. The homebuilder has a wide rangeo f choice in selecting the color or the brick and the stain for the shingle roof, if he does not choose slate, copper or zinc.

One of the most-often-desired features of a two-family house is that it shall not patently appear to be other than a single residence—in fact zoning restrictions often make this imperative. Ths design meets that requirement admirably.

Each apartment has five rooms — living room, dining room and kitchen downstairs, and two bedrooms and bath upstairs. In addition, each has its own share of the ample attic space, with private stairs leading to it, and each has its own heating, laundry and storage space in the basement. Especially noteworthy is the absolute privacy attained for each family—each has its own porch and entrance, its attic, and its outside and inside basement steps.

The little points of interior design that appeal to the housewife seem all to have been included in this desirable home. There is vestibule, coat closet, fireplace, broom closet, clothes chute, and an outside-icing refrigerator. Each bedroom has two closets for hanging clothing. Among the convenient built-in items in each apartment are a pair of Colonial corner china closets (ivory enameled, like the six-panel Colonial doors and the delicately - molded trim); kitchen dresser and worktable, and upstairs a tray case, linen case and medicine cabinet.

All of these are standard stock permanent furniture in Colonial designs, which are produced in quantities and are reasonable in cost.

The dimensions of the building are 39 feet by 31 feet 3 inches, exclusive of porches. It is adesign suitable for the most exclusive neighborhood, and the interior incorporates conveniences and beauty for the most fastidious occupants.

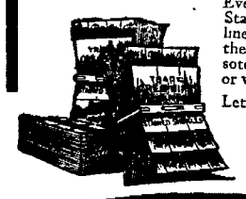
"CREO-DIPT" Stained Shingles

For Individuality In Side Walls

A more artistic and individual effect is possible on side walls using "CREO-DIPT" Stained Shingles than with any other building material. Colors are available in "CREO-DIPT" Stained Shingles for any desired color harmony to blend well with any surroundings. "CREO-DIPT" Stained Shingles are of random width and can be laid at various exposures to the weather This means greater weather protection than is afforded by any other side wall materials, and they are decidedly more economical.



Even, durable colors are a part of "CREO-DIPT" Stained Shingles. The finest earth pigments (no aniline dyes) ground in pure linseed oil and carried into the fibers of real, live selected cedar by a special creosote oil preserving process. They will not rot, curl or warp.

Let us submit samples of colors on wood, and prices.

"The brown-white road leads over and yon
To the deep green valley below.
It's a mystic road and a gypsy road,
And a road where I long to go."

BY LYNNELLE GREER.

And, like a veritable gypsy it wanders on, this brown-white road, here and there and everywhere, tanned by the wind and the sun, bathed in summer showers, carefree, joyous, asking nothing more than freedom and the sweetness of the spring time with its budding trees and shrubs, its thousands of birds.

Now it leads through a shady avenue of trees, boughs meeting boughs in a green tipped canopy; then it is out again, in the open, a long stretch of smooth highway, a turn, and again it is the vagabond road winding along beside an infant brook.

There is nothing that can give so much variety as a roadside. One sees trees, sometimes aged, gnarled ones, bent with the burdens of a half-century or more, standing sorrowfully old and decrepit beside the younger generation, whose slimness and straightness accentuated by comparison. There are green meadows, smooth and velvety, there are shaggy hedges of gooseberry bushes and tangled trails of wild strawberry vines; there are slopes and crooked little paths that lead out of the everywhere into the nowhere—even the somber brown furrows take on a beauteous aspect when seen from the road in the springtime.

Nature at Her Best.

It would seem that Nature, radiant and lovely in her garb of green, had felt compassion for the lonely road during the bleak winter, and strove to regain favor by appearing as charming as possible. She coaxes and flatters, she beckons, she scolds, showing her ill-nature by displaying some disreputable bit of handiwork, and then—her good humor restored, she proves her penitence by revealing some gorgeous masterpiece.

And strange to say it is just where you would not expect to see a striking piece of beauty that it appears.

Who would ever associate the road running north past the Havelock shops at the east end of the town, with beauty? It looks such an ordinary bit of road as you travel along. But instead of turning on the artificial covering that leads towards Waverly, continue across the tracks going north for some distance, and there before your eyes is as pretty a bit of landscape as one could desire.

Tall trees, straight of trunk, with gracefully bended boughs, shade the road for a lengthy distance. They whisper a promise for a nicer shade later on, for the green leaves are still in the bud and it is only the warmth of the past week or two that has given them the courage to venture out even this far.

This road leads on and on, bending and curving this way and that, always with a hint of what the next turn will disclose, luring the motorist miles beyond his destination.

Then, still farther on, just beyond Salt Creek north of Havelock is a spot that fickle nature makes her very own. She plays with it and teases it, one moment she is a fairy godmother waving her magic wand to make this one spot as beautiful as can be; the next instant she is an old witch shaking her broomstick to bring out all of the ugliness. A great deal depends upon the weather as far as this particular place isconcerned. If the rainfall has been moderate or heavy, it is beautiful, if the weather has been hot and dry, it is ugly—it all rests with the powers that be.

If the rain has been heavy, it changes the drabness of this spot into a charming lake, bordered on the sides by rows of tall trees.

The picture was taken, not in the moonlight as its appearance might suggest, but just as a storm cloud passed over the sun. The sky, at the horizon in the northwest, which would be the right of the picture, was leaden; it grew lighter, giving a smokey gray light as it approached the sun. The sunset in the south and west was perfect, and the reflection in the water showed a myriad of colors. The sun appeared lemon yellow through the haze, and that shade was shown in its reflection.

Lovely Sunday Drives.

But all of the pretty road scenes are not around Havelock. And, for people who live in Lincoln, and in the north and east suburbs, the road we have talked about perhaps holds no particular charms.

One lovely sixteen mile drive which might interest the Sunday motorist is the one leading to Sprague. There are pretty roadsides all of the way, with a splendid road. One of the prettiest pictures which Nature presents may be just as you approach Sprague from the east. From a distance up the road a long bridge, spanning the creek which happens to be broad at this point, gives the spot a rustic effect. Everywhere there are shrubs inset with trees whose boughs overhang the water. And birds! it seems to be a bird's paradise, for they sing from morning 'til night, and practically every bird that inhabits the state is represented.

Back again close to the city, just as you leave the pavement which runs in the loop between the state hospital and the penitentiary, is what is known as Branson woods.

Almost like a story book wood it is, where the two little babes were lost, or where Hans and Gretel found their way to the house of the old witch; or even such wood as Alice-in-Wanderland might have wandered through, tall trees with outstretching arms, little paths that turned at this angle and that, little straggling creeks that play hide and seek all through the undergrowth.

Picnic In Branson Wood.

Branson wood is a popular place for summer picnics, and one can easily understand the popularity. There is shade where you want it and when you want it; there is plenty of sunshine in another corner; soft green grass in one spot, and a barren patch of ground suitable for a good camp fire just a little further on. In fact it is almost an enchanted wood where one may have one's desire merely for the asking.

It is remarkable that one may be so close to civilization one moment and so far away from it the next.

For instance, all along Salt Creek, which is really considered a tiresome stream of water without the least bit of romance or imagination about it, one can see all sorts of things. For instance, in one place there is a mammoth tree which stands just at the water's edge. The creek has washed against the roots day after day and year after year until it has bared them to the public eye. The tangle of roots, however, make a comfortable seat where one may sit, resting against the tree trunk.

"A book of verses underneath the bough,
A jug of wine, a loaf of bread—and thou
Beside me, singing in the wilderness—
Oh, Wilderness were paradise enow!"

Even Omar Khayyam appreciated the sympathy and understanding one could receive from a tree, great massive things they are, always ready to protect and shelter the weary and downhearted.

Riding miles on the pavement that man has made for the convenience and comfort of his brothers, one revels in the progress made by humankind, but, after the pavement has been left far behind, and when the gorgeousness of nature may be seen everywhere, when one must resort to the method of conveyance God gave, the two feet, and walk through the paths that modernity has feared to molest, than civilization fades into the background and only unadulterated primitiveness remains.

Trees Lend to Impressive Scene.

Trees again, great masses of them one sees after a longer motor trip which takes them to Fontenelle Forest just off the Fort Crook road in Omaha. Trees, trees, trees—and how wonderful they are. It is only in spots that the undergrowth has been cleared away in Fontenelle Forest, and so it is not possible for anyone to even attempt driving through.

The beauty of the forest is worth the effort it takes to go through. Here again one is dazed at the massiveness of nature, at the things she can do that no human ever could accomplish and one thinks of the poem written by the man who gave his life for France, Joyce Kilmer.

"I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree,
A tree whose hungry mouth is prest
Against the earth's sweet flowing breast.
A tree that looks at God all day
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;
A tree that may in summer wear
A nest of robins in her hair;
Upon whose bosom snow has lain;
Who intimately lives with rain.
Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree.

And so, it is not only the pleasure one gains from merely looking at something that is beautiful and lovely, but the effect, even though only temporary, of having seen a bit of the world's spiritualness conquering, for an instant, over the world's material worldiness.

Nature's Beauty Spots Along Roadsides Near Lincoln Yield Many Attractive Motor Drives.

"The brown-white road leads over and yon
To the deep green valley below.
It's a mystic road and a gypsy road,

BY LYNNELLE GREER.

And, like a veritable gypsy it wanders on, this brown-white road, here and there and everywhere, tanned by the wind and the sun, bathed in summer showers, carefree, joyous, asking nothing more than freedom and the sweetness of the spring time with its budding trees and shrubs, its thousands of birds.

Now it leads through a shady avenue of trees, boughs meeting boughs in a green tipped canopy; then it is out again, in the open, a long stretch of smooth highway, a turn, and again it is the vagabond road winding along beside an infant brook.

There is nothing that can give so much variety as a roadside. One sees trees, sometimes aged, gnarled ones, bent with the burdens of a half-century or more, standing sorrowfully old and decrepit beside the younger generation, whose slimness and straightness accentuated by comparison. There are green meadows, smooth and velvety, there are shaggy hedges of gooseberry bushes and tangled trails of wild strawberry vines; there are slopes and crooked little paths that lead out of the everywhere into the nowhere—even the somber brown furrows take on a beauteous aspect when seen from the road in the springtime.

Nature at Her Best.

It would seem that Nature, radiant and lovely in her garb of green, had felt compassion for the lonely road during the bleak winter, and strove to regain favor by appearing as charming as possible. She coaxes and flatters, she beckons, she scolds, showing her ill-nature by displaying some disreputable bit of handiwork, and then—her good humor restored, she proves her penitence by revealing some gorgeous masterpiece.

And strange to say it is just where you would not expect to see a striking piece of beauty that it appears.

Who would ever associate the road running north past the Havelock shops at the east end of the town, with beauty? It looks such an ordinary bit of road as you travel along. Cornhusker Graduates To Make Merry At Annual Alumni Round-up June 4-7

OLD FRIENDS, OLD CLASSMATES, OLD MEMORIES AND A ROUND-UP—WHAT MORE COULD YOU ASK FOR A FINE JUNE DAY?

Roundup!

Clamor, noise, movement—

Shouts and shrieks of men, bleating of cattle, thud of pounding hoofs.

Blue sky, hot yellow sun, hot yellow dust; black an dtan and gray dappled horses in kaledescopic maze, crimson neckerchiefed cowboys, dead brown plains—

That's one kind of a roundup.

But there's another—

Quietness, calmness, slow undulation of crowds back and forth—

Greetings, friendly calls, cordial hails—

Soft blue sky, warm yellow sun, restful green of trees and grass, rainbow tints of beige and pink and rose and orchid of frocks, dark suited men with gray hair, sweatered youths with brilliantined locks, sheltered nooks, familiar spots—

That's another kind of roundup—

And that's the Roundup of University of Nebraska is to have June 4, 5, 6 and 7.

First Class Get-together.

A friendly companionable, sort of Roundup, when class mates meet class mates long lost, to acquaintance. Roundup, when friends greet friends, whom the years have parted. A time when the men and women who were undergraduates of five, ten, twenty, fifty years ago return to meet and know those who are the students today; when they return to live again the old university days that have so swiftly become the days of long, long ago.

The alumni come back for four days to the old familiar haunts, which so short a time ago they knew so well—to the class rooms where once it seemed so hard to stay in the bright spring weather, to meet favorite professors of university days, to the quiet corners peopled with memories of those who can not return, alive with thoughts of "the fellows" and "the girls" who are now the men and women of the workaday world.

They come back to the new places—to find the forbidding old iron fence gone—to the Bessey building that wasn't there ten years ago—to the radio broadcasting station that the class of 1904 could not dream of—to the alumni headquarters that have so suddenly acquired a new home and a debonair appearance.

The University of Nebraska Roundup is appropriately named—in those four June days some of the traditional festivities of the students and some of the best beloved play hours of the alumni are rounded up, knit together in a pleasant manner, and offered to the hundreds of alumni who have returned for another glimpse of the old school and its old and new students. This year marks the third annual Roundup and, as the third time is the charm, it will be bigger and better than ever.

'04 Class In Charge.

The "twenty year class" is in charge of the Roundup and this year Prof. H. E. Bradford, '04, principal of the school of agriculture and head of the department of secondary agricultual education at the university, is chairman of the general committee. The other committee chairmen are Elizabeth Hyde Roberts, Vera Rae Wattles Kirkpatrick, Frances Whitmore White, Clarence Hinds, and Lew Skinner.

The Roundup opens Wednesday, June 4, with Ivy day, when the campus blooms with the gayest and prettiest thing in the world—brightly frocked girls gathered to do honor to their May queen. The queen is chosen by the vote of senior girls and her identity remains a secret until she and her cortege descend the steps of the Administration building.

The ceremony takes place on the shaded square south of U hall in the morning. Senior girls and some underclassmen form a lengthy daisy chain and make a broad aisle through which the queen, attended by her maid of honor, trainbearers, attendants, two girls from each class, and active members of Mortarboard, walk to the throne erected at the far end of the square.

As she enters, the daisy chain girls, accompanied by the orchestra, sing and they sing to her after the crowning. For her, the physical education girls give a group of lovely interpretative dances and the frilliest and daintiest litttle girls in Lincoln weave a Maypole dance in her honor and some rich voiced singer sings to her—and the hundreds who watch this old but charming spectacle.

Planting of the Ivy.

Immediately after these ceremonies, the Ivy Day orator speaks and then, to the melody of "A dainty plant is the Ivy," the Ivy is planted in some favored spot, the junior and senior presidents taking part in the planting. In the afternoon, thirteen junior girls have the black mask slipped over their eyes and are raised to the dignity of members of Mortarboard, the senior girls' honorary society. As soon as the girls are chosen, the red caped Innocents tap their chosen members and thirteen junior men have a few heart throbs—and the first day has come to a delightful close.

Thursday morning the hours are devoted to council meeting, which consists of representatives from each class and alumni club. Reports of the year are given, officers for the Alumni association nominated, and special legislation suggested—which is later reported to the general alumni meeting Friday. The meeting will be followed by an informal luncheon, perhaps at the Chamber of Commerce. The alumni may sit where they want, talk to whom they want, and rush across the room to greet a friend—all formality will be abandoned. Probably there will be a program of good music during the luncheon and there will be good eats—and that's all the program.

Thursday evening, "Smilin' Thru," one of the most captivating plays given by the University players this year will be given. As it has an attractive garden setting, plans are being made to erect a stage before the Memorial stadium, so that it may be given there—if the weather god be of a benign mind that evening. If not—it will be given. Josephine Logan-Jones is a most enticing Kathleen and Lewellyn Hawley is excellent in the leading man's role. Many of the fraternity and sorority banquets will be held Thursday evening, also, as there is adequate space for all of them to be held one night.

Friday is alumni day, when they show the young 'uns that they've not lost all their pep and speed. Again—if the weather god be kind—each class will have a shady corner on the campus for its reunion. A sign will mark the year and there the "old grads" of each class may register, meet their classmates, "reunion" as much as they wish, hold a class meeting, or do 'most anything they desire.

Parade of Returning Alumni.

About 11 o'clock the alumni parade will be held. All the classes in fancy costumes, vaps, bandannas, or some bit of decoration parade through a few blocks of the city, gazed upon by envious and proud population. Two years ago, this parade was one of the high marks of the day and this year's will be just a little bit better, for many of the classes have purchased costumes for the event.

At noon comes the alumni luncheon, to be held on the same square as was the Ivy day ceremony. A Roundup idea of service will be carried out for this luncheon, but tables and chairs will be placed about for those who do not care for picnic style. This luncheon affords an excellent means of meeting old friends and many of the classes enjoy to eat as a class.

Following the luncheon, Emory R. Buckner of New York City, a member of the law firm of Root, Clark, Buckner, and Howland, will give the alumni address. Mr. Buckner has a striking personality and it is expected he will give a brilliant talk. At this time, the general alumni meeting will be held. Some athletic events including an inter-collegiate baseball game, will complete the afternoon. Friday evening will be devoted to other fraternity and sorority banquets and interesting entertainment—which is a deep dark secret at present—is planned for the evening.

Commencement is to be on Saturday, which is one of the innovations of this year. To open summer school a week earlier and to combine registration and the alumni festivities, commencement will be held Saturday, rather than on Monday, as in former years. Plans are being made to hold commencement at the Memorial stadium, which will enable a larger number of spectators to secure seats and to prevent the crowding of other years. Glenn Frank, editor-in-chief of the Century magazine, is to be the commencement orator. For a dozen years Mr. Frank has lectured in the United States and Canada and his addresses have always commanded wide attention.

UNIVERSITY NOTES.

The chrage that the university is a non-Christian institution is refuted in the April issue of The University Journal, publication of the Alumni association, which was mailed last week. In "Christianity at Nebraska" the factors supporting the moral fiber of the university are discussed with a partial list of alumnae who have been prominent in Christian activities and a summary of the annual contribution of Nebraska students to Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A. social service and missionary work. In the "Chancellor's Corner" Chancellor Avery points out the value of pictorial representation of the progress and history of the institution and makes a plea, second by the secretary of the Alumni association, for pictures of groups, individuals or scenes taken in the early days of the university. These, Chancellor Avery states, will be exhibitde by the association, and may be either loaned or given outright for display purposes. Plans for the third annual roundup of university alumni are announced in another article: hundreds of alumni are to gather in Lincoln June 4 to 7 to revive memories of student days. The class of 1904—the twenty-year class—will have the honors of the roundup of 1924; from that class Emory R. Buckner of New York city, prominent jurist of the law firm of Root, Clark, Buckner and Howland, has been chosen to deliver the alumni day address. Other departments in The Journal include a historical sketch of Thi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholarship fraternity, and a summary of the 1923-24 season of the University players under the direction of Miss Alice Howell.

Quietness, calmness, slow undulation of crowds back and forth—

Greetings, friendly calls, cordial hails—

Soft blue sky, warm yellow sun, restful green of trees and grass, rainbow tints of beige and pink and rose and orchid of frocks, dark suited men with gray hair, sweatered youths with brilliantined locks, sheltered nooks, familiar spots—

That's another kind of roundup—

And that's the Roundup of University of Nebraska is to have June 4, 5, 6 and 7.

First Class Get-together.

A friendly companionable sort of Roundup, when class mates meet class mates long lost to acquaintance. Roundup, when friends greet friends whom the years have parted. A time when the men and women who were undergraduates of five, ten, twenty, fifty years ago return to meet and know those who are the students today; when they return to live again the old university days that have so swiftly become the days of long, long ago.

The alumni come back for four days to the old familiar haunts, which so short a time ago they knew so well—to the class rooms where once it seemed so hard to stay in the bright spring weather, to meet favorite professors of university days, to the quiet corners peopled with memories of those who can not return, alive with thoughts of "the fellows" and "the girls" who are now the men and women of the workaday world.

They come back to the new places—to find the forbidding old iron fence gone—to the Bessey building that wasn't there ten years ago—to the radio broadcasting station that the class of 1904 could not dream of—to the alumni headquarters that have so suddenly acquired a new home and a debonair appearance.

The University of Nebraska Roundup is appropriately named—in those four June days some of the traditional festivities of the students and some of the best beloved play hours of the alumni are rounded up, knit together in a pleasant manner, and offered to the hundreds of alumni who have returned for another glimpse of the old school and its old and new students. This year marks the third annual Roundup and, as the third time is the charm, it will be bigger and better than ever.

'04 Class In Charge.

The "twenty year class" is in charge of the Roundup and this year Prof. H. E. Bradford, '04, principal of the school of agriculture and head of the department of secondary agricultual education at the university, is chairman of the general committee. The other committee chairmen are Elizabeth Hyde Roberts, Vera Rae Wattles Kirkpatrick, Frances Whitmore White, Clarence Hinds, and Lew Skinner.

The Roundup opens Wednesday, June 4, with Ivy day, when the campus blooms with the gayest and prettiest thing in the world—brightly frocked girls gathered to do honor to their May queen. The queen is chosen by the vote of senior girls and her identity remains a secret until she and her cortege descend the steps of the Administration building.

The ceremony takes place on the shaded square south of U hall in the morning. Senior girls and some underclassmen form a lengthy daisy chain and make a broad aisle through which the queen, attended by her maid of honor, trainbearers, attendants, two girls from each class, and active members of Mortarboard, walk to the throne erected at the far end of the square.

As she enters, the daisy chain girls, accompanied by the orchestra, sing and they sing to her after the crowning. For her, the physical education girls give a group of lovely interpretative dances and the prettiest and daintiest litttle girls in Lincoln weave a Maypole dance in her honor and some rich voiced singer sings to her—and the hundreds who watch this old but charming spectacle.

Planting of the Ivy.

Immediately after these ceremonies, the Ivy Day orator speaks and then, to the melody of "A dainty plant is the Ivy," the Ivy is planted in some favored spot, the junior and senior presidents taking part in the planting. In the afternoon, thirteen junior girls have the black mask slipped over their eyes and are raised to the dignity of members of Mortarboard, the senior girls' honorary society. As soon as the girls are chosen, the red caped Innocents tap their chosen members and thirteen junior men have a few heart throbs—and the first day has come to a delightful close.

Thursday morning the hours are devoted to council meeting, which consists of representatives from each class and alumni club. Reports of the class and alumni club. Reports of the year are given, officers for the Alumni association nominated, and special legislation suggested—which is later reported to the general alumni meeting Friday. The meeting will be followed by an informal luncheon, perhaps at the Chamber of Commerce. The alumni may sit where they want, talk to whom they want, and rush across the room to greet a friend—all formality will be abandoned. Probably there will be a program of good music during the luncheon and there will be good eats—and that's all the program.

Thursday evening, "Smilin' Thru," one of the most captivating plays given by the University players this year will be given. As it has an attractive garden setting, plans are being made to erect a stage before the Memorial stadium, so that it may be given there—if the weather god be of a benign mind that evening. If not—it will be given. Josephine Logan-Jones is a most enticing Kathleen and Lewellyn Hawley is excellent in the leading man's role. Many o fthe fraternity and sorority banquets will be held Thursday evening, also, as there is adequate space for all of them to be held one night.

Friday is alumni day, when they show the young 'uns that they've not lost all their pep and speed. Again if the weather god be kind—each class will have a shady corner on the campus for its reunion. A sign will mark the year and there the "old grads" of each class may register, meet their classmates, "reunion" as much as they wish, hold a class meeting, or do 'most anything they desire.

Parade of Returning Alumni.

About 11 o'clock the alumni parade will be held. All the classes in fancy costumes, vaps, bandannas, or some bit of decoration parade through a few blocks of the city, gazed upon by envious and proud population. Two years ago, this parade was one of the high marks of the day and this year's will be just a little bit better, for many of the classes have purchased costumes for the event.

At noon comes the alumni luncheon, to be held on the same square as was the Ivy day ceremony. A Roundup idea of service will be carried out for this luncheon, but tables and chairs will be placed about for those who do not care for picnic style. This luncheon affords an excellent means of meeting old friends and many of the classes enjoy to eat as a class.

Following the luncheon, Emory R. Buckner of New York City, a member of the law firm of Root, Clark, Buckner, and Howland, will give the alumni address. Mr. Buckner has a striking personality and it is expected he will give a brilliant talk. At this time, the general alumni meeting will be held. Some athletic events including an inter-collegiate baseball game, will complete the afternoon. Friday evening will be devoted to other fraternity and sorority banquets and interesting entertainment—which is a deep dark secret at present—is planned for the evening.

Commencement is to be on Saturday, which is one of the innovations of this year. To open summer school a week earlier and to combine registration and the alumni festivities, commencement will be held Saturday, rather than on Monday, as in former years. Plans are being made to hold commencement at the Memorial stadium, which will enable a larger number of spectators to secure seats and to prevent the crowding of other years. Glenn Frank, editor-in-chief of the Century magazine, is to be the commencement orator. For a dozen years Mr. Frank has lectured in the United States and Canada and his addresses have always commanded wide attention.

UNIVERSITY NOTES.

The chrage that the university is a non-Christian institution is refuted in the April issue of The University Journal, publication of the Alumni association, which was mailed last week. In "Christianity at Nebraska" the factors supporting the moral fiber of the university are discussed with a partial list of alumnae who have been prominent in Christian activities and a summary of the annual contribution of Nebraska students to Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A. social service and missionary work. In the "Chancellor's Corner" Chancellor Avery points out the value of pictorial representation of the progress and history of the institution and makes a plea, second by the secretary of the Alumni association, for pictures of groups, individuals or scenes taken in the early days of the university. These, Chancellor Avery states, will be exhibitde by the association, and may be either loaned or given outright for display purposes. Plans for the third annual roundup of university alumni are announced in another article: hundreds of alumni are to gather in Lincoln June 4 to 7 to revive memories of student days. The class of 1904—the twenty-year class—will have the honors of the roundup of 1924; from that class Emory R. Buckner of New York city, prominent jurist of the law firm of Root, Clark, Buckner and Howland, has been chosen to deliver the alumni day address. Other departments in The Journal include a historical sketch of Thi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholarship fraternity, and a summary of the 1923-24 season of the University players under the direction of Miss Alice Howell.

Beautiful Customs of Eastertide Observed Resurrection Morning Throughout the World

BY LULU MAE COE.

The quiet hush of a kneeling congregation, bending to Him who tribulation could not embitter, the tomb enclose, nor death fetter.

Tall, slim tapers burning a waxen background for the scarcely less waxen lillies, the yellow hearts of the lilies golden under their opalescent pointed flame.

Reverent, husbhed, hearing in words the miracle of that first Easter day, more than nineteen hundred years ago. Through all, the spirit of the tomb, unsealed ,open, its cavern stript of human figure, and only the weeping woman by the stone rolled away.

Its message that there is no death, its message of immortality, of endless life hangs above the worshippers, healing, comforting, soothing.

It is the Resurrection morning, the resurrection of muted spirits, of dulled souls, of indifferent hearts.

And without, the new vivid little green leaves, the tender sprouts peeping through the black earth, and the fat buds on the old trees proclaim the miracle that has been told within.

That is Easter as we know it, the only Easter we know.

Radiant Peace of Rebirth.

The quiescence of a spring morning, the radiant peace of the rebirth, the leavening of litanies and prayers and sermons, the cleansing, blessing story of the Easter—that is Easter to us.

Easter isn't alone for us of America, however. It slips into odd corners of the earth and is celebrated in haunts where civilization has brushed very lightly. Its a Slav and Teutonic and Saxon festival, and each celebrates it according to his heart.

The Resurrection lies behind each festival, but Latin and Greek and Slav pay homage to the tender thought of the day in wide flung manners. From Mesopotamia to Russia and from the pretty little Enlish provinces to the Tyrol, Easter is celebrated, but not always as a church festival.

Universal Easter Custom.

The giving of eggs on Easter is an almost universal custom, not only do the frilled, bobbed little boys and girls of America receive them but little Christian children in Mesopotamia buy them, they are hidden in nooks for German children, and French youngsters look for "less oeufs" on Easter Sunday. Easter eggs are not a nameless tradition, but their part in Easter is far older than Christianity.

Egg giving can be traced back to the theology and the philosophy of the ancient Egyptians, Persians, Gauls, Greeks, and Romans, among whom it was an emblem of the universe. The mysterious development of life in an egg has always been wonderful, and it is easy to see the symbolism for Easter, when nature is returning to life and out of the death of winter is coming the resurrection of the spring. The egg was used in the feast of the passover on the table with the paschal lamb and the Christians used it at Easter as representing the elements of future life, as an emblem of the Resurrection.

In Russia, Easter begins with the celebration of midnight mass on Easter eve or Holy Saturday, when the churches are thronged with worshippers. At the supreme moment, when the choir sings "Christ Is Risen" and the bells peal the midnight hour, each one kisses his neighbor three times. The women stand about with plates of food, waiting for the priests to sprinkle it with holy water. On these cakes and eggs, the householders will break the fast of Lent before the Easter feasting.

In the morning, each man and woman presents the parish priest with an Easter egg and every one carries a red egg or a gilded one for three or four days in token of the Resurrection. Easter day is a feast day in Russian homes and each one has tables decorated with flowers, lambs made of butter, cheese, or sugar, and rich food of which all callers are asked to partake.

Observance In Rome.

Rome, as should be, ushers in the day with firing of cannons from the castle of St. Angelo and about 9 o'clock the throngs of worshipers go to St. Peter's. The magnificient edifice is decorated for the day, the altars are ornamented, and the lights, after their extinction on Good Friday, are ablaze about the tomb and about the figure of St. Peter. The cardinal arch priest says the mass, the pope officiating at a private mass within the vatican.

In Greece and in places where the Greek faith prevails, the solemn service begins in the soft gloom of a great cathedral. Few lights are shining, which throws the silent throng into a soft, formless background. Early in the evening priests, chanting in turn with an unaccompanied choir, repeat the music service. As midnight approaches, they file out, and as a rocket announces midnight, a knocking is heard at the door, and repeated. When the gate is opened, they rush in, priests and choir, crying "Christ Is Risen." Each one carries a lighted taper, from which the throng light theirs, until the church blazes in their quiet glow.

In Meopotamia the Christian children at Easter time, and for the forty following days, procure as many eggs as possible. They stain them red in memory of the blood of Christ, shed at his Crucifixion.

Quaint English Customs.

English provinces afford a number of quaint and delightful Eastertide customs, unique among the English lads and lasses. There is an old superstition which says that the sun participates in the joyousness of the day by dancing in the heavens. Devonshire maidens yet rise early to see the sun dance on Easter. In Scotland, the hom eof the practical minded souls, the credulous believe that the sun whirls about and gives three leaps—and that the early risers may see it.

East Yorkshire young people believe that it is uniucky not to have a new garment on Easter—perhaps thence comes our Easter bonnet.

In Kent there is an old endowment, of unknown date, for distributing cakes among the poor every Easter afternoon. The source of the benefaction is twenty acres of land—known as the bread and cheese lands. The cakes are imprinted with two women's figures, supposedly suitable persons upon whom to bestow the bounty. In Lancashire and other places, on Monday the men "heave" the women and on Tuesday the women "heave" the men. They have gaily decorated chairs or the more simple crossed hands for the "heaving" and the victim must buy his freedom with an offering.

One of the loveliest customs is carried out in the Vorariberg in the Austrian Tyrol, where modernity and popular beliefs have touched very lightly. On Holy Saturday, singers, voicing the Easter hymns, accompanied by their guitars, sing in every valley. Their voices call people to the door, who join in the choruses and sing with the strolling players. Their wide Spanish hats trimmed with flowers, crowds of children who light them in the darkness with torches, and the sound of the guitars make it a scene from grand opera, rather than a reality. The children are rewarded with Easter eggs and the singers with food and drink.

The Day In Warwick.

In Warwick, in England, the young men of the town have a custom all their own. If they can catch a hare and bring it to the parish parson before 10 o'clock on Easter Monday they are rewarded with a calf's head, one hundred eggs, and a groat in money. The town clerk of Dorst carries to every house a few white cakes as Easter offerings. The cakes are one-eighth inch thick and of two sizes, about five inches and seven inches in diameter, and have a peculiar sweet flavor. He is rewarded with a gratuity, depending upon the generosity or the means of the householder.

The hot cross buns that are a part of the Easter day are of pagan origon. The pagan Saxons ate them in honor of the goddess Eastre and the custom has descended to us. When the Christian clergy, unable to prevent people from eating, sought to expel paganism from the church feasts, they marked the cakes with the sign of the cross to give them Christian symbolism.

In Mecklenburg it is considered ill luck to have the east wind blew on Easter and many disters will accrue from it. There the maids draw water when the wind is in the east or lay out linen to catch the dew and bathe in the water or the dew to prevent fevers and other ills during the coming year.

The Easter celebration in Spanish American countries is most symbolic and the idea is carried out in visible form. In one of the island churches an escort of troops is drawn up before the cathedral, from which emerges a life sized wax figure of the Christ, with open wounds, borne on a platform by men almost hidden from the public gaze by a long curtain.

Pomp and Ceremony.

Mary Magdalene apparently tells of the Resurrection, after which the Virgin Mary approaches the Christ figure and they bow several times. The procession proceeds from there to the church from which the two Marys were taken and after the procession has entered the door, troops fire a joyous salute.

Seventy-Eight Students of Nebraska High Schools Join Essay Contest

Seventy-eight Nebraska high-school pupils submitted essays in the prize contest of the American Chemical society. Six prizes of $20 in gold and certificates of honorable mention will be awarded by the state committee for the best productions on the six winners in tapics assigned by the society. The essays of these six winners in Nebraska will be forwarded to the national committee on May 1 in competition with the winners in the other states and the district of Columbia. Six four-year scholarships at Yale University or Vassar College will be given to the winners of the national competition in each of the six classes. In addition to these scholarships as originally announced ten other institutions have announced scholarship grants while further awards by colleges and universities are expected by the national committee.

Dr. W. M. Barr, consulting chemist of the Union Pacific system, Omaha, is chairman of the state committee. Serving with Dr. Barr are Dr. Fred W. Upson, chairman of the department of chemistry at the University of Nebraska; Dr. H. F. Gerald, Creighton university; Dr. Earl Farnsworth, Grand Island; J. J. Steinhardt, Nebraska City, president of the Nebraska Manufacturers' association; Mrs. Edward Penney director of the general federation of women's clubs, Fullerton; Wayland Magee, Bennington; Principal Charle W. Taylor, Teachers College high school, the University of Nebraska, and state commander of the American Legion; J. H. Beveridge, superintendent of schools, Omaha; Harvey Newbranch, Omaha; Judge C. B. Letton, Lincoln; and Charles J. Warner, Waverly.

The purpose of this prize-essay contest is to bring about a better understanding of chemistry in the minds of laymen and of public-school pupils of the country. It is estimated by the national committee that over a million high-school and secondary-schools boys and girls entered the contest. In order that sufficient authentic data for thep reparation of essays might be available to all high-school students, the American Chemical society distributed over 20,000 sets of books among schools, colleges and libraries all over the country. The topics selected for the competition follow: "The Relation of Chemistry to Health and Disease," "The Relation of Chemistry to the Enrichment of Life," "The Relation of Chemistry to National Defense," The Relation of Chemistry to the Home," and "The Relation of Chemistry to the Development of the Industries and Resources of your State."

University Notes

Best spelling is found in the larger high schools of Nebraska according to data compiled by Prof. A. A. Reed, director of the extension division of the University, on the basis of returns from the second annual spelling test. Near the close of last semester the following list of words (used in sentences to insure definition) was sent to every high school in the state: cubic, punish, appeal, portion, charity, lawyer, current, urge, obtainable, sanitary, aviator, investigation, immediately, corps, occurred, parliamentary, pageant, notoriety, misappropriating, precedents. Of 18,115 pupils in 187 schools who took this test only 342 were able to make perfect records. More than half of these were from four of the largest high schools. This is a more difficult list than the one used last year, averaging approximately thirteen per cent lower for the national norm. This test more accurately measured the upper range of spelling ability in Nebraska high schools. Next year it is planned to use a more difficult list in an attempt to reach both the upper and the lower limits of spelling ability.

Study of the summary show that Nebraska high schools made relatively a much higher average than last year which was from four to six per cent below the national average. This year the range is from 3.35 per cent below to .9 per cent above the national average. One of the striking features of the returns is the wide range of spelling ability in different schools. One school showed no average above sixty per cent while another school of over 2,000 pupils has an average of 81.8 per cent for all, ranging from 71 per cent in the ninth grade to 90 per cent in the twelfth grade.

Stanley B. Houck of Minneapolis, national president of Delta Sigma Rho, honorary fraternity for intercollegiate debaters, met with the Nebraska chapter Wednesday afternoon to discuss plans for the meeting of the general council of the organization at Ann Arbor, Michigan, the first week in May. Mr. Houck explained the general aim of the fraternity in regard to expansion and limitations upon membership. The Nebraska chapter will not send a delegate to the general meeting, but will vote by proxy on the propositions outlined by Mr. Houck, who has made a tour of most of the chapters in the west.

Robert Shields, '26, Wymore, left last week to attend the Methodist students' conference at Louisville, Ky., April 18 to 20. This conference is an outgrowth of action taken by Methodist students at the Student volunteer convention in Indianapolis last December when plans were laid for the first independent conference of student from the Methodist Episcopal and the Methodist Episcopal and the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Every university was asked to send delegates to discuss the problem of church unity and various public questions. Mr. Shields has served on one Y. M. C. A. cabinet and has taken part in denominational work on the campus.

Company L of the cadet regiment, Capt. John Westerman, '24, Lincoln, commanding, has been selected as demonstration company in firing problems for the military field day, May 23. The company will operate, in tactical problems at the fair grounds, Stokes mortars, 37-millimeter guns, Browning machine guns and automatic rifles. The Pershing Rifles, select drill company, will demonstrate the Lentz-cadence system of drill in a series of maneuvers. This system was introduced at the university for the first time last fall and has been commended by Dr. Charles Fordyce, chairman of the department of educational measurements and research, as the best method of teaching co-ordination of mind and body.

Prof. O. W. Sjogren of the department of agricultural engineering has been invited by the Society of Automotive Engineers of New York city to preside at the annual tractor meetings at the Auditorium hotel, Chicago, April 24. The program will consist of papers and talks given by prominent men of the tractor industry. Professor Sjogren is a member of the standards committee and vice-chairman of the agricultural power equipment division of this society.

Plans for entertaining the inspection part from the war department are being made by Major Sidney Erickson, chairman of the military department. Lieut. Col. Herman Glade of the general staff and Major Walter Goodwin, jr., cavalry, will arrive in Lincoln Thursdya evening, May 1 and will leave Sunday, May 4. During their stay they are to be guests of Major and Mrs. Erickson. Scabbard and Blade, honory military fraternity of the university, will entertain the visiting officers at luncheon Friday, May 2. This inspection tour is to select from the universities of the country themost distinguished and best drilled reserve officers training corps units for the "Gold-star" rating of the war department. Annually about twenty-five institutions are awarded this honor.

"Newer Knowledge of the Use of Gelatine in Ice Cream," by Benjamin Masurovsky, M. Sc. '23, of the College of Agriculture, appeared in the March issue of the Ice Cream Trade Journal.

The reserve officers training corps of the University military department will parade in honor of Chancellor Samuel Avery Wednesday evening on the drill-grounds north of Society Science hall. First call will sound at 4:50 and assembly at 5, when all cadets not properly excused must be in position. Arrival of guidons is expected before then to make a more spectacular showing for the review. The public is invited to watch this inspection.

You Cannot Hide Your Fat

Overfatness is the one misfortune you cannot hide from yourself or from those around you. That is Easter as we know it, the only Easter we know.

Radiant Peace of Rebirth.

The quiescence of a spring morning, the radiant peace of the rebirth, the leavening of litanies and prayers and sermons, the cleansing, blessing story of the Easter—that is Easter to us.

Easter isn't alone for us of America, however. It slips into odd corners of the earth and is celebrated in haunts where civilization has brushed very lightly. Its a Slav and Teutonic and Saxon festival, and each celebrates it according to his heart.

The Resurrection lies behind each festival, but Latin and Greek and Slav pay homage to the tender thought of the day in wide flung manners. From Mesopotamia to Russia and from the pretty little Enlish provinces to the Tyrol, Easter is celebrated, but not always as a church festival.

Universal Easter Custom.

The giving of eggs on Easter is an almost universal custom, not only do the frilled, bobbed little boys and girls of America receive them but little Christian children in Mesopotamia buy them, they are hidden in nooks for German children, and French youngsters look for "less oeufs" on Easter Sunday. Easter eggs are not a nameless tradition, but their part in Easter is far older than Christianity.

Egg giving can be traced back to the theology and the philosophy of the ancient Egyptians, Persians, Gauls, Greeks, and Romans, among whom it was an emblem of the universe. The mysterious development of life in an egg has always been wonderful, and it is easy to see the symbolism for Easter, when nature is returning to life and out of the death of winter is coming the resurrection of the spring. The egg was used in the feast of the passover on the table with the paschal lamb and the Christians used it at Easter as representing the elements of future life, as an emblem of the Resurrection.

In Russia, Easter begins with the celebration of midnight mass on Easter eve or Holy Saturday, when the churches are thronged with worshippers. At the supreme moment, when the choir sings "Christ Is Risen" and the bells peal the midnight hour, each one kisses his neighbor three times. The women stand about with plates of food, waiting for the priests to sprinkle it with holy water. On these cakes and eggs, the householders will break the fast of Lent before the Easter feasting.

In the morning, each man and woman presents the parish priest with an Easter egg and every one carries a red egg or a gilded one for three or four days in token of the Resurrection. Easter day is a feast day in Russian homes and each one has tables decorated with flowers, lambs made of butter, cheese, or sugar, and rich food of which all callers are asked to partake.

Observance In Rome.

Rome, as should be, ushers in the day with firing of cannons from the castle of St. Angelo and about 7 o'clock the throngs of worshipers go to St. Peter's. The magnificient edifice is decorated for the day, the altars are ornamented, and the lights, after their extinction on Good Friday, are ablaze about the tomb and about the figure of St. Peter. The cardinal arch priest says the mass, the pope officiating at a private mass within the vatican.

In Greece and in places where the Greek faith prevails, the solemn service begins in the soft gloom of a great cathedral. Few lights are shining, which throws the silent throng into a soft, formless background. Early in the evening priests, chanting in turn with an unaccompanied choir, repeat the music service. As midnight approaches, they file out, and as a rocket announces midnight, a knocking is heard at the door, and repeated. When the gate is opened, they rush in, priests and choir, crying "Christ Is Risen." Each one carries a lighted taper, from which the throng light theirs, until the church blazes in their quiet glow.

In Meopotamia the Christian children at Easter time, and for the forty following days, procure as many eggs as possible. They stain them red in memory of the blood of Christ, shed at his Crucifixion.

Quaint English Customs.

English provinces afford a number of quaint and delightful Eastertide customs, unique among the English lads and lasses. There is an old superstition which says that the sun participates in the joyousness of the day by dancing in the heavens. Devonshire maidens yet rise early to see the sun dance on Easter. In Scotland, the hom eof the practical minded souls, the credulous believe that the sun whirls about and gives three leaps—and that the early risers may see it.

East Yorkshire young people believe that it is unlucky not to have a new garment on Easter—perhaps thence comes our Easter bonnet.

In Kent there is an old endowment, of unknown date, for distributing cakes among the poor every Easter afternoon. The source of the benefaction is twenty acres of land—known as the bread and cheese lands. The cakes are imprinted with two women's figures, supposedly suitable persons upon whom to bestow the bounty. In Lancashire and other places, on Monday the men "heave" the women and on Tuesday the women "heave" the men. They have gally decorated chairs or the more simple crossed hands for the "heaving" and the victim must buy his freedom with an offering.

One of the loveliest customs is carried out in the Vorariberg in the Austrian Tyrol, where modernity and popular beliefs have touched very lightly. On Holy Saturday, singers, voicing the Easter hymns, accompanied by their guitars, sing in every valley. Their voices call people to the door, who join in the choruses and sing with the strolling players. Their wide Spanish hats trimmed with flowers, crowds of children who light them in the darkness with torches, and the sound of the guitars make it a scene from grand opera, rather than a reality. The children are rewarded with Easter eggs and the singers with food and drink.

The Day In Warwick.

In Warwick, in England, the young men of the town have a custom all their own. If they can catch a hare and bring it to the parish parson before 10 o'clock on Easter Monday they are rewarded with a calf's head, one hundred eggs, and a groat in money. The town clerk of Dorst carries to every house a few white cakes as Easter offerings. The cakes are one-eighth inch thick and of two sizes, about five inches and seven inches in diameter, and have a peculiar-sweet flavor. He is rewarded with a gratuity, depending upon the generosity or the means of the householder.

The hot cross buns that are a part of the Easter day are of pagan origon. The pagan Saxons ate them in honor of the goddess Eastre and the custom has descended to us. When the Christian clergy, unable to prevent people from eating, sought to expel paganism from the church feasts, they marked the cakes with the sign of the cross to give them Christian symbolism.

In Mecklenburg it is considered ill luck to have the east wind blew on Easter and many disters will accrue from it. There the maids draw water when the wind is in the east or lay out linen to catch the dew and bathe in the water or the dew to prevent fevers and other ills during the coming year.

The Easter celebration in Spanish American countries is most symbolic and the idea is carried out in visible form. In one of the island churches an escort of troops is drawn up before the cathedral, from which emerges a life sized wax figure of the Christ, with open wounds, borne on a platform by men almost hidden from the public gaze by a long curtain.

Pomp and Ceremony.

Mary Magdalene apparently tells of the Resurrection, after which the Virgin Mary approaches the Christ figure and they bow several times. The procession proceeds from there to the church from which the two Marys were taken and after the procession has entered the door, troops fire a joyous salute.

Seventy-Eight Students of Nebraska High Schools Join Essay Contest

Seventy-eight Nebraska high-school pupils submitted essays in the prize contest of the American Chemical society. Six prizes of $20 in gold and certificates of honorable mention will be awarded by the state committee for the best productions on the six winners in tapics assigned by the society. The essays of these six winners in Nebraska will be forwarded to the national committee on May 1 in competition with the winners in the other states and the district of Columbia. Six four-year scholarships at Yale University or Vassar College will be given to the winners of the national competition in each of the six classes. In addition to these scholarships as originally announced ten other institutions have announced scholarship grants while further awards by colleges and universities are expected by the national committee.

Dr. W. M. Barr, consulting chemist of the Union Pacific system, Omaha, is chairman of the state committee. Serving with Dr. Barr are Dr. Fred W. Upson, chairman of the department of chemistry at the University of Nebraska; Dr. H. F. Gerald, Creighton university; Dr. Earl Farnsworth, Grand Island; J. J. Steinhardt, Nebraska City, president of the Nebraska Manufacturers' association; Mrs. Edward Penney director of the general federation of women's clubs, Fullerton; Wayland Magee, Bennington; Principal Charle W. Taylor, Teachers College high school, the University of Nebraska, and state commander of the American Legion; J. H. Beveridge, superintendent of schools, Omaha; Harvey Newbranch, Omaha; Judge C. B. Letton, Lincoln; and Charles J. Warner, Waverly.

The purpose of this prize-essay contest is to bring about a better understanding of chemistry in the minds of laymen and of public-school pupils of the country. It is estimated by the national committee that over a million high-school and secondary-schools boys and girls entered the contest. In order that sufficient authentic data for thep reparation of essays might be available to all high-school students, the American Chemical society distributed over 20,000 sets of books among schools, colleges and libraries all over the country. The topics selected for the competition follow: "The Relation of Chemistry to Health and Disease," "The Relation of Chemistry to the Enrichment of Life," "The Relation of Chemistry to National Defense," The Relation of Chemistry to the Home," and "The Relation of Chemistry to the Development of the Industries and Resources of your State."

University Notes

Best spelling is found in the larger high schools of Nebraska according to data compiled by Prof. A. A. Reed, director of the extension division of the University, on the basis of returns from the second annual spelling test. Near the close of last semester the following list of words (used in sentences to insure definition) was sent to every high school in the state: cubic, punish, appeal, portion, charity, lawyer, current, urge, obtainable, sanitary, aviator, investigation, immediately, corps, occurred, parliamentary, pageant, notoriety, misappropriating, precedents. Of 18,115 pupils in 187 schools who took this test only 342 were able to make perfect records. More than half of these were from four of the largest high schools. This is a more difficult list than the one used last year, averaging approximately thirteen per cent lower for the national norm. This test more accurately measured the upper range of spelling ability in Nebraska high schools. Next year it is planned to use a more difficult list in an attempt to reach both the upper and the lower limits of spelling ability.

Study of the summary show that Nebraska high schools made relatively a much higher average than last year which was from four to six per cent below the national average. This year the range is from 3.35 per cent below to .9 per cent above the national average. One of the striking features of the returns is the wide range of spelling ability in different schools. One school showed no average above sixty per cent while another school of over 2,000 pupils has an average of 81.8 per cent for all, ranging from 71 per cent in the ninth grade to 90 per cent in the twelfth grade.

Stanley B. Houck of Minneapolis, national president of Delta Sigma Rho, honorary fraternity for intercollegiate debaters, met with the Nebraska chapter Wednesday afternoon to discuss plans for the meeting of the general council of the organization at Ann Arbor, Michigan, the first week in May. Mr. Houck explained the general aim of the fraternity in regard to expansion and limitations upon membership. The Nebraska chapter will not send a delegate to the general meeting, but will vote by proxy on the propositions outlined by Mr. Houck, who has made a tour of most of the chapters in the west.

Robert Shields, '26, Wymore, left last week to attend the Methodist students' conference at Louisville, Ky., April 18 to 20. This conference is an outgrowth of action taken by Methodist students at the Student volunteer convention in Indianapolis last December when plans were laid for the first independent conference of student from the Methodist Episcopal and the Methodist Episcopal and the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Every university was asked to send delegates to discuss the problem of church unity and various public questions. Mr. Shields has served on one Y. M. C. A. cabinet and has taken part in denominational work on the campus.

Company L of the cadet regiment, Capt. John Westerman, '24, Lincoln, commanding, has been selected as demonstration company in firing problems for the military field day, May 23. The company will operate, in tactical problems at the fair grounds, Stokes mortars, 37-millimeter guns, Browning machine guns and automatic rifles. The Pershing Rifles, select drill company, will demonstrate the Lentz-cadence system of drill in a series of maneuvers. This system was introduced at the university for the first time last fall and has been commended by Dr. Charles Fordyce, chairman of the department of educational measurements and research, as the best method of teaching co-ordination of mind and body.

Prof. O. W. Sjogren of the department of agricultural engineering has been invited by the Society of Automotive Engineers of New York city to preside at the annual tractor meetings at the Auditorium hotel, Chicago, April 24. The program will consist of papers and talks given by prominent men of the tractor industry. Professor Sjogren is a member of the standards committee and vice-chairman of the agricultural power equipment division of this society.

Plans for entertaining the inspection part from the war department are being made by Major Sidney Erickson, chairman of the military department. Lieut. Col. Herman Glade of the general staff and Major Walter Goodwin, jr., cavalry, will arrive in Lincoln Thursdya evening, May 1 and will leave Sunday, May 4. During their stay they are to be guests of Major and Mrs. Erickson. Scabbard and Blade, honory military fraternity of the university, will entertain the visiting officers at luncheon Friday, May 2. This inspection tour is to select from the universities of the country themost distinguished and best drilled reserve officers training corps units for the "Gold-star" rating of the war department. Annually about twenty-five institutions are awarded this honor.

"Newer Knowledge of the Use of Gelatine in Ice Cream," by Benjamin Masurovsky, M. Sc. '23, of the College of Agriculture, appeared in the March issue of the Ice Cream Trade Journal.

The reserve officers training corps of the University military department will parade in honor of Chancellor Samuel Avery Wednesday evening on the drill-grounds north of Society Science hall. First call will sound at 4:50 and assembly at 5, when all cadets not properly excused must be in position. Arrival of guidons is expected before then to make a more spectacular showing for the review. The public is invited to watch this inspection.

You Cannot Hide Your Fat

Overfatness is the one misfortune you cannot hide from yourself or from those around you. If too thin, your dressmaker or tailor can supply the deficiencies, but the overfat carry a burden they can not conceal. There is one sure way to reduce your weight surely and quickly. The harmless Marmola Prescription, which changes the fatty tissues and fat producing foods to solid flesh and energy, helps the general health and digestion, permits you to eat substantial food, and leaves the skin clear and smooth. This famous prescription is now condensed into tablet form. Each tablet contains an exact dose of the same harmless ingredients that made the original prescription capable of reducing the overfat body steadily and easily without the slightest ill effects. Take but one tablet after each meal and at bedtime until the normal weight is reached and the bodily health completely restored. Ask your druggist for Marmola Prescription Tablets or send one dollar to the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich., the price the world over, and you will receive enough to start you well on the road to slimness and happiness.—Advertisement

THE SONG OF THE HEART.

Every human act finds its inspiration in the eternal quest for happiness.

A courtly and gay adventurer from the old world once set out upon a quest for the fount of eternal youth. Ponce de Leon was seeking youth not because it meant the prolongation of his life but for the reason that he wanted to view the world with the joyous eyes of youth. Youth means joy and happiness. Then all of the world is beautiful and its voices are sweet; disillusionment, cynicism, pain and suffering have not clouded the eyes and placed their deadening poison on the soul.

This Easter morn, when days of warm sunshine have brought a promise of the glories of spring to a world which seemed so dead and gray but a few weeks ago—humanity's most urgent need is faith. The deep abiding trust in the goodness of man and the resplendent beauty of life are youth's most precious secrets. When faith is gone, then only the ashes remain. What travail have the nations of the world undergone since 1914 because the cold fears, the suspicions, the hatreds and the jealousies, inspired by the desire of domination, drugged the common impulses of kindness and decency.

* * *

This is a material age.

Our faith extends so far as our eyes can see.

Human endeavor confidently looks forward to material reward. The arts, science, finance and industry have quite generally set their goal in dollars and cents. The old pride of achievement, the satisfaction which comes from the knowledge of a duty well performed have disappeared. This new and abject devotion to materialism has robbed business and industry of the human atmosphere which formerly characterized it, and deprived it of the great, potential force resulting from the more intimate relationships of employer and employe.

When men and women again come to the appreciation that money and position cannot bring happiness, Easter will find a greater measure of contentment in the hearts of the people.

A few days ago a lonely old woman, Mrs. Harriet Danks, died in an obscure rooming house in a crowded section of Brooklyn. She was 82 years of age. Not a comforting hand of relative or close friend smoothed the final hours of her life. The lines of deep illusion were in her face, even while her soul was wafted to its Maker. a writer in The Kansas City Star tells us. Hers was the great tragedy which money sometimes brings. It was she who had inspired "Silver Ireads Among the Gold." A month before Mrs. Danks' death, Galli-Curci had enraptured a great audience in the Metropolitan Opera House of New York City with the thrilling strains of a song in which a husband had immortalized his wife. John McCormack had sung it and Kreisler had played it. Singing waiters in the vilest dens of the underworld had shamed drunken roisterers into silence with its haunting melody. For fifty years it had echoed round the world in every form of musical expression.

"Darling, I am growing old——"

He sang the words, his deep, rich bass voice filling the room, while his eyes wandered to a slender, graceful woman in a nearby rocking chair, busily engaged in knitting.

"Yes, my darling you will be, will be,
"Always young and fair to me."

He was Hart P. Danks, who wrote "Silver Threads Among the Gold" and the woman who died in Brooklyn a few days ago was his wife, to whom the song is dedicated. They were living in comparative poverty then, but soon the royalties began to pour in and the Danks family moved to a better home. As the gold came pouring in, and with almost everything they might desire at their disposal, Hart P. Danks and his wife drifted apart. They separated and twenty years ago he was found dead in a rooming house, with this note attached to his pillow:

"It is hard to grow old alone."

Their experience is not so different from those which have come to thousands of others. Their tragedy is the penalty of lost faith, shattered ideals and false gods.

* * *

For five long years we have scoffed at idealism.

Each Easter morn finds the world groping blindly in the dark for peace of mind and heart. Each Easter since 1918 has found the world distressed in spirit and soul because its faith has been destroyed.

They may call it religion, but Thomas Paine, the man who uttered the following words, was accounted the great skeptic in his day:

"I believe in one God, and I hope for happiness beyond the grave. The world is my country; all mankind my brothers; and to do good my religion."

That doctrine does not permit of the materialism which has made a nightmare of civilization. It breathes of the sublime faith in humanity which corrects all misunderstandings and spans all difficulties.

Peace and contentment are ours when our faith justifies them.

GOVERNMENT BY MINORITY.

In the greatest democracy in the world, the indifference of voters to their responsibilities as citizens is gradually bringing about government by a minority.

The memorable campaign of 1896 probably brought the greatest outpouring to the polls since Civil war days, when the bitter issues raised by the slavery question served to awaken the voters of this country to the necessity of expressing their sentiments. Since 1896, the percentage of people voting has progressively decreased.

In the presidential election of 1920, less than 50 per cent. of the legal voters of this country cast a ballot and in the congressional elections two years later, less than 40 per cent of the legal vote was registered. If the late President Harding had received all of the ballots cast by republicans and democrats in 1920, he would have still been put into office by a minority of the voters.

In the election held in this state ten days ago, less than 38 per cent of the total registered vote in Nebraska took the time and trouble to go to the polls. In Lincoln the most important issue with reference to school affairs that has been raised, since a minority expression approved the issuance of $2,000,000 of bonds for the building program, was decided with slightly less than 25 per cent of the total vote of the district marking the ballot on that subject.

Brookhart of Iowa received only 29 per cent. of the possible legal vote of that state when he was elected to the United States senate; "Bob" LaFollette of Wisconsin in his last election was the choice of but 28 per cent. of the voters of that state; Dr. Copeland of New York received but 28 per cent. while Senator Bruce of Maryland was the choice of but 20 per cent.; Dill of Washington but 17 per cent. and Ferris of Michigan of but 16 per cent.

Whatever delinquency there is in government today certainly reflects the delinquency of the people in their failure to take an interest in the affairs of government.

Fresh dangers in the bloc or group movement in this country are presented through the failure of the great mass of people to exercise their franchise rights. A highly organized, aggressive group or bloc, with their particular self-interest to be served, can practically control the fortunes and destinies of millions of others, because the unthinking masses stay away from the polls. Government by a minority is a challenge to democratic institutions. If it continues, representative government will fail.

A NEW FLOATING PALACE.

The North German Lloyd Steamship company comes forward with a new bid for ocean supremacy with a floating palace which has been christened the "Columbus."

In point of size and luxuriousness it surpasses the two greatest steamships which this company had built prior to the war—the "George Washington" and the "Kronprinzessin."

The "Columbus" is 775 feet long, 88 feet wide, and has a draught of 31 feet, 11¾ inches, with a corresponding net space of 32,000 tons and a displacement of 39,000 tons—thus making it one of the greatest ships that has ever been launched. The bridge deck towers 100 feet above the keel. The two gigantic funnels are 155 feet in height and the topmost pinnacle of the masts are 200 feet above the keel.

The huge size of this monster ocean greyhound however, is not the only thing which will excite admiration and interest in the maritime world. The elegance and beauty of the appointments are a triumph for the shipbuilder. The "Columbus" has facilities for 400 first-class passengers. The dining saloon on the main deck measures 890 square yards. The central portion rises to the lofty height of 20 feet above the floor level. The deck reception rooms are combined in a "deck palace" with furnishings of such rare and exquisite beauty as to excite wonder. There is a promenade over a block and a half in length, which is partially enclosed to protect the passengers from inclement weather. The library the writing rooms, the smoking rooms, the social halls the foyers, and the private cabins are equally impressive.

If the "Columbus" is a criterion, Germany intends to dispute claims for supremacy with any nation in the world.

"WILSON ENDED A 'PRO-GERMAN'"

A correspondent, who fails to sign his name, encloses a clipping from a paper with reference to James Kerney's interview in The Saturday Evening Post of March 29, headed: "Wilson Ended a 'Pro German.'"

That statement is as false as to say Mr. Wilson had previously been "Pro-British" or "Pro-French." The record can successfully be challenged to show where in a single instance Woodrow Wilson was interested in anything except what he conceived to be substantial justice.

When the full history of the proceedings at Versailles is known, it will develop that Mr. Wilson was Germany's only friend in court. He had harbored no malice toward the German people. His quarrel had been entirely with the German government, as it was then constituted, with its ambitious autocratic designs against the peace of the world and the safety of free peoples. At Versailles he was cast in the role of a generous and successful opponent on the battlefield, whose great task was in curbing the demands of those who had previously been associated with him in the war.

Lloyd George had promised the British people that Germany would be made to pay to the last drop of blood and Clemenceau was poisoned with the fierce fires of hatred, which consumed France. Wilson alone of all the group counselled moderation and a treaty in accordance with the accepted principles of international justice and decency.

Woodrow Wilson died as he lived—a firm believer that no nation, no matter how powerful, as an abstract matter of justice should use her superior resources in men and wealth to trample ruthlessly upon the rights of those who lived in less fortunate lands. He was constant to the faith which exalted him and gave him strength to plunge his nation into war—an act which caused him more physical and mental suffering and anguish than any other event of his life.

THE LOVE OF HOME.

A German family, because of the inability of the husband and father to earn in his native land, sufficient income to support the wife and children, recently came to the United States, locating at Fremont, where the man is profitably employed. Happiness would naturally be expected as the attendant of newly-found Prosperity, and Sorrow a spectre never to be encountered in the home of the immigrants. But Gloom pervades the domicile of the exiles and one may search and wait in vain for the smiling face of Joy.

The wife and mother, it is related, is pining away, and physicians who have been called in have diagnosed the case is one of "homesickness." They say that only a return to the scenes of her girlhood and early womanhood can restore her to health. So the woman and her little ones are going back to their native land; they're going home.

The love of home is inherent in every human being and the scenes of childhood are more ineffaceably imprinted upon the mind than those of any other period of life. Wherever one may wander, no matter to what pinnacles of success one may ascend, Memory ever lingers in the verdant valley of Childhood and sings of "Home, Sweet Home."

It is well for the world that this is so. For childhood is the age of innocence and home is the birthplace of love. The one who harkens to the voice of Memory and at times wanders back to the old home is the better for the journey. Once again he is an innocent lad; the lessons and precepts of those earlier years fill his mind and he takes invoice of himself. Is he all that he could have been, that the sainted one called Mother had hoped he might be, or that he might yet become?

Love is the greatest force in life, for "God is love," so where love is, God is, and where God is there can be no evil. The home being the place where we first knew love is therefore the place where we first know God and a longing to return to that place is but the working of an instinct planted in every human breast by the Maker of every good and perfect gift.

THE INDUSTRIAL SCRAP HEAP.

America's industrial scrap heap has grown 10 per cent in the last two decades, according to figures compiled by A. W. rye, a nationally known insurance man.

Girls and women have largely replaced the gray-haired workers of this country who have been thrown out of employment. Another factor scarcely less important than the entrance of women in industry has been the increased agricultural efficiency, due to improved machinery, which has turned a flood of labor from the farms into the factories.

While female labor in America has increased nearly 8 per cent in the last twenty years, total employment has increased slightly less than 2 per cent. Chances of employment for a man 65 years of age, or over, have dropped 10 per cent. At least 24 per cent of these discarded workers are without financial resources of any description, and not one in ten has been able to make comfortable provision for old age. There are now 1,500,000 workers more than 65 years old, who are helpless.

The improved methods of farming in this country has made it possible for the same number of workers as were employed in agricultural pursuits in 1900 to produce nearly 40 per cent more foodstuffs. This new farm efficiency, however, has resulted in turning nearly 12,500,000 new workers into industry. Capital invested in machinery has increased 495 per cent, and per individual worker has increased 117 per cent. It is a matter of the most grave concern to keep this costly machinery operating at top speed to insure the maximum industrial production. As a result youth is being burned up in the industrial world, and age has been thrown on the scrap heap.

STEPHEN LEACOCK

Over the Hurdles to Success

Self-Taught Shoe Magnate Demonstrates the Vast Superiority of Business Character to a College Education

(The familiar negative in which the successful business man recounts the early struggles by which he made good.)

No, sir, I had no early advantages whatever. I was brought up plain and hard—try one of these cigars; they cost me fifty cents each. In fact, I practically had no schooling at all. When I left school, I didn't know how to read, not to read good. It's only since I've been in business that I've learned to write English, that is so as to use it right.

But I'll guarantee to say there isn't a man in the shoe business to-day can write a better letter than what I can. But all that I know is what I've learned myself. Why, I can't do fractions even now. I don't see that a man need. And I never learned no geography, except what I got for myself off railroad folders. I don't believe a man needs more than that anyway.

How About the Bootleg?

I've got a boy at Harvard now. His mother was set on it. But I don't see that he learns anything, or nothing that will help him in business. They say they earns them character and manners in the colleges but, as I see it, a man can get all that just as well in business—is that boot-leg all right? If not, tell me and I'll give the head waiter; they charbe me enough for it; what you're drinking costs me thirty dollars a quart.

But I was starting to tell you about my early start in business. I had it good and hard all right. When I struck New York—I was sixteen then—I had just eighty cents to my name. I lived on it for nearly a week while I was walking round hunting for a job. I used to get soup for three cents, and roast beef with potatoes, all you could eat, for eight cents, that tasted better than anything I can ever get in this club. It was down somewhere on Sixth Avenue, but I've forgotten the way to it.

Well, about the sixth day I got a job, down in a shoe factory, working on a machine. I guess you've never seen shoe-machinery, have you? No, you wouldn't likely. It's complicated Even in those days there was thirty-five machines went to the making of a shoe, and now we use as many as fifty-four. I've never seen the machines before but the foreman took me on. "You look strong," he said. "I'll give you a try anyay."

His First Raise.

So I started in I didn't know anything. But I made good from the first day. I got four a week at the start, and after two months I got a raise to four twenty-five.

Well, after I'd worked there about three months, I went up to the floor manager of the flat I worked on, and I said, "Say, Mr. Jones, do you want to save ten dollars a week on expenses?" "How?" says he. "Why," I said, "that foreman I'm working under on the machine, I've watched him, and I can do his job; dismiss him and I'll take over his work at half what you pay him." Can you do the work?" he says. "Try me out," I said; "fire him and give me a chance." "Well," he said, "I like your spirit anyway; you've got the right sort of stuff in you."

So he fired the foreman and I took over the job and held it down. It was hard at first, but I worked twelve hours a day, and studied up a book on factory machinery at night. Well, after I'd been on that work for about a year, I went in one day to the general manager downstairs, and I said, "Mr. Thompson, do you want to save about a hundred dollars a month on your overhead costs?"

"How can I do that?" says he. "Sit down."

"Why," I said, "you dismiss Mr. Jones and give me his place as manager of the floor, and I'll undertake to do his work, and mine with it, at a hundred less than you're paying now." He turned and went into the inner office, and I could hear him talking to Mr. Evans, the managing director. "The young fellow certainly has character," I heard him say. "Then he came out and he said, "Well, we're going to give you a try anyway; we like to help our employes all we can, you know; and you've got the sort of stuff in you that we're looking for."

So they dismissed Jones next day and I took over his job and I did it easy. It was nothing anyway. The higher up your get in business, the easier it is if you know how. I held that job two years, and I saved all my salary except twenty-five dollars a month, and I lived on that. I never spent any money anyway. I went once to see Irving do this Macbeth for twenty-five cents and once I went for a concert and saw a man play the violin for fifteen cents in the gallery. But I don't believe you get much out of the theatre anyway; as I see it, there's nothing to it.

Skids Under Mr. Thompson.

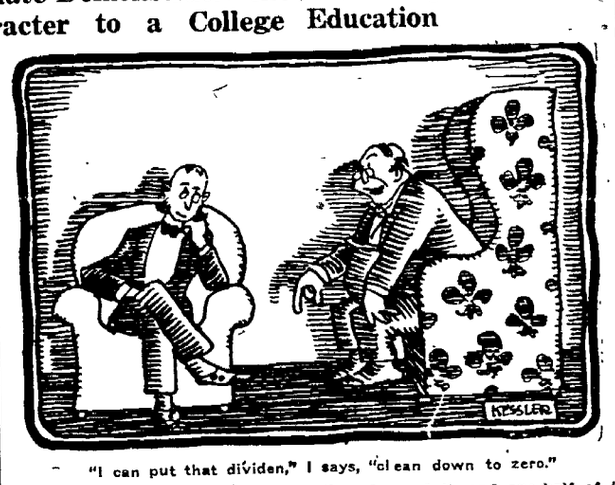
Well, after a while I went one day to Mr Evans' office and I said, "Mr Evans, I want you to dismiss Mr. Thompson, the general manager." "Why, what's he done?" he says "Nothing," I said, "but I can take over his job on top of mine and you can pay me the salary you give him and save what you're paying me now." "Sounds good to me," he says.

So they let Thompson go and I took his place. That, of course, is where I got my first real start, because you see, I could control the output and run the costs up and down just where I liked. I suppose you don't know anything about costs and all that—they don't teach that sort of thing in colleges—but even you would understand something about dividends and would see that an energetic man with lots of character and business in him, if he's general manager can just do what he likes with the costs, especially the overhead, and the shareholders have just got to take what he gives them and be glad to. You see they can't fire him—not when he's got it all in his own hands—for fear it will all go to pieces.

Why would I want to run it that way for? Well, I'll tell you. I had a notion by that time that the business was getting so big that Mr. Evans the managing director, and most of the board had pretty well lost track of the details and didn't understand it. There's an awful lot, you know in the shoe business. It's not like ordinary things. It's complicated And so I'd got an idea that I would shove them clean out of it—or most of them.

So I went one night to see the president, old Guggenbaum, up at his residence. He didn't only have this business, but he was in a lot of other things as wedll, and he was a mighty hard man to see. He wouldn't let any man see him unless h knew first what he was going to say. But I went up to his residence at night, and I saw him there. I talked first with his daughter, and I said I just had to see him. I said it so she didn't dare refuse. There's a way in talking to women that they won't say no.

So I showed Mr. Gugenbaum what I could do with the stock. "I can put that dividend," I says, "clean down to zero—and they'll none of them know why. You can buy the lot of them out at your own price, and after that I'll put the dividend back to fifteen, or even twenty, in two years."



"I can put that dividen," I says, "clean down to zero."

Closing The Deal.

"And where do you come in?" says the old man, with a sort of hard look. He had a fine business head, the old man, at least in those days.

So I explained to him where I came in. "All right," he said; "go ahead. But I'll put nothing in writing." "Mr. Guggenbaum, you don't need to," I said; "you're as fair and square as I am and that's onnugh for me."

His daughter let me out of the house door when I went. I guess she'd been pretty scared that she'd done wrong about letting me in. But I said to her it was all right, and after that when I wanted to see the old man I'd always ask for her and she'd see that I got in all right.

Got them squeezed out? Oh, yes, easy. There wasn't any trouble about that. You see the old man worked up a sort of jolt in wholesale leather on one side, and I fixed up a strike at the hands on the other. We passed the dividend two quarter running, and within a year we had them all scared out and the bulk of the little stockholders, of course, trooped out after them. They ayways do. The old man picked up the stock when they dropped it, and one-half of it he handed over to me.

Industry In His Fist.

That's what put me where I am now, do you see, with the whole control of the industry in two states and more than that now, because we have the Amalgamated Tanneries in with us, so it's practically all one concern.

Guggenbaum? Did I squeeze him out? No, I didn't because, you see, I didn't have to. The way it was—well, I tell you—I used to go up to the house, see, to arrange things with him—and the way it was—why, you see, I married his daughter, see, so I didn't exactly need to squeeze him out.

He lives up with us now, but he's pretty loud and past business. In fact I do it all for him now, and pretty well everything he has is signed over to my wife. She has no head for it, and she's sort of timid anyway—always was—so I manage it all. Of course, if anything happens to the old man, then we'll get it all. I don't think he'll last long. I notice him each day, how weak he's getting.

My son in the business? Well, I'd like him to be. But he don't seem to take to it somehow—I'm afraid he takes more after his mothes; or else it's the college that's doing it. Somehow, I don't think the colleges bring out business character, do you?

A Word from Sloan.

(Kearney Hub.)

Charles H. Sloan has just and abundant cause for commenting on the recent senatorial primary in which he made so poor a showing against Senator Norris, standing for re-election. Passing his reference to the massing of certain elements against him, notably the ku klux klan, the railway workers and the pro-German elements which do not forget the war-time sympathies of Senator Norris, he has abundant cause for scoring the political procedure which permits a democrat or any other person not a republican to vote the republican primary ticket and nominate those who are confessedly not republicans.

Mr. Sloan emphasized throughout the campaign the fact that he was a republican and sought the votes of republicans. He did not make any bid for democratic votes, for farmer-labor ites or the votes of any persons having no political or moral right to vote in a republican primary. Senator Norris made much of the fact that he had only contempt for parties, admitted that he was not a republican, and confessed lack of faith even in himself to accomplish anything in the senate.

The Norris managers were outside the republican party, and they made the appeal to non-partisan league and farmer-labor elements previous to the primary that "only those who call for republican ballots can be of help to Norris." This appeal was particularly to voters in small towns and on farms where registration of voters is not required.

The question as to whether the best man won is not in point. The only question is the methods employed to prevent or prostitute the ballot and defeat the principle of the primary law, under which in Nebraska and some other western states the livery of the republican party have been stolen to serve the enemies of the republican party.

Cost of Government.

(Grand Island Herald.)

You paid $68 tp run the local, state and federal government in 1922. Directly or indirectly it came out of your pocket. The people earned $63,000,000,000, but the government took away $7,000,000,000.

The cost of the federal government to each man, woman and child was $29 last year. As recently as 1916, it was only $7. The war is not over; each one of us pays $1 a year interest instead of the pre-war 24 cents, and each person is loaded with $200 of the huge federal debt. Among the immense government departments, the Veterans' bureau takes 13 per cent of the expenditures, close behind the navy department with 21 per cent, and the war department with 20 per cent.

State and local governments got $39 and the $68. The average citizen paid 183 per cent more to the state in 1922 than in 1912, 141 per cent more to the country, and 80 per cent more to the city. Debts for these divisions plus the federal government, saddle each worker in the United States with $780. Every eleven of these workers over sixteen are supporting one public employe—and it is costing our many wage earners over ten years of age some $91 a year to support these 3,400,000 public embployes

How can it be stopped?

Mankind's Greatest Service.

(Scottsbluff Tribune.)

The dedication of the West Nebraska Methodist Episcopal hospital today marks an epoch in relief of suffering humanity in the western section of this state and a portion of Wyoming. The latest development of scientific research in the medical world are a part of the facilities of the institution. With the scientific knowledge of the medical profession in the valley, these servants are in a position to cope with and conquer the ravages of disease and the enemy of health and happiness to a greater degree. Scottsbluff will be a mecca for the distressed in cities and towns for miles around, and what is nobler than to render a service to the unfortunate?

The achievement is the result of months of sacrifice on the part of many, who labored arduously and strenuously, surmounting innumerable obstacles, which arose almost daily, never faltering nor permitting hindrances to discourage them in their efforts. There is still a vast amount of work to be done before the institution reaches the point of perfection, which the workers have set as their goal. But they will not hesitate in their tack one moment until the worthy objective is reached.

The imposing structure—a six story brick edifice, strictly fireproof, with a capacity of 125 beds besides office rooms, dining room and kitchen—is a worthy tribute to the city and community, and meets a long felt need for increased hospitalization made necessary by the growth and increased population of the country.

The Tribune realizes to the fullest extent the significance of the dedication service today and congratulates the officers, directors, as well as every individual who saw a duty and responded so generously, on their successful efforts.

It is the greatest service ever rendered this city or the North Platte valley by humankind.

The Kearney Eclipse.

(Kearney Hub.)

Notice has been served on Hiram Johnson by the voters of Michigan Illinois and Nebraska, that he may as well quit running for president and resume his duties as a senator of the United States which he has been grossly neglecting since the present congress convened.

Michigan was first to speak at the primaries on Monday with a Coolidge lead of two to one. Returns being received from yesterday's primary in Nebraska give an estimated majority of twenty-five thousand and upward for Coolidge. The first favorable break for Johnson came in Cook county (Chicago) in the Illinois primary, but the downstate returns soon mopped up the Johnson lead and put him hopelessly in the rear.

Johnson's hope was in the central west, out of which he has plucked nothing except the endorsement of South Dakota, by a small majority. One crowning disaster for Johnson remains, viz, the loss of California and a home-state repudiation—a result not yet assured but considered probable and even imminent.

The pitiable finish of Hiram Johnson symbolizes and is a prophecy of what will later befall the political prophets of evil and apostles of discontent. Their days are numbered. The croak of the raven will be silence. In lieu thereof America will have a rebaptism of its old faith in American institutions and acquire a new faith in themselves as sovereign spokesmen of a great nation.

The Thompson Appointment.

(Grand Island Independent.)

The appointment of Hon. W. H. Thompson as judge of the supreme court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Aldrich is as logical as it is merited by the qualifications of the appointee. Many of his friends throughout the state had expected this appointment to be made sooner; but the deference that has been paid in the matter of the verdict of the people by Governor Bryan is also to be highly commended. It being certain that the people of the Fifth district would, on April 8th, indicate their choice, and but a short time intervening, Mr. Bryan awaited that decision. Mr. Thompson having received by far the highest number of votes of all of the candidates on the primary non-political ballot the spirit of democracy has been followed in a commendable way. Judge Thompson will at once assume the duties of his office. His own home folks have only too recently expressed such an opinion as to make further comment redundant.

Pay of Custodians.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 19.—To the Editor of the Lincoln Star: We of the custodian service in the various federal buildings, see a lot of this high cost of living and increases in wages granted to othe remployes but never a word about us laborers in the custodian service.

Now we receive $900 per year and are required to work most every day out of the 365. If anybody thinks it is a picnic to bring up a family and get a home on $900 a year just step right up and try it for a few years. As congress is now in session we ought to get some consideration from somewhere. This letter is merely to be published to show and explain to the people the poorly paid laborers in the custodian service of the federal government. Let's all push together and see if something can be done to remedy the situation for federal employes.

Telephone Service.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 19.—To the Editor of The Lincoln Star: How can we get relief and service? When a man send a 5 pound package over the rural government parcel post from Lincoln to Kansas City and have it delivered out in the country to Mr. Brown he notices the cost is about 9 cents. He telephones to Mr. Brown over the inexpensive telephone wires for just three minutes to ask if the package arrives O. K. and it cost him about $1.45. When he pays this big bill he remembers that the rates of private companies have been cut down while the government ownership and municipal rates are lower.

This same man telephones quite often to the farmers to buy produce and he finds that after he works on the lines calling up a town like Waverly or Davy, sometimes the whole district of lines have been cut off because of shortage of girls or lack of service and then he gets the reports back that the farmers' lines are busy, and he sometimes wonders if it wouldn't be better to get an automoblie and rush out in the country and talk to these people rather than telephone and thus save time.

He finally calls up the manager of the telephone company to ask him if there isn't some way they could get the town of Waverly which has been busy for a half hour or so. The girl reports that the manager is out and the assistant manager is out and she takes your number and asks the manager to call. After two days' waiting for the manager's call you wonder what to do.

Then you write your newspaper and you telephone your editors and hope that there will be some way to improve conditions and grease the wheels of industry.

Some tell us that they notice when they call information board that it is slow service when they call long distance when the telephone company expects to make a little extra money the service is better.

How can we get this better service.

ONE WHO WOULD LIKE TO GREASE THE WHEELS OF INDUSTRY.

On a Sound Foundation.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 19.—To the Editor of the Lincoln Star: "I never saw so many people out of work." There isn't any money in circulation." "We are having the hardest times we ever had in Nebraska." Everywhere we hear these remarks and similar ones. And in a measure they are true. But the person who goes to the trouble to look under the surface itsn't likely to be pessimistic.

A well-known financial writer, in a recent article in a Lincoln newspaper, said there was plenty of money to be had in New York at 3 per cent, or even less, on good security, but there were few borrowers.

For this surplus of money in the east and shortage in the middle west there is a reason, and it is such that we should feel elated rather than downcast over present conditions.

The decrease in farm values with an increase in interest rates and difficulties in the way of securing new loans put thousands of farmers face to face with the necessity of reducing their loans or going into bankruptcy. Many went the latter road, but the majority chose the former.

For more than a year now, and particularly since last fall, farmers as a class have cut out useless expenditures and have applied their earnings to reducing their indebtedness.

No exact figures are available, but a large percentage of the money loaned on Nebraska farms is eastern insurance money. This means that money paid by the farmers on loans and as interest goes east and ceases to circulate in this part part of the country.

The middle-west is almost exclusively an agricultural country. All business is directly or indirectly dependent upon the farmer. When he quits spending money locally, the circulation of money locally is greatly retarded. That is the condition at present.

So-called "hard times" will continue as long as the farmers continue their thrift campaign. But it means restoration of this part of the country to a healthy condition economically which will in time result in prosperity on a sounder basis than has existed during the period of inflated land values and reckless spending.

Farmers, relieved of the burden of excessive loans and heavy interest payments, will enter into an era of prosperity that will be reflected in every line of business and felt by everyone. Despite the howling of politicians of a certain class, this country is not going to the dogs, in fact the outlook is more promising than at any time since the world war began in Europe.

Newspaper "Corrections."

(Brooklyn Eagle)

Our national love of humor has crystallized or encysted like a fly in amber the story of the fierce lank Georgia mountaineer who lugged his razor-sharp bowie knife into the sanctum of Henry W. Grady of the Atlanta Constitution and brandished it over the head of the editor, exclaiming: "This morning the Constitution said I was dead. You must retract that statement. You must own you lied," to whom the inimitably impertturbable Grady responded solemnly: "If the Constitution said this morning that you were dead, then you were dead this morning. The Constitution never makes a mistake. But I'll tell you what I will do for you; I'll insert your name in the birth column tomorrow morning at regular advertising rates."

Senator Owen of Oklahoma may have hit up against something of the same sentiment in some newspaper office. At any rate he thinks he sees an evil and proceeds at once to suggest its abatement by legislation. If a bill he is introducing in the United States Senate becomes a law, no newspaper may have the privileges of the mails if it refuses to publish a sworn denial, correction or explanation of any statement it has made "in precisely the same page and position on the page" as the statement complained of was published. * * * To print nothing that does not seem to come on good authority, to reject for fuller investigation every story that lacks verisimilitude, and to avoid being beaten on realnews is the triple task of the conscientious editor. Deliberation is impossible. Time is not allowed. And if through an error of judgment or through misplaced confidence in a news source what is not true has been printed as true, correction is commonly welcomed, invariably tolerated. That is the rule of modern journalism.

Railroad Efficiency.

Among the many unjust charges brought against the railroads in recent years, particularly by self-seeking politicians, one of the most frequent accusations has been that the railroads were inefficient. It is true that the railroads are not a perfect machine by any means, but this is also true of all other industries. On the other hand, the railroads' efficiency is improving all the time and improving faster than the efficiency shown in many other industries. A striking illustration of this is found in the report just made public by the National Transportation Institute. This report shows that in the 20 years between 1900 and 1920 the railroads tripled their transportation output, although the number of their employes and the amount of their capital merely doubled. Manufacturing, on the other hand, increased its capital five times, doubled the number of its employes, but only a little more than doubled its output. For each unit of industrial output in 1920, more than $2 of invested capital had to be supported as against $1 in 1900; whereas, with the railroads, for every unit of traffic in 1920 only about 65 cents invested in capital had to be supported as against $1 in 1900. Each worker in agriculture used 3.7 times as much capital in 1920 and yet brought forth only one and one-third times his product of 1900. These figures show that it is the advance in efficiency by the railroads that is alone responsible for their ability to pay existing wages.

The Spirit of Mountain Climbing

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

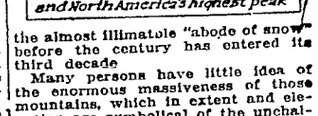
I hope those climbers get to the top of Mt. Everest. I wish I could be there with them. Mountain climbing is the finest exercise in the world for lungs, muscles, nerves and head. The names of the men who first stamp their feet in the eternal snows on the head of the great chief of the mighty Himalayas, and premier of all the mountains of the earth, will be written among the immortals.

Mountain climbing has been called a nineteenth century sport, but already Othello had included in the heroic tale with which he won the admiration and the heart of Desdemona, for after his "hair-breadth 'scapes i' the imminent deadly breach," he mentions his adventures among "antres vast and deserts idle, rough quarries, rocks and hills whose heads touch heaven."

I am not much concerned about the questions of practical usefulness asked in connection with this great adventure of the Himalayan climbers. It overrides all such questions. In it is an act done in the high style, which honors humanity by offering it food for its inmost nature, which is compact of pure imagination and aspiration.

Mountain climbing is like the "Arabian Nights"—its subject is not science, and not trade, and not society, but something belonging to the transcendental world, which people can only understand when they are in a mood of detachment from ordinary ideas of practicality. It is the work of the spirit that discovered the earth's poles, reaching both within a period of but little over two years.

Yet the climbing of Mount Everest will have aplenty of practical results—in geography, in physics, in meteorology, in physiology and in many other ways. Perhaps men will fly over the immense mass of the Himalayan ranges and plateaus, the almost illimatole "abode of snow" before the century has entered its third decade.



Many persons have little idea of the enormous massiveness of those mountains, which in extent and elevation are symbolical of the unchallengable supremacy of Asia among the continents. Look at a topographical chart of the world, where the Himalayas seem as though they must weight down and crack the crust of the earth. Yet the modern doctrine of "isostacy," the "floating" of the continents and mountains on a denser zone of earth-stuff below, assures us that those huge ranges and towering peaks, together with their mighty foundations, are relatively light.

In the western world we have the longest mountain chain in existence, the Andes, and if the Rocky Mountains be considered as a northward extension of the Andean chain, the combined length is prodigious. Along its length, especially in South America, rise many very lofty peaks, of which Aconcagua (23,393 feet) is probably the highest. But that is more than a mile less than the height of Everest.

It is instructive and interesting to compare Everest with the highest North American peak, Mount McKinley. For convenience, we may picture each mountain as a cone (which of course, is not its real shape), giving it a base proportional to its height. The height of Everest is 14 times that of McKinley; their relative volume, measured as cones, is about as three to one. But there are two other Himalayan peaks each more than 28,000 feet high, and many exceeding 25,000.

THE SONG OF THE HEART.

A courtly and gay adventurer from the old world once set out upon a quest for the fount of eternal youth. Ponce de Leon was seeking youth not because it meant the prolongation of his life but for the reason that he wanted to view the world with the joyous eyes of youth. Youth means joy and happiness. Then all of the world is beautiful and its voices are sweet; disillusionment, cynicism, pain and suffering have not clouded the eyes and placed their deadening poison on the soul.

This Easter morn, when days of warm sunshine have brought a promise of the glories of spring to a world which seemed so dead and gray but a few weeks ago—humanity's most urgent need is faith. The deep abiding trust in the goodness of man and the resplendent beauty of life are youth's most precious secrets. When faith is gone, then only the ashes remain. What travail have the nations of the world undergone since 1914 because the cold fears, the suspicions, the hatreds and the jealousies, inspired by the desire of domination, drugged the common impulses of kindness and decency.

* * *

This is a material age.

Our faith extends so far as our eyes can see.

Human endeavor confidently looks forward to material reward. The arts, science, finance and industry have quite generally set their goal in dollars and cents The old pride of achievement, the satisfaction which comes from the knowledge of a duty well performed have disappeared. This new and abject devotion to materialism has robbed business and industry of the human atmosphere which formerly characterized it, and deprived it of the great, potential force resulting from the more intimate relationships of employer and employe.

When men and women again come to the appreciation that money and position cannot bring happiness. Easter will find a greater measure of cotentment in the hearts of the people.

A few days ago a lonely old woman, Mrs. Harriet Danks, died in an obscure rooming house in a crowded section of Brooklyn. She was 82 years of age. Not a comforting hand of relative or close friend smoothed the final hours of her life. The lines of deep illusion were in her face, even while her soul was wafted to its Maker, a writer in The Kansas City Star tells us. Hers was the great tragedy which money sometimes brings. It was she who had inspired "Silver hreads Among the Gold." A month before Mrs. Danks' death, Galli-Curci had enraptured a great audience in the Metropolitan Opera House of New York City with the thrilling strains of a song in which a husband had immortalized his wife. John McCormack had sung it and Kreisler had played it. Singing waiters in the vilest dens of the underworld had shamed drunken roisterers into silence with its haunting melody. For fifty years it had echoed round the world in every form of musical expression.

"Darling, I am growing old——"

He sang the words, his deep, rich bass voice filling the room, while his eyes wandered to a slender, graceful woman in a nearby rocking chair, busily engaged in knitting.

"Yes, my darling you will be, will be,
"Always young and fair to me."

He was Hart P. Danks, who wrote "Silver Threads Among the Gold" and the woman who died in Brooklyn a few days ago was his wife, to whom the song is dedicated. They were living in comparative poverty then, but soon the royalties began to pour in and the Danks family moved to a better home. As the gold came pouring in, and with almost everything they might desire at their disposal, Hart P. Danks and his wife drifted apart. They separated and twenty years ago he was found dead in a rooming house, with this note attached to his pillow:

"It is hard to grow old alone."

Their experience is not so different from those which have come to thousands of others. Their tragedy is the penalty of lost faith, shattered ideals and false gods.

* * *

For five long years we have scoffed at idealism.

Each Easter morn finds the world groping blindly in the dark for peace of mind and heart. Each Easter since 1918 has found the world distressed in spirit and soul because its faith has been destroyed.

They may call it religion, but Thomas Paine, the man who uttered the following words, was accounted the great skeptic in his day:

"I believe in one God, and I hope for happiness beyond the grave. The world is my country; all mankind my brothers; and to do good my religion."

That doctrine does not permit of the materialism which has made a nightmare of civilization. It breathes of the sublime faith in humanity which corrects all misunderstandings and spans all difficulties.

Peace and contentment are ours when our faith justifies them.

GOVERNMENT BY MINORITY.

In the greatest democracy in the world, the indifference of voters to their responsibilities as citizens is gradually bringing about government by a minority.

The memorable campaign of 1896 probably brought the greatest outpouring to the polls since Civil war days, when the bitter issues raised by the slavery question served to awaken the voters of this country to the necessity of expressing their sentiments. Since 1896, the percentage of people voting has progessively decreased.

In the presidential election of 1920, less than 50 per cent. of the legal voters of this country cast a ballot and in the congressional elections two years later, less than 40 per cent of the legal vote was registered. If the late President Harding had received all of the ballots cast by republicans and democrats in 1920, he would have still been put into office by a minority of the voters.

In the election held in this state ten days ago, less than 38 per cent of the total registered vote in Nebraska took the time and trouble to go to the polls. In Lincoln the most important issue with reference to school affairs that has been raised, since a minority expression approved the issuance of $2,000,000 of bonds for the building program, was decided with slightly less than 25 per cent of the total vote of the district marking the ballot on that subject.

Brookhart of Iowa received only 29 per cent. of the possible legal vote of that state when he was elected to the United States senate; "Bob" LaFollette of Wisconsin in his last election was the choice of but 28 per cent. of the voters of that state; Dr. Copeland of New York received but 28 per cent. while Senator Bruce of Maryland was the choice of but 20 per cent.; Dill of Washington but 17 per cent. and Ferris of Michigan of but 16 per cent.

Whatever delinquency there is in government today certainly reflects the delinquency of the people in their failure to take an interest in the affairs of government.

Fresh dangers in the bloc or group movement in this country are presented through the failure of the great mass of people to exercise their franchise rights. A highly organized, aggressive group or bloc, with their particular self-interest to be served, can practically control the fortunes and destinies of millions of others, because the unthinking masses stay away from the polls. Government by a minority is a challenge to democratic institutions. If it continues, representative government will fail.

A NEW FLOATING PALACE.

The North German Lloyd Steamship company comes forward with a new bid for ocean supremacy with a floating palace which has been christened the "Columbus."

In point of size and luxuriousness it surpasses the two greatest steamships which this company had built prior to the war—the "George Washington" and the "Kronprinzessin."

The "Columbus" is 775 feet long, 83 feet wide, and has a draught of 31 feet, 11⅞ inches, with a corresponding net space of 32,000 tons and a displacement of 39,000 tons—thus making it one of the greatest ships that has ever been launched. The bridge deck towers 100 feet above the keel. The two gigantic funnels are 155 feet in height and the topmost pinnacle of the masts are 200 feet above the keel.

The huge size of this monster ocean greyhound however, is not the only thing which will excite admiration and interest in the maritime world. The elegance and beauty of the appointments are a triumph for the shipbuilder. The "Columbus" has facilities for 400 first-class passengers. The dining saloon on the main deck measures 890 square yards. The central portion rises to the lofty height of 20 feet above the floor level. The deck reception rooms are combined in a "deck palace" with furnishings of such rare and exquisite beauty as to excite wonder. There is a promenade over a block and a half in length, which is partially enclosed to protect the passengers from inclement weather. The library the writing rooms, the smoking rooms, the social halls the foyers, and the private cabins are equally impressive.

If the "Columbus" is a criterion, Germany intends to dispute claims for supremacy with any nation in the world.

"WILSON ENDED A 'PRO-GERMAN'"

A correspondent, who fails to sign his name, encloses a clipping from a paper with reference to James Kerney's interview in The Saturday Evening Post of March 29, headed: "Wilson Ended a 'Pro German.'"

That statement is as false as to say Mr. Wilson had previously been "Pro-British" or "Pro-French." The record can successfully be challenged to show where in a single instance Woodrow Wilson was interested in anything except what he conceived to be substantial justice.

When the full history of the proceedings at Versailles is known, it will develop that Mr. Wilson was Germany's only friend in court. He had harbored no malice toward the German people. His quarrel had been entirely with the German government, as it was then constituted, with its ambitious autocratic designs against the peace of the world and the safety of free peoples. At Versailles he was cast in the role of a generous and successful opponent on the battlefield, whose great task was in curbing the demands of those who had previously been associated with him in the war.

Lloyd George had promised the British people that Germany would be made to pay to the last drop of blood and Clemenceau was poisoned with the fierce fires of hatred, which consumed France. Wilson alone of all the group counselled moderation and a treaty in accordance with the accepted principles of international justice and decency.

Woodrow Wilson died as he lived—a firm believer that no nation, no matter how powerful, as an abstract matter of justice should use her superior resources in men and wealth to trample ruthlessly upon the rights of those who lived in less fortunate lands. He was constant to the faith which exalted him and gave him strength to plunge his nation into war—an act which caused him more physical and mental suffering and anguish than any other event of his life.

THE LOVE OF HOME.

A German family, because of the inability of the husband and father to earn in his native land, sufficient income to support the wife and children, recently came to the United States, locating at Fremont, where the man is profitably employed. Happiness would naturally be expected as the attendant of newly-found Prosperity, and Sorrow a spectre never to be encountered in the home of the immigrants. But Gloom pervades the domicile of the exiles and one may search and wait in vain for the smiling face of Joy.

The wife and mother, it is related, is pining away, and physicians who have been called in have diagnosed the case is one of "homesickness." They say that only a return to the scenes of her girlhood and early womanhood can restore her to health. So the woman and her little ones are going back to their native land; they're going home.

The love of home is inherent in every human being and the scenes of childhood are more ineffaceably imprinted upon the mind than those of any other period of life. Wherever one may wander, no matter to what pinnacles of success one may ascend, Memory ever lingers in the verdant valley of Childhood and sings of "Home, Sweet Home."

It is well for the world that this is so. For childhood is the age of innocence and home is the birthplace of love. The one who harkens to the voice of Memory and at times wanders back to the old home is the better for the journey. Once again he is an innocent lad; the lessons and precepts of those earlier years fill his mind and he takes invoice of himself. Is he all that he could have been, that the sainted one called Mother had hoped he might be, or that he might yet become?

Love is the greatest force in life, for "God is love," so where love is, God is, and where God is there can be no evil. The home being the place where we first knew love is therefore the place where we first know God and a longing to return to that place is but the working of an instinct planted in every human breast by the Maker of every good and perfect gift.

THE INDUSTRIAL SCRAP HEAP.

America's industrial scrap heap has grown 10 per cent in the last two decades, according to figures compiled by A. W. rye, a nationally known insurance man.

Girls and women have largely replaced the gray-haired workers of this country who have been thrown out of employment. Another factor scarcely less important than the entrance of women in industry has been the increased agricultural efficiency, due to improved machinery, which has turned a flood of labor from the farms into the factories.

While female labor in America has increased nearly 8 per cent in the last twenty years, total employment has increased slightly less than 2 per cent. Chances of employment for a man 65 years of age, or over, have dropped 10 per cent. At least 24 per cent of these discarded workers are without financial resources of any description, and not one in ten has been able to make comfortable provision for old age. There are now 1,500,000 workers more than 65 years old, who are helpless.

The improved methods of farming in this country has made it possible for the same number of workers as were employed in agricultural pursuits in 1900 to produce nearly 40 per cent more foodstuffs. This new farm efficiency, however, has resulted in turning nearly 12,500,000 new workers into industry. Capital invested in machinery has increased 495 per cent, and per individual worker has increased 117 per cent. It is a matter of the most grave concern to keep this costly machinery operating at top speed to insure the maximum industrial production. As a result youth is being burned up in the industrial world, and age has been thrown on the scrap heap.

Over the Hurdles to Success

Self-Taught Shoe Magnate Demonstrates the Vast Superiority of Business Character to a College Education

"I can put that dividen," I says, "clean down to zero."

(The familiar negative in which the successful business man recounts the early struggles by which he made good.)

No, sir, I had no early advantages whatever. I was brought up plain and hard—try one of these cigars; they cost me fifty cents each. In fact, I practically had no schooling at all. When I left school, I didn't know how to read, not to read good. It's only since I've been in business that I've learned to write English, that is so as to use it right.

But I'll guarantee to say there isn't a man in the shoe business to-day can write a better letter than what I can. But all that I know is what I've learned myself. Why, I can't do fractions even now. I don't see that a man need. And I never learned no geography, except what I got for myself off railroad folders. I don't believe a man needs more than that anyway.

How About the Bootleg?

I've got a boy at Harvard now. His mother was set on it. But I don't see that he learns anything, or nothing that will help him in business. They say they earns them character and manners in the colleges but, as I see it, a man can get all that just as well in business—is that boot-leg all right? If not, tell me and I'll give the head waiter; they charbe me enough for it; what you're drinking costs me thirty dollars a quart.

But I was starting to tell you about my early start in business. I had it good and hard all right. When I struck New York—I was sixteen then—I had just eighty cents to my name. I lived on it for nearly a week while I was walking round hunting for a job. I used to get soup for three cents, and roast beef with potatoes, all you could eat, for eight cents, that tasted better than anything I can ever get in this club. It was down somewhere on Sixth Avenue, but I've forgotten the way to it.

Well, about the sixth day I got a job, down in a shoe factory, working on a machine. I guess you've never seen shoe-machinery, have you? No, you wouldn't likely. It's complicated. Even in those days there was thirty-five machines went to the making of a shoe, and now we use as many as fifty-four. I've never seen the machines before but the foreman took me on. "You look strong," he said. "I'll give you a try anyay."

His First Raise.

So I started in I didn't know anything. But I made good from the first day. I got four a week at the start, and after two months I got a raise to four twenty-five.

Well, after I'd worked there about three months, I went up to the floor manager of the flat I worked on, and I said, "Say, Mr. Jones, do you want to save ten dollars a week on expenses?" "How?" says he. "Why," I said, "that foreman I'm working under on the machine, I've watched him, and I can do his job; dismiss him and I'll take over his work at half what you pay him." Can you do the work?" he says. "Try me out," I said; "fire him and give me a chance." "Well," he said, "I like your spirit anyway; you've got the right sort of stuff in you."

So he fired the foreman and I took over the job and held it down. It was hard at first, but I worked twelve hours a day, and studied up a book on factory machinery at night. Well, after I'd been on that work for about a year, I went in one day to the general manager downstairs, and I said, "Mr. Thompson, do you want to save about a hundred dollars a month on your overhead costs?"

"How can I do that?" says he. "Sit down."

"Why," I said, "you dismiss Mr. Jones and give me his place as manager of the floor, and I'll undertake to do his work, and mine with it, at a hundred less than you're paying now." He turned and went into the inner office, and I could hear him talking to Mr. Evans, the managing director. "The young fellow certainly has character," I heard him say. Then he came out and he said, "Well, we're going to give you a try anyway; we like to help our employes all we can, you know; and you've got the sort of stuff in you that we're looking for."

So they dismissed Jones next day and I took over his job and I did it easy. It was nothing anyway. The higher up you get in business, the easier it is if you know how. I held that job two years, and I saved all my salary except twenty-five dollars a month, and I lived on that. I never spent any money anyway. I went once to see Irving do this Macbeth for twenty-five cents and once I went for a concert and saw a man play the violin for fifteen cents in the gallery. But I don't believe you get much out of the theatre anyway; as I see it, there's nothing to it.

Skids Under Mr. Thompson.

Well, after a while I went one day to Mr Evans' office and I said, "Mr. Evans, I want you to dismiss Mr. Thompson, the general manager." "Why, what's he done?" he says. "Nothing," I said, "but I can take over his job on top of mine and you can pay me the salary you give him and save what you're paying me now." "Sounds good to me," he says.

So they let Thompson go and I took his place. That, of course, is where I got my first real start, because you see, I could control the output and run the costs up and down just where I liked. I suppose you don't know anything about costs and all that—they don't teach that sort of thing in colleges—but even you would understand something about dividends and would see that an energetic man with lots of character and business in him, if he's general manager can just do what he likes with the costs, especially the overhead, and the shareholders have just got to take what he gives them and be glad to. You see they can't fire him—not when he's got it all in his own hands—for fear it will all go to pieces.

Why would I want to run it that way for? Well, I'll tell you. I had a notion by that time that the business was getting so big that Mr. Evans the managing director, and most of the board had pretty well lost track of the details and didn't understand it. There's an awful lot, you know in the shoe business. It's not like ordinary things. It's complicated. And so I'd got an idea that I would shove them clean out of it—or most of them.

So I went one night to see the president, old Guggenbaum, up at his residence. He didn't only have this business, but he was in a lot of other things as wedll, and he was a mighty hard man to see. He wouldn't let any man see him unless he knew first what he was going to say. But I went up to his residence at night, and I saw him there. I talked first with his daughter, and I said I just had to see him. I said it so she didn't dare refuse. There's a way in talking to women that they won't say no.

So I showed Mr. Gugenbaum what I could do with the stock. "I can put that dividend," I says, "clean down to zero—and they'll none of them know why. You can buy the lot of them out at your own price, and after that I'll put the dividend back to fifteen, or even twenty, in two years."

Closing The Deal.

"And where do you come in?" says the old man, with a sort of hard look. He had a fine business head, the old man, at least in those days.

So I explained to him where I came in. "All right," he said; "go ahead. But I'll put nothing in writing." "Mr. Guggenbaum, you don't need to," I said; "you're as fair and square as I am and that's onnugh for me."

His daughter let me out of the house door when I went. I guess she'd been pretty scared that she'd done wrong about letting me in. But I said to her it was all right, and after that when I wanted to see the old man I'd always ask for her and she'd see that I got in all right.

Got them squeezed out? Oh, yes, easy. There wasn't any trouble about that. You see the old man worked up a sort of jolt in wholesale leather on one side, and I fixed up a strike of the hands on the other. We passed the dividend two quarter running, and within a year we had them all scared out and the bulk of the little stockholders, of course, trooped out after them. They ayways do. The old man picked up the stock when they dropped it, and one-half of it he handed over to me.

Industry In His Fist.

That's what put me where I am now, do you see, with the whole control of the industry in two states and more than that now, because we have the Amalgamated Tanneries in with us, so it's practically all one concern.

Guggenbaum? Did I squeeze him out? No, I didn't because, you see, I didn't have to. The way it was—well, I tell you—I used to go up to the house, see, to arrange things with him—and the way it was—why, you see, I married his daughter, see, so I didn't exactly need to squeeze him out.

He lives up with us now, but he's pretty loud and past business. In fact I do it all for him now, and pretty well everything he has is signed over to my wife. She has no head for it, and she's sort of timid anyway—always was—so I manage it all. Of course, if anything happens to the old man, then we'll get it all. I don't think he'll last long. I notice him each day, how weak he's getting.

My son in the business? Well, I'd like him to be. But he don't seem to take to it somehow—I'm afraid he takes more after his mothes; or else it's the college that's doing it. Somehow, I don't think the colleges bring out business character, do you?

A Word from Sloan.

(Kearney Hub.)

Charles H. Sloan has just and abundant cause for commenting on the recent senatorial primary in which he made so poor a showing against Senator Norris, standing for re-election. Passing his reference to the massing of certain elements against him, notably the ku klux klan, the railway workers and the pro-German elements which do not forget the war-time sympathies of Senator Norris, he has abundant cause for scoring the political procedure which permits a democrat or any other person not a republican to vote the republican primary ticket and nominate those who are confessedly not republicans.

Mr. Sloan emphasized throughout the campaign the fact that he was a republican and sought the votes of republicans. He did not make any bid for democratic votes, for farmer-labor votes or the votes of any persons having no political or moral right to vote in a republican primary. Senator Norris made much of the fact that he had only contempt for parties, admitted that he was not a republican, and confessed lack of faith even in himself to accomplish anything in the senate.

The Norris managers were outside the republican party, and they made the appeal to non-partisan league and farmer-labor elements previous to the primary that "only those who call for republican ballots can be of help to Norris." This appeal was particularly to voters in small towns and on farms where registration of voters is not required.

The question as to whether the best man won is not in point. The only question is the methods employed to prevent or prostitute the ballot and defeat the principle of the primary law, under which in Nebraska and some other western states the livery of the republican party have been stolen to serve the enemies of the republican party.

Cost of Government.

(Grand Island Herald.)

You paid $68 to run the local, state and federal government in 1922. Directly or indirectly it came out of your pocket. The people earned $63,000,000,000, but the government took away $7,000,000,000.

The cost of the federal government to each man, woman and child was $29 last year. As recently as 1916, it was only $7. The war is not over; each one of us pays $1 a year interest instead of the pre-war 24 cents, and each person is loaded with $200 of the huge federal debt. Among the immense government departments, the Veterans' bureau takes 18 per cent of the expenditures, close behind the navy department with 21 per cent, and the war department with 20 per cent.

State and local governments got $39 and the $68. The average citizen paid 183 per cent more to the state in 1922 than in 1912, 141 per cent more to the country, and 80 per cent more to the city. Debts for these divisions plus the federal government, saddle each worker in the United States with $780. Every eleven of these workers ever sixteen are supporting one public employe—and it is costing our many wage earners over ten years of age some $91 a year to support these 3,400,000 public embployes.

How can it be stopped?

Mankind's Greatest Service.

(Scottsbluff Tribune.)

The dedication of the West Nebraska Methodist Episcopal hospital today marks an epoch in relief of suffering humanity in the western section of this state and a portion of Wyoming. The latest development of scientific research in the medical world are a part of the facilities of the institution. With the scientific knowledge of the medical profession in the valley, these servants are in a position to cope with and conquer the ravages of disease and the enemy of health and happiness to a greater degree. Scottsbluff will be a mecca for the distressed in cities and towns for miles around, and what is nobler than to render a service to the unfortunate?

The achievement is the result of months of sacrifice on the part of many, who labored arduously and strenuously, surmounting innumerable obstacles, which arose almost daily, never faltering nor permitting hindrances to discourage them in their efforts. There is still a vast amount of work to be done before the institution reaches the point of perfection, which the workers have set as their goal. But they will not hesitate in their tack one moment until the worthy objective is reached.

The imposing structure—a six story brick edifice, strictly fireproof, with a capacity of 125 beds besides office rooms, dining room and kitchen—is a worthy tribute to the city and community, and meets a long felt need for increased hospitalization made necessary by the growth and increased population of the country.

The Tribune realizes to the fullest extent the significance of the dedication service today and congratulates the officers, directors, as well as every individual who saw a duty and responded so generously, on their successful efforts.

It is the greatest service ever rendered this city or the North Platte valley by humankind.

The Kearney Eclipse.

(Kearney Hub.)

Notice has been served on Hiram Johnson by the voters of Michigan Illinois and Nebraska, that he may as well quit running for president and resume his duties as a senator of the United States which he has been grossly neglecting since the present congress convened.

Michigan was first to speak at the primaries on Monday with a Coolidge lead of two to one. Returns being received from yesterday's primary in Nebraska give an estimated majority of twenty-five thousand and upward for Coolidge. The first favorable break for Johnson came in Cook county (Chicago) in the Illinois primary, but the downstate returns soon mopped up the Johnson lead and put him hopelessly in the rear.

Johnsdn's hope was in the central west, out of which he has plucked nothing except the endorsement of South Dakota, by a small majority. One crowning disaster for Johnson remains, viz, the loss of California and a home-state repudiation—a result not yet assured but considered probable and even imminent.

The pitiable finish of Hiram Johnson symbolizes and is a prophecy of what will later befall the political prophets of evil and apostles of discontent. Their days are numbered. The croak of the raven will be silence. In lieu thereof America will have a rebaptism of its old faith in American institutions and acquire a new faith in themselves as sovereign spokesmen of a great nation.

The Thompson Appointment.

(Grand Island Independent.)

The appointment of Hon. W. H. Thompson as judge of the supreme court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Aldrich is as logical as it is merited by the qualifications of the appointee. Many of his friends throughout the state had expected this appointment to be made sooner; but the deference that has been paid in the matter of the verdict of the people by Governor Bryan is also to be highly commended. It being certain that the people of the Fifth district would, on April 8th, indicate their choice, and but a short time intervening, Mr. Bryan awaited that decision. Mr. Thompson having received by far the highest number of votes of all of the candidates on the primary non-political ballot the spirit of democracy has been followed in a commendable way. Judge Thompson will at once assume the duties of his office. His own home folks have only too recently expressed such an opinion as to make further comment redundant.

Pay of Custodians.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 19.—To the Editor of the Lincoln Star: We of the custodian service in the various federal buildings, see a lot of this high cost of living and increases in wages granted to othe remployes but never a word about us laborers in the custodian service.

Now we receive $900 per year and are required to work most every day out of the 365. If anybody thinks it is a picnic to bring up a family and get a home on $900 a year just step right up and try it for a few years. As congress is now in session we ought to get some consideration from somewhere. This letter is merely to be published to show and explain to the people the poorly paid laborers in the custodian service of the federal government. Let's all push together and see if something can be done to remedy the situation for federal employes.

Telephone Service.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 19.—To the Editor of The Lincoln Star: How can we get relief and service? When a man send a 5 pound package over the rural government parcel post from Lincoln to Kansas City and have it delivered out in the country to Mr. Brown he notices the cost is about 9 cents. He telephones to Mr. Brown over the inexpensive telephone wires for just three minutes to ask if the package arrives O. K. and it cost him about $1.45. When he pays this big bill he remembers that the rates of private companies have been cut down while the government ownership and municipal rates are lower.

This same man telephones quite often to the farmers to buy produce and he finds that after he works on the lines calling up a town like Waverly or Davy, sometimes the whole district of lines have been cut off because of shortage of girls or lack of service and then he gets the reports back that the farmers' lines are busy, and he sometimes wonders if it wouldn't be better to get an automobile and rush out in the country and talk to these people rather than telephone and thus save time.

He finally calls up the manager of the telephone company to ask him if there isn't some way they could get the town of Waverly which has been busy for a half hour or so. The girl reports that the manager is out and the assistant manager is out and she takes your number and asks the manager to call. After two days' waiting for the manager's call you wonder what to do.

Then you write your newspaper and you telephone your editors and hope that there will be some way to improve conditions and grease the wheels of industry.

Some tell us that they notice when they call information board that it is slow service when they call long distance where the telephone company expects to make a little extra money the service is better.

How can we get this better service.

ONE WHO WOULD LIKE TO GREASE THE WHEELS OF INDUSTRY.

On a Sound Foundation.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 19.—To the Editor of the Lincoln Star: "I never saw so many people out of work." There isn't any money in circulation." "We are having the hardest times we ever had in Nebraska." Everywhere we hear these remarks and similar ones. And in a measure they are true. But the person who goes to the trouble to look under the surface itsn't likely to be pessimistic.

A well-known financial writer, in a recent article in a Lincoln newspaper, said there was plenty of money to be had in New York at 3 per cent, or even less, on good security, but there were few borrowers.

For this surplus of money in the east and shortage in the middle west there is a reason, and it is such that we should feel elated rather than downcast over present conditions.

The decrease in farm values with an increase in interest rates and difficulties in the way of securing new loans put thousands of farmers face to face with the necessity of reducing their loans or going into bankruptcy. Many went the latter road, but the majority chose the former.

For more than a year now, and particularly since last fall, farmers as a class have cut out useless expenditures and have applied their earnings to reducing their indebtedness.

No exact figures are available, but a large percentage of the money loaned on Nebraska farms is eastern insurance money. This means that money paid by the farmers on loans and as interest goes east and ceases to circulate in this part part of the country.

The middle-west is almost exclusively an agricultural country. All business is directly or indirectly dependent upon the farmer. When he quits spending money locally, the circulation of money locally is greatly retarded. That is the condition at present.

So-called "hard times" will continue as long as the farmers continue their thrift campaign. But it means restoration of this part of the country to a healthy condition economically which will in time result in prosperity on a sounder basis than has existed during the period of inflated land values and reckless spending.

Farmers, relieved of the burden of excessive loans and heavy interest payments, will enter into an era of prosperity that will be reflected in every line of business and felt by everyone. Despite the howling of politicians of a certain class, this country is not going to the dogs, in fact the outlook is more promising than at any time since the world war began in Europe.

Newspaper "Corrections."

(Brooklyn Eagle.)

Our national love of humor has crystallized or encysted like a fly in amber the story of the fierce lank Georgia mountaineer who lugged his razor-sharp bowie knife into the sanctum of Henry W. Grady of the Atlanta Constitution and brandished it over the head of the editor, exclaiming: "This morning the Constitution said I was dead. You must retract that statement. You must own you lied," to whom the inimitably imperturbable Grady responded solemnly: "If the Constitution said this morning that you were dead, then you were dead this morning. The Constitution never makes a mistake. But I'll tell you what I will do for you; I'll insert your name in the birth column tomorrow morning at regular advertising rates."

Senator Owen of Oklahoma may have hit up against something of the same sentiment in some newspaper office. At any rate he thinks he sees an evil and proceeds at once to suggest its abatement by legislation. If a bill he is introducing in the United States Senate becomes a law, no newspaper may have the privileges of the mails if it refuses to publish a sworn denial, correction or explanation of any statement it has made "in precisely the same page and position on the page" as the statement complained of was published. * * * To print nothing that does not seem to come on good authority, to reject for fuller investigation every story that lacks verisimilitude, and to avoid being beaten on realnews is the triple task of the conscientious editor. Deliberation is impossible. Time is not allowed. And if through an error of judgment or through misplaced confidence in a news source what is not true has been printed as true, correction is commonly welcomed, invariably tolerated. That is the rule of modern journalism.

Railroad Efficiency.

Among the many unjust charges brought against the railroads in recent years, particularly by self-seeking politicians, one of the most frequent accusations has been that the railroads were inefficient. It is true that the railroads are not a perfect machine by any means, but this is also true of all other industries. On the other hand, the railroads' efficiency is improving all the time and improving faster than the efficiency shown in many other industries. A striking illustration of this is found in the report just made public by the National Transportation Institute. This report shows that in the 20 years between 1900 and 1920 the railroads tripled their transportation output, although the number of their employes and the amount of their capital merely doubled. Manufacturing, on the other hand, increased its capital five times, doubled the number of its employes, but only a little more than doubled its output. For each unit of industrial output in 1920, more than $2 of invested capital had to be supported as against $1 in 1900; whereas, with the railroads, for every unit of traffic in 1920 only about 65 cents invested in capital had to be supported as against $1 in 1900. Each worker in agriculture used 3.7 times as much capital in 1920 and yet brought forth only one and one-third times his product of 1900. These figures show that it is the advance in efficiency by the railroads that is alone responsible for their ability to pay existing wages.

I hope those climbers get to the top of Mt. Everest. I wish I could be there with them. Mountain climbing is the finest exercise in the world for lungs, muscles, nerves and head. The names of the men who first stamp their feet in the eternal snows on the head of the great chief of the mighty Himalayas, and premier of all the mountains of the earth, will be written among the immortals.

Mountain climbing has been called a nineteenth century sport, but already Othello had included in the heroic tale with which he won the admiration and the heart of Desdemona, for after his "hair-breadth 'scapes i' the imminent deadly breach," he mentions his adventures among "antres vast and deserts idle, rough quarries, rocks and hills whose heads touch heaven."

I am not much concerned about the questions of practical usefulness asked in connection with this great adventure of the Himalayan climbers. It overrides all such questions. In it is an act done in the high style, which honors humanity by offering it food for its inmost nature, which is compact of pure imagination and aspiration.

Mountain climbing is like the "Arabian Nights"—its subject is not science, and not trade, and not society, but something belonging to the transcendental world, which people can only understand when they are in a mood of detachment from ordinary ideas of practicality. It is the work of the spirit that discovered the earth's poles, reaching both within a period of but little over two years.

Yet the climbing of Mount Everest will have aplenty of practical results—in geography, in physics, in meteorology, in physiology and in many other ways. Perhaps men will fly over the immense mass of the Himalayan ranges and plateaus, the almost illimatble "abode of snow" before the century has entered its third decade.

Many persons have little idea of the enormous massiveness of those mountains, which in extent and elevation are symbolical of the unchallengable supremacy of Asia among thee continents. Look at a topographical chart of the world, where the Himalayas seem as though they must weight down and crack the crust of the earth. Yet the modern doctrine of "isostacy," the "floating" of the continents and mountains on a denser zone of earth-stuff below, assures us that those huge ranges and towering peaks, together with their mighty foundations, are relatively light.

In the western world we have the longest mountain chain in existence, the Andes, and if the Rocky Mountains be considered as a northward extension of the Andean chain, the combined length is prodigious. Along its length, especially in South America, rise many very lofty peaks, of which Aconcagua (23,393 feet) is probably the highest. But that is more than a mile less than the height of Everest.

It is instructive and interesting to compare Everest with the highest North American peak, Mount McKinley. For convenience, we may picture each mountain as a cone (which, of course, is not its real shape), giving it a base proportional to its height. The height of Everest is 1.41 times that of McKinley; their relative volume, measured as cones, is about as three to one. But there are two other Himalayan peaks each more than 28,000 feet high, and many exceeding 25,000.

Sunnyside Home For Aged Men and Women Is Most Appropriately Named

(By Marie Herrin.)

HASTINGS, Neb., April 19—Sunnyside is ten years old.

A decade of happy busy years has passed since the Hastings Woman's club members decided that they would, by establishing a home for the aging pioneers, show their appreciation of the men and women who had made Nebraska.

"Since that time, April 1, 1914, one hundred and fifteen elderly people—79 women and 36 men—have found a comfortable home within the spacious rooms of Sunnyside," Mrs. C. H. Dietrich, president of the home since it was founded, said in her report of the decade.

Many of them might have been forced otherwise to have ended their lives at the county farm, far from their friends or people of their own age.

But Sunnyside is not ehtirely a charitable institution. Men and women well able to pay for their board and room have chosen to come to the home because of its cheery atmosphere and the companionship it could offer them with men and women who have lived through the same scenes which they knew in youth

"A compilation of the life history of the Sunnyside family members would make an interesting story of the founding of this state," Mrs. Dietrich continues.

"One of the surveying party which fixed the Nebraska-Kansas line was a resident of Sunnyside. During the civil war when Indian outbreak were expected in this western country, he was given a commission as captain of the home guards and he did not receive his discharge until 1917, when he was living at Sunnyside and nearing his nintieth year.

Pioneers in Family.

"Several of the early homesteaders of Adams county have lived at Sunnyside—men and women who knew Hastings before there were houses here, before the hills had been leveled and the draws filled in.

"The memory of one old gentleman there—a Methodist circuit rider for more than forty years—goes back to the first territorial election held in Iowa. His father's house was used as a polling place and the boy had made the ballot box.

"There have been and there still are women living at Sunnyside who worked to establish the first churches in their communities, who taught in the first schools.

"The matron of the first hospital in Hastings—that was in the early eighties—is one of the best loved of the present Sunnyside family, which consists of about thirty persons."

Scarcely a time during the years that Sunnyside has been in operation has there been a vacant room for more than a few days. There is always a long waiting list of persons who wish to come—for the home is known to be well named. There is little that ever ruffles the happy contentment of the place.

On Sunday afternoons, different churches or organizations always provide services or programs that are eagerly anticipated throughout the week. Then, the family gathers in the spacious parlor, dressed in their Sunday best after the fashion of the olden days, and together they enjoy the hours together.

Pleasant Quarters.

A great glassed-in porch for the women and another for the men, if they prefer to sit alone, extend to the south of the building. Each person has his or her own room and a closet in which to keep their own things. The rooms have been furnished by different people of the city and one by the Hastings chapter of the P. E. O.

Below—Sunnyside, showing Wiebke Frahm addition at left. Right, Mrs. Henrietta Marten, 91, matron of first hospital in Hastings, whose sunny disposition has endeared her to all who know her. Until within the last few weeks she has always been able to read perfectly witho ut glasses. She has lived at Sunnyside for eight years.

"The home was opened in a house since torn down, at the corner of Fourteenth street and Burlington avenue," the report goes on. "By fall of the same year, the need for such a home had already been proved so conclusively that Sunnyside was incorporated and the directors purchased a large brick house at the present location. It was burned to the ground in January, 1916.

"So wholeheartedly did Hastings and the county work in the re-establishing of the home that within a week, the re-clothed family was gathered together in a newly furnished house offered rent free for six months at the corner of Eleventh street and St. Joseph avenue.

"Before nine months had passed, a new home was erected on the foundation of the old and was ready for occupancy.

"In 1921, an eight room addition was built and this was named for Mrs Wiebke Frahm in appreciation of the constant generosity of her sons from the first organization of Sunnyside but especially for the gift of their own and their mother's home to Sunnyside—that the sum derived from its rental or sale might perhaps give home to other mothers."

Heat for the home is furnished free of charge from the city water and light plant which lies in the heart of Highland park just to the south of the home.

As the silver crowned men and women sit in their glassed or screened porches, according to the time of year, they can look out across the park to the pretty cooling fountain near the plant. A flower garden is always kept in the edge of the park where they can see it is summer time.

Cheery Surroundings.

To the west of the home, is a young cherry and apple orchard planted on lots purchased by the Woman's club in order to prevent crowding. To the north lies the vegetable garden.

The entire plant represents an outlay of approximately $30,000. Another $6,000 is invested in the nucleus for an endowment fund.

Sunnyside owns a bit of property in Holstein, the gift of an old man who made his home for years there. About $19,000 have been received in cash donations during the ten years of its life. The annual Thanksgiving offerings for which half bushel sacks are distributed to the homes of the city each fall almost keep the family in groceries for the winter months, or at least go a long way toward filling the larder.

The directors have learned much of human nature during these ten years but they declare the pleasant side compensates for the darker side they often see.

"One of Sunnyside's family, a Nebraska pioneer, was placed in the home by her son, a man for whom the mother had labored for many years at the hardest kind of work in order to give him a professional education," the president adds. "Soon after placing his mother at Sunnyside, he left the state and refused to contribute further to her support. Months ran into years with no help from the son and then a grandson returned from the army, gave up his own plans for a professional career, took a teacher's position and voluntarily assumed the responsibility of his grandmother's support.

"A young woman befriended by Sunnyside when she was in the greatest need, later became self-supporting and wrote for a statement of her indebtedness to the home. Wishing to give her a chance to make a fresh start in life unhampered, the directors sent her a cancelled bill. Since that time, she has never failed to send a substantial yearly donation with a letter of appreciation."

Much credit for the success of the home must be given to the women who have served as its officers almost from the very beginning: Mrs. C. H. Dietrich, president; Mrs. A. H. Brooks, vice president; Mrs. Herman E. Stein, secretary; Mrs. Lucy N. Button, treasurer, and Mrs. Frank C. Babcock and Mrs. William Dutton, members of the board of directors. Mrs. C. F. Morey, Mrs. J. M. Davis, and Mrs. J. P. A. Black have recently been elected to the board.

Vesleyan Affairs

Three students left this week for Louisville, Kentucky, to attend the national conference of Methodist students of the north and south, April 18-20. The conference will be attended by one thousand young people. The Wesleyan delegates are Geneva George of the senior class, Merrill Norlin of the juniors and Gerald Summers, sophomore.

Robert F. Chapler, executive secretary has issued the call for the Kentucky meeting. He reports that here are 110,000 Methodist students in the colleges and universitis of the United States. The purpose of the conference is to study Mehodism's part in the world task and how Methodist students may relate themselves to that task. One Methodist layman of Chicago has declared that the Kentucky meeting is the "Greatest movement since Wesley."

The reading of "The Sky Pilot" by Adrian Newens in the Y. M. C. A. lecture course has been postponed until after high school day.

Chancellor I. B. Schreckengast has announced that he expects to leave next Wednesday for Springfield, Mass, to attend the quadriennicl of the Methodist Episcopal church. He will return for the commencement season at Wesleyan.

Chancellor Schreckengast reported Wednesday to the student body that the boar dof trustees had acted favorably upon a suggestion of the faculty requiring in the future the filling in of an application blank on the part of any student who seeks to enter Wesleyan. Good moral character and creditable high school record will be requisites for entrance to Wesleyan. One reason for taking this step is to give the Wesleyan authorities opportunity to ascertain beforehand what numbers to prepare for in the freshman class.

The chancellor also announced to the students this week that the tuition will be raised next September to $121. Hitherto tuition has been $84 not including the student ticket, which is $15. The chancellor stated in making his announcement that the total figure would be low even with the increase, compared with tuition rates in other schools.

The dramatic club is preparing three one-act plays to be presented on the campus May 9. Junior expression recitals are listed for April 29, May 19 and May 26. The senior graduating recital will occur May 30.

The national association for the advancement of education in China has requested that copies of the general catalog of Nebraska Wesleyan be placed in the educational library at Peking.

Miss Pearl Sherlock, senior, who was elected in March as assistant dean of women for next year, is thinking of taking work at Columbia university this summer along the line of her coming duties.

DOANE NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh B. Campbell of Clay Center motored to Crete last Sunday to visit their son, E. B. Campbell.

The Y. W. C. A. cabinet and a group of men from the college Y. M. C. A. spent last week-end in Lincoln, attending the joint oyung men's and young women's Christian association conference, at which Sherwood Eddy was the main speaker. Dean Myrtle LeCompte was the faculty representative at this gathering.

Mrs. G A. Gregory, '81, gave the second of a series of parliamentary drills at the house meeting of girls at Gaylord hall, Tuesday. She is also giving these drills at the Crete Woman's club.

Miss Mary-Ellen Inglis and Miss Mildred Carter spent the week-end at Miss Inglis' home in Lincoln.

Clean-up day was observed on the Doane college campus, April 16.

Miss Eleanor Hinman, former publicity secretary for the Doane college campaign for endowment, who has since been on the staff of an Omaha newspaper, has just resigned her position there to go to New York city to continue her newspaper work. On leaving Omaha the Woman's Press club gave a dinner in her honor.

Juniors and seniors from Steele City high school spent Tuesday, April 15, in Crete, visiting the Doane campus. They were sponsored by Supt. Vernon C. Cox, '20 R. M. Hartig, a former student of Doane, also teaches at Steele City.

Young Married Women Need Mother's Advice-

MRS. PEARL STEELE
HOLDEN, MISSOURI

A GREAT many women after childbirth get up too soon and, too weak to care for the child and perform their household duties, often bring on serious derangements.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid tonic to take at this time; it is an excellent restorative, contains no harmful drugs, and can be taken in safety by nursing mothers. Thousands of mothers advise their daughters to take this grand old root and herb medicine for such conditions because of their own favorable experience with it.

Following We Publish an Interesting Letter From Mrs. Steele of Holden, Which Should Interest Evepy Mother in the Land:

HOLDEN, MO.—"When my second child was born I got up too soon as my mother wasn't able to do for me. I could not stand on my feet without being dizzy and my back would ache so badly that I would have to lie down at times through the day. My mother had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and had a bottle of it at the time so she begged me to take it which I did and I cannot tell you how much better I felt after taking it. Then a year later my husband got back from overseas and we went to keeping house by ourselves and I got all run down again. I couldn't work long at a time but would have to sit down and rest. My husband kept begging me to take the Vegetable Compound again so I have done so. I recommend it when I can as I know it is good for women's troubles and I thought you might like to know what it has done for me."—MRS. PEARL M. STEELE, Holden, Missouri.

Another Interesting Case

CLAYMONT, DELAWARE—"I was all run-down and in a weak condition when I married. I had many of the troubles women often have and the birth of my children left me almost a wreck. One day my brother-in-law was visiting us and asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I said, 'It's no use, as nothing does me any good.' He asked me if I would take it if he would buy it, and to please him I said 'Yes.' He bought me three bottles before there was a change, so you see I was pretty badly off. I couldn't do any work before this, and kept a girl. I got so well I did my own work and later had more children and kept my good health. I do all my work and take in sewing too, and am raising plants for Memorial Day. I feel younger than I did at twenty because I have good health."—MRS. L. A. LAMEY, Claymont, Delaware.

Sunnyside Home For Aged Men and Women Is Most Appropriately Named

(By Marie Herrin.)

HASTINGS, Neb., April 19—Sunnyside is ten years old.

A decade of happy busy years has passed since the Hastings Woman's club members decided that they would, by establishing a home for the aging pioneers, show their appreciation of the men and women who had made Nebraska.

"Since that time, April 1, 1914, one hundred and fifteen elderly people—79 women and 36 men—have found a comfortable home within the spacious rooms of Sunnyside," Mrs. C. H Dietrich, president of the home since it was founded, said in her report of the decade.

Many of them might have been forced otherwise to have ended their lives at the county farm, far from their friends or people of their own age.

But Sunnyside is not entirely a charitable institution. Men and women well able to pay for their board and room have chosen to come to the home because of its cheery atmosphere and the companionship it could offer them with men and women who have lived through the same scenes which they knew in youth.

"A compilation of the life history of the Sunnyside family members would make an interesting story of the founding of this state," Mrs. Dietrich continues.

"One of the surveying party which fixed the Nebraska-Kansas line was a resident of Sunnyside. During the civil war when Indian outbreak were expected in this western country, he was given a commission as captain of the home guards and he did not receive his discharge until 1917, when he was living at Sunnyside and nearing his nintieth year.

Pioneers in Family.

"Several of the early homesteaders of Adams county have lived at Sunnyside—men and women who knew Hastings before there were houses here, before the hills had been leveled and the draws filled in.

"The memory of one old gentleman there—a Methodist circuit rider for more than forty years—goes back to the first territorial election held in Iowa. His father's house was used as a polling place and the boy had made the ballot box.

"There have been and there still are women living at Sunnyside who worked to establish the first churches in their communities, who taught in the first schools.

"The matron of the first hospital in Hastings—that was in the early eighties—is one of the best loved of the present Sunnyside family, which consists of about thirty persons."

Scarcely a time during the years that Sunnyside has been in operation has there been a vacant room for more than a few days. There is always a long waiting list of persons who wish to come—for the home is known to be well named. There is little that ever ruffles the happy contentment of the place.

On Sunday afternoons, different churches or organizations always provide services or programs that are eagerly anticipated throughout the week. Then, the family gathers in the spacious parlor, dressed in their Sunday best after the fashion of the olden days, and together they enjoy the hours together.

Pleasant Quarters.

A great glassed-in porch for the women and another for the men, if they prefer to sit alone, extend to the south of the building. Each person has his or her own room and a closet in which to keep their own things. The rooms have been furnished by different people of the city and one by the Hastings chapter of the P. E. O.

Below—Sunnyside, showing Wiebke Frahm addition at left. Right, Mrs. Henrietta Marten, 91, matron of first hospital in Hastings, whose sunny disposition has endeared her to all who know her. Until within the last few weeks she has always been able to read perfectly witho ut glasses. She has lived at Sunnyside for eight years.

"The home was opened in a house since torn down, at the corner of Fourteenth street and Burlington avenue," the report goes on. "By fall of the same year, the need for such a home had already been proved so conclusively that Sunnyside was incorporated and the directors purchased a large brick house at the present location. It was burned to the ground in January, 1916.

"So wholeheartedly did Hastings and the county work in the re-establishing of the home that within a week, the re-clothed family was gathered together in a newly furnished house offered rent free for six months at the corner of Eleventh street and St. Joseph avenue.

"Before nine months had passed, a new home was erected on the foundation of the old and was ready for occupancy.

"In 1921, an eight room addition was built and this was named for Mrs Wiebke Frahm in appreciation of the constant generosity of her sons from the first organization of Sunnyside but especially for the gift of their own and their mother's home to Sunnyside—that the sum derived from its rental or sale might perhaps give home to other mothers."

Heat for the home is furnished free of charge from the city water and light plant which lies in the heart of Highland park just to the south of the home.

As the silver crowned men and women sit in their glassed or screened porches, according to the time of year, they can look out across the park to the pretty cooling fountain near the plant. A flower garden is always kept in the edge of the park where they can see it is summer time.

Cheery Surroundings.

To the west of the home, is a young cherry and apple orchard planted on lots purchased by the Woman's club in order to prevent crowding. To the north lies the vegetable garden.

The entire plant represents an outlay of approximately $30,000. Another $6,000 is invested in the nucleus for an endowment fund.

Sunnyside owns a bit of property in Holstein, the gift of an old man who made his home for years there. About $19,000 have been received in cash donations during the ten years of its life. The annual Thanksgiving offerings for which half bushel sacks are distributed to the homes of the city each fall almost keep the family in groceries for the winter months, or at least go a long way toward filling the larder.

The directors have learned much of human nature during these ten years but they declare the pleasant side compensates for the darker side they often see.

"One of Sunnyside's family, a Nebraska pioneer, was placed in the home by her son, a man for whom the mother had labored for many years at the hardest kind of work in order to give him a professional education," the president adds. "Soon after placing his mother at Sunnyside, he left the state and refused to contribute further to her support. Months ran into years with no help from the son and then a grandson returned from the army, gave up his own plans for a professional career, took a teacher's position and voluntarily assumed the responsibility of his grandmother's support.

"A young woman befriended by Sunnyside when she was in the greatest need, later became self-supporting and wrote for a statement of her indebtedness to the home. Wishing to give her a chance to make a fresh start in life unhampered, the directors sent her a cancelled bill. Since that time, she has never failed to send a substantial yearly donation with a letter of appreciation."

Much credit for the success of the home must be given to the women who have served as its officers almost from the very beginning: Mrs. C. H Dietrich, president; Mrs. A. H. Brooks, vice president; Mrs. Herman E. Stein, secretary; Mrs. Lucy N. Button, treasurer, and Mrs. Frank C. Babcock and Mrs. William Dutton, members of the board of directors. Mrs. C. F. Morey, Mrs. J. M. Davis, and Mrs. J. P. A. Black have recently been elected to the board.

Wesleyan Affairs

Three students left this week for Louisville, Kentucky, to attend the national conference of Methodist students of the north and south, April 18-20. The conference will be attended by one thousand young people. The Wesleyan delegates are Geneva George of the senior class, Merrill Norlin of the juniors and Gerald Summers, sophomore.

Robert F. Chapler, executive secretary has issued the call for the Kentucky meeting. He reports that here are 110,000 Methodist students in the colleges and universitis of the United States . The purpose of the conference is to study Mehodism's part in the world task and how Methodist students may relate themselves to that task. One Methodist layman of Chicago has declared that the Kentucky meeting is the "Greatest movement since Wesley."

The reading of "The Sky Pilot" by Adrian Newens in the Y. M. C. A. lecture course has been postponed until after high school day.

Chancellor I. B. Schreckengast has announced that he expects to leave next Wednesday for Springfield, Mass. to attend the quadrienniel of the Methodist Episcopal church. He will return for the commencement season at Wesleyan.

Chancellor Schreckengast reported Wednesday to the student body that the boar dof trustees had acted favorably upon a suggestion of the faculty requiring in the future the filling in of an application blank on the part of any student who seeks to enter Wesleyan. Good moral character and creditable high school record will be requisites for entrance to Wesleyan. One reason for taking this step is to give the Wesleyan authorities opportunity to ascertain beforehand what numbers to prepare for in the freshman class.

The chancellor also announced to the students this week that the tuition will be raised next September to $121. Hitherto tuition has been $84 not including the student ticket, which is $15. The chancellor stated in making his announcement that the total figure would be low even with the increase, compared with tuition rates in other schools.

The dramatic club is preparing three one-act plays to be presented on the campus May 9. Junior expression recitals are listed for April 29, May 19 and May 26. The senior graduating recital will occur May 30.

The national association for the advancement of education in China has requested that copies of the general catalog of Nebraska Wesleyan be placed in the educational library at Peking.

Miss Pearl Sherlock, senior, who was elected in March as assistant dean of women for next year, is thinking of taking work at Columbia university this summer along the line of her coming duties.

Society Looks With Eagerness Toward Springtime Gaities

The Lenten season which society has spent in seclusion—as it should—is over and rested and refreshed is ready for the galeties of the spring season. Brides' affairs, spring dinner dances of several of the dancing clubs which are closing their formal season, attractive bridge luncheons and spring meetings of many clubs are scheduled for the first week after Easter.

The Saturday Night club will entertain at its annual guest night dinner dance Thursday evening at 7 o'clock at the Lincoln hotel. On the committee in charge of arrangements are Mr. and Mrs. E. M. O'Shea, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Truman, Mr. and Mrs. Dana Cole, and Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Dillman.

Entertain at Dance.

The Knights of Columbus will entertain at a dance and card party Easter Monday at the club house, when the guests will be members and their friends. Attractive spring decorations will be used in the ball room and cards will be played in the council chamber. Refreshments will be served during the evening.

The Fifty Fifty club will hold its last affair of the season which will be a formal dinner dance on Wednesday evening at the Country club.

Hokomok club will have its spring party, the closing affair of the season, Monday evening at the Lincoln hotel. Japanese effects will be carried out in decorations, and small hand-made fans will be the favors for the ladies. Luncheon will be served in individual baskets. Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Gramlich, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dobson, and Mr. and Mrs. Guy King are the committee for the affair.

Many Events Planned.

Miss Helen Burkett whose marriage to Marvin H. Meyers of Omaha will take place May 1 is a much feted bride-to-be and many charming affairs will be given between Easter and her wedding day. Miss Celeste Leech will be hostess at luncheon tomorrow at the Lincoln hotel and the following day, Mrs. David Wilkinson, 2459 Parke avenue, will entertain at luncheon at her home. Mrs. Joseph Grainger will entertain Miss Burkett and a group of her friends at luncheon Wednesday at her home while a bridge tea Thursday afternoon at the University club for sixty for which Mrs. D. V. Stephens will be hostess will conclude the festivities for this week for Friday and Saturday. Miss Burkett will spend in Omaha where she will attend the wedding of her cousin, Catherine Burkett to C. Dean Lowry of Lincoln which takes place Saturday evening at the home of Miss Burkett's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Burkett. Sunday Miss Burkett's sister, Mrs. Raymond Farquhar and Mr. Farquhar will entertain at a family dinner for Miss Burkett and her fiance.

The following week, Miss Hilda Chowins will entertain on Monday, Misses Helen and Marion Hall on Tuesday and Mr. and Mrs. Carlisle Logan-Jones, at dinner on Tuesday evening and on Wednesday evening will be the prenuptial dinner at the Burkett home with the wedding on Thursday evening.

Among the charming affairs last week for Miss Burkett was a beautiful luncheon at the Country club on Thursday for which Miss Zella Roope was hostess. Covers for forty-two were laid at one large table. The lovely decorations all in white gave a very bride-like effect. A white bouquet of spring flowers, which at the close of the luncheon was presented to the bride-to-be, graced the center of the table while baskets of white roses, sweetpeas, marguerites and hyacinths added to the beauty of the appointments. The favors were minature white kid slippers filled with rice while the members of Miss Burkett's wedding party were presented with clusters of orange blossoms. Bridge was played during the afternoon hours and the attractive prizes followed the white motif. Miss Burkett received an Italian vase and Misses Frances Mentzen, Mildred Doyle and Gladys Sidles were the winners of the bridge prizes.

Entertain at Bridge.

DORSEY-KERKOW

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Amanda Dorsey of Lincoln, daughter of G. D. Dorsey of Los Angeles, Cal., and Frank Kerkow of Albion, which took place Friday at the parsonage of the First Methodist church in Council Bluffs. Mr. and Mrs. Kerkow will be at home in Albion.

WILL TRAVEL IN EUROPE

Numbered among the Lincoln travelers abroad this summer will be Mrs. Wasserman, who will sail Saturday, May 31, from New York with Mr. Wasserman and a party of eastern friends on the Homeric of the White Star line. The party will land at Cherbourg, France, and from there Mr. and Mrs. Wasserman will go directly to Bucharest, Roumania, for a visit with members of Mr. Wasserman's family. They will later join their friends for a tour of France, the battlefields, Switzerland, England and other places of interest. They will sail for home August 5 on the Leviathan.

Mr. Wasserman came to Canada and later to this country twenty-five years ago and this will be his first visit home in that time. He has a father, brother and six sisters in Bucharest.

Mrs. Ames Present When Picture Of First Lady Given To Nation

Mrs. Ernest Ames is in Washington, D. C., the guest of her sister, Mrs. Dale Drain and while there attended the eastern conference of her sorority, Pi Beta Phi. It was during this conference the second week in April that the sorority formally presented the portrait of one of its members, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, to the government to be hung in the White House, along with those of other mistresses of the White House. Mrs. Ames has written to different members of the alumnae organization of the presentation which was held at the White House. Thirteen hundred members of the sorority attended the conference and the presentation.

The painting, the first to be made of Mrs. Coolidge, is the work of Howard Chandler Christy. It shows Mrs. Coolidge in a long red gown, standing with the white collie Rob Roy.

Miss Amy B. Onken of Illinois, grand president of the fraternity, presented the portrait and it was accepted in behalf of the Government by Colonel Sherrill, Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds.

In her speech of presentation, Miss Onken said:

"For the first time the nation has as its first lady a member of a national college fraternity. From the days of Martha Washington until now, never has it had as the wife of its President a woman more universally admired and loved. It seems distinctly fitting that to Pi Beta Phi, the first national college fraternity for the women, the first to organize the alumnae, the first to adopt a big, national, altruistic work, and the first to instigate many of today's accepted standard lines of development, has come the signal honor of claiming as its own, Grace Goodhue Coolidge, first lady of the land."

In accepting the portrait Colonel Sherrill said:

"The graceful act of the Pi Beta Phi fraternity commemorated here today in the presentation of this portrait of Mrs. Coolidge to the White House to remain here for all time, for the present and future generations to admire, is a fitting occasion for our gratification that the offical collection of the White House is to be thus assured of a splendid portrait of Mrs. Coolidge to add to those that are now here.

"Unfortunately our forefathers, or rather our foremothers, have not been in all cases so thoughtful as are the members of your illustrious organization. In looking up the record of the portraits of the different first ladies of the land, we find that there are only seven of the entire number whose portrait now odorn the walls of the White House. It may interest those present to know which wives of the Presidents are included in this list. They are as follows: Martha Washington, by E. F. Andrews; Mrs. Van Buren, by Henry Inman, painted before 1842; Mrs. Tyler, by F. Aurelli, painted before 1854; Mrs. Polk, artist, unknown; Mrs. Hayes, by Daniel Huntington; Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, by Daniel Huntington; Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, by Theobald Chartran.

"It will occur to each of you, as it does to me, that it is most deplorable that a handsome portrait of each of the succeeding first ladies of the land has not been secured as a part of the permanent record of the various Administrations, which have controlled and have done so much in forming our American history.

"Now that women are taking such an active interest in politics, being equipped with the vote and all the other perquisites of this important duty, I feel sure that there will never again be a first lady of the land whose portrait is not secured for addition to the White House collection, but fortunately and most graciously the Pi Beta Phi have anticipated official action that undoubtedly would be taken later and have as a loving tribute to their most distinguished representative lost no time in making this splendid gift to Mrs. Coolidge and through her to the nation."

Parties of the Week

Alpha Theta Chi entertained about a hundred couples at a dancing party Saturday evening at the Scottish Rite ball room. Alabama smilax was used in carrying out the spring decorations, using green and white as a color scheme. Punch was served from a side table during the intermission. Prof. and Mrs. M. M. Society Looks With Eagerness Toward Springtime Gaities

The Lenten season which society has spent in seclusion—as it should—is over and rested and refreshed is ready for the gaieties of the spring season. Brides' affairs, spring dinner dances of several of the dancing clubs which are closing their formal season, attractive bridge luncheons and spring meetings of many clubs are scheduled for the first week after Easter.

The Saturday Night club will entertain at its annual guest night dinner dance Thursday evening at 7 o'clock at the Lincoln hotel. On the committee in charge of arrangements are Mr. and Mrs. E. M. O'Shea, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Truman, Mr. and Mrs. Dana Cole, and Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Dillman.

Entertain at Dance.

The Knights of Columbus will entertain at a dance and card party Easter Monday at the club house, when the guests will be members and their friends. Attractive spring decorations will be used in the ball room and cards will be played in the council chamber. Refreshments will be served during the evening.

The Fifty Fifty club will hold its last affair of the season which will be a formal dinner dance on Wednesday evening at the Country club.

Hokomok club will have its spring party, the closing affair of the season, Monday evening at the Lincoln hotel. Japanese effects will be carried out in decorations, and small hand-made fans will be the favors for the ladies. Luncheon will be served in individual baskets. Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Gramlich, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dobson, and Mr. and Mrs. Guy King are the committee for the affair.

Many Events Planned.

Miss Helen Burkett whose marriage to Marvin H. Meyers of Omaha will take place May 1 is a much feted bride-to-be and many charming affairs will be given between Easter and her wedding day. Miss Celeste Leech will be hostess at luncheon tomorrow at the Lincoln hotel and the following day, Mrs. David Wilkinson, 2459 Parke avenue, will entertain at luncheon at her home. Mrs. Joseph Grainger will entertain Miss Burkett and a group of her friends at luncheon Wednesday at her home while a bridge tea Thursday afternoon at the University club for sixty for which Mrs. D. V. Stephens will be hostess will conclude the festivities for this week for Friday and Saturday. Miss Burkett will spend in Omaha where she will attend the wedding of her cousin, Catherine Burkett to C. Dean Lowry of Lincoln which takes place Saturday evening at the home of Miss Burkett's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Burkett. Sunday Miss Burkett's sister, Mrs. Raymond Farquhar and Mr. Farquhar will entertain at a family dinner for Miss Burkett and her fiance.

The following week, Miss Hilda Chowins will entertain on Monday, Misses Helen and Marion Hall on Tuesday and Mr. and Mrs. Carlisle Logan-Jones, at dinner on Tuesday evening and on Wednesday evening will be the prenuptial dinner at the Burkett home with the wedding on Thursday evening.

Among the charming affairs last week for Miss Burkett was a beautiful luncheon at the Country club on Thursday for which Miss Zella Roope was hostess. Covers for forty-two were laid at one large table. The lovely decorations all in white gave a very bride-like effect. A white bouquet of spring flowers, which at the close of the luncheon was presented to the bride-to-be, graced the center of the table while baskets of white roses, sweetpeas, marguerites and hyacinths added to the beauty of the appointments. The favors were miniature white kid slippers filled with rice while the members of Miss Burkett's wedding party were presented with clusters of orange blossoms. Bridge was played during the afternoon hours and the attractive prizes followed the white motif. Miss Burkett received an Italian vase and Misses Frances Mentzer, Mildred Doyle and Gladys Sidles were the winners of the bridge prizes.

Entertain at Bridge.

Yesterday afternoon Misses Maryloulse Bryan and Ruth Atkinson entertained at bridge at the executive mansion for Miss Burkett. Easter lilies and spring flowers in bright colors adorned the receiving rooms and the drawing room where five tables were set for bridge. Luncheon was served the latter part of the afternoon.

Mrs. Samuel C. Waugh has invitations out for two bridge luncheons this week, one on Tuesday and one on Friday, both to be given at her home, 2501 Bradfield drive.

Mrs. Frank Mullen will entertain informally at luncheon and bridge on Tuesday for twelve guests and Mrs. Carl Green will be hostess at a spring luncheon at the Lincoln hotel for twenty-four—Friday.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Amanda Dorsey of Lincoln, daughter of G. D. Dorsey of Los Angeles, Cal., and Frank Kerkow of Albion, which took place Friday at the parsonage of the First Methodist church in Council Bluffs. Mr. and Mrs. Kerkow will be at home in Albion.

WILL TRAVEL IN EUROPE

Numbered among the Lincoln travelers abroad this summer will be Mrs. Wasserman, who will sail Saturday, May 31, from New York with Mr. Wasserman and a party of eastern friends on the Homeric of the White Star line. The party will land at Cherbourg, France, and from there Mr. and Mrs. Wasserman will go directly to Bucharest, Roumania, for a visit with members of Mr. Wasserman's family. They will later join their friends for a tour of France, the battlefields, Switzerland, England and other places of interest. They will sail for home August 5 on the Leviathan.

Mr. Wasserman came to Canada and later to this country twenty-five years ago and this will be his first visit home in that time. He has a father, brother and six sisters in Bucharest.

Mrs. Ames Present When Picture Of First Lady Given To Nation

Mrs. Ernest Ames is in Washington, D. C., the guest of her sister, Mrs. Dale Drain and while there attended the eastern conference of her sorority, Pi Beta Phi. It was during this conference the second week in April that the sorority formally presented the portrait of one of its members, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, to the government to be hung in the White House, along with those of other mistresses of the White House. Mrs. Ames has written to different members of the alumnae organization of the presentation which was held at the White House. Thirteen hundred members of the sorority attended the conference and the presentation.

The painting, the first to be made of Mrs. Coolidge, is the work of Howard Chandler Christy. It shows Mrs. Coolidge in a long red gown, standing with the white collie Rob Roy.

Miss Amy B. Onken of Illinois, grand president of the fraternity, presented the portrait and it was accepted in behalf of the Government by Colonel Sherrill, Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds.

In her speech of presentation, Miss Onken said:

Of interest in the university set is the announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of two university girls, both members of Delta Gamma, to university men, one a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity and the other of Delta Upsilon. Miss Jackson is one of the brides-to-be for her engagement to Donald W. McMeekin of Hollywood, Cal., is announced, today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Jackson. Mr. McMeekin, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McMeekin of Hollywood, formerly of Lincoln, is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity. The wedding will take place in May.

Miss Fitzsimmons' engagement to William C. Jackson, of Los Angeles, Miss Fern Jackson's brother, is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Fitzsimmons, this wedding also to be a May affair. Miss Fitzsimmons and Mr. Jackson are graduates of university and for the past two years Miss Fitzsimmons has been doing kindergarten work. Mr. Jackson is a member of Delta Upsilon.

Miss Moore whose engagement to Charles S. Jay of New York, is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Moore, will also be a spring bride. Following the wedding Mr. Jay and his bride will leave for a trip of several weeks through the east returning to Lincoln in July. Mr. Jay has been in business for the last two years in Lincoln.

A bride of last week was Mrs. Funk who was formerly Miss Helen Van Doran. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Van Doran and the wedding which was an attractive affair of Wednesday evening took place at the Van Doran home, 1320 South Fifteenth street. The bride's gown was of white satin with lnog veil of tulle. Her shower bouquet was of bride's roses and sweet peas. The couple will make their home in Lincoln.

Miss McGraw was Mrs. Funk's maid of honor and only attendant. Her gown was of powder blue georgette and she carried an arm bouqquet of pink roses.

Announcement is made today of the marriage of Miss Neva Trexler, a former student of the university and member of Phi Mu sorority, to Joseph Thomas of North Platte. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. George Trexler of North Platte. The wedding took place last week in the Church of Our Savior. Bishop George A. Beecher officiated.

FORM A FEDERATION OF DELPHIAN CHAPTERS.

A federation of the Lincoln Delphian chapters was effected, last Tuesday evening at the Lindell hotel. The object of this federation is to so closely unite the members of these different chapters that the efficiency of each chapter as well as member may be increased, and to make possible union meetings and concerted action in social, civic and cultural undertakings.

This federation will not conflict in any way with the prescribed plans of the national society, but rather shall through closest cooperation, be devoted to the more complete realization of the Delphian ideals of higher education, personal improvement and social progress.

The names of the chapters affiliated in this federation are Lincoln Alpha Delphian, meeting in the Lindell hotel, first and third Monday mornings of the month.

The Delta Delphian meeting in the Lindell hotel the second and fourth Thursday mornings of the month.

Beta Delphian meeting in the Business Woman's League rooms, Fraternity building, the first and third Friday evenings of each month.

Gamma Delphian meeting in Degree of Honor rooms, the second and fourth Monday evenings of each month.

The Athena Delphian meeting in the Wesleyan Council rooms, University Place, the second and fourth Monday mornings of each month.

The chapters are made up of two hundred and fifty of the representative women of the city and the following head the federation:

President—Miss Edith Woodburn.
Vice president—Mrs. W. H. Myers.
Secretary—Mrs. W. M. Watson.
Corresponding secretary — Mrs. Floyd L. Wolcott.
Treasurer—Miss Hazel Ritchey.

Adult education is a live subject today and the Delphian plan, provided by the society, combines features that have been found to be helpful to the university woman as well as to those of lesser opportunity.

Mrs. J. L. Hughes, divisional director of the national society, completed the organization, assisted by Mrs T. B. Lord and Miss Erla Pryor, field secretaries.

The Delphian society is non-secretarian and non-partisan. More than one hundred thousand women of this country have accepted the work and are doing it.

A short program preceded the business hour and consisted of a group of songs by Miss Balby, accompanied by Miss Verna Trine. The group included "Passing By"—Purcell. "In the Rosses"—Reichart. "A Memory" by Parks.

Mrs. W. H. Myers gave a reading and Leland Wood, accompanied by Miss Wood gave two violin solos: "A Spanish Serenade" by Chamanade and "A Gypsy Air" by Saveanant.

Mrs. Lord and Miss Pryor have now taken up their work in a new section but Mrs. Hughes will still be at the Lindell hotel for a time, after making a short visit to her home in Kansas City.

DEPARTMENT MEMBERS' CHILDREN IN PROGRAM.

The Music department of Havelock woman's club, presented the members' own children in a concert program, held in the city library Tuesday evening, under the direction of Miss Betty Luce The orchestra, consisting of fourteen members, was particularly attractive.

A large crowd was present and the rooms were gay with the club colors. Plans were made for music week, May 4 to 10. Among the attractions sponsored by the club are band concerts in the park; community singing; song recitals; visits to shut-ins; sing at the Burlington shops; orchestral concert in the schools; a serenade and open meeting of the department led by Mr. O. J. Hitchcock.

An unusual number on the program was a viola solo by Betty Luce who was the recipient recently, of a valuable instrument from V. F. Hoffman, pioneer music dealer of Havelock.

The program as presented, follows:

Part One.

Dance of the Crickets, Seredy.
Waltz, Schmidt.
Orchestra

The Children's Hour—C. E. Summers, Jr.

DELPHIAN CHAPTER IN DISCUSSION O FRELIGION.

The Golden Rod chapter of Delphian organization in Havelock, met Monday evening at the home of Mrs V. B. Hoffman. The study was in the charge of Mrs. C. L. Stanley and the topic, "Religion and Art of Ancient Egypt." The following subjects were discussed: "The Religion of Ancient Egypt," Mrs. C. L. Stanley; "Temples," Mrs. H. E. Tyler; "Religious Ceremonies," Mrs. W. M. Tucket; "Art and Decoration," Mrs. R. E. Ashman; "Tombs and Burial Customs," Mrs. C. E. Berg; "Excavations," Mrs. F. D. Brown.

The next meeting of the chapter will be April 28.

CLUB STUDIES LIFE OF JOHN G. NEIHARDT

The W. R. C. club met Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. Ray Eaton, who was assisted by Mrs. G. C. Baker and Mrs. V. L. Benson, for 1 o'clock luncheon. Covers were laid for thirty and the table was beautified with early spring flowers.

After the luncheon, Miss Flora Bullock reveiwed the life of John G. Neihardt, the Nebraska poet.

The next meeting will be in two weeks, April 29, with Mrs. W. F. Stone, 3012 R street.

BRUNER BIRD CLUB HEARS TALK ON BIRDS.

About thirty-five members of the Bruner Bird club met Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Loveland.

Prof. M. H. Swenk gave the program for the evening; an informal talk illustrated by specimens, on the identification of Nebraska hawks. As there are 23 species and four subspecies in the state, it is not easy to identify them in the field. Most bird books picture the hawks as seen from above, while the observer usually sees them from below. Prof. Swenk pointed out the differences most easily distinguished in the field; differences of size, form, color, manner of flight and habitat, and by means of a kep prepared by him, and the fine collection of specimens, the members were able to follow the talk and gain much valuable information, the members were able to follow the talk and gain much valuable information.

The Cooper and sharp-shinned hawks and the goshawks are the destructive members of the family, but all hawks seem to get the blame for their misdoings. Prof. Swenk made a plea for the proper identification between the destructive and beneficial hawks, and urged the protection of the latter.

Prof. Swenk invited the members of the Bruner Bird club and others interested in bird study to attend the programs and banquet of the Nebraska Ornithologists' union, Friday, May 9 and the annual field day Saturday.

After the program some of this season's maple sugar just received from the Loveland relatives in Vermont was passed around.

The next meeting of the Bruner Bird club will be in the lecture room of the University museum May 1 when Prof. Barbour will give a lecture illustrated by lantern slides on "Prehistoric Birds."

DRAMATIC DEPARTMENT MEETS FOR LUNCHEON.

The Dramatic department of the Lincoln Woman's club met Wednesday at the home of the leader, Mrs. W. H. Myers of University Place, for luncheon and a program.

Professor Manley Phelps, Mrs. W. W. Whitfield and Mrs. E. L. Marty were the guests of honor. The program consisted of an original verse, "Toast to the Dramatic department" by Mrs. B. Estes. A chalk talk by Mrs. F. L Bollen and a group of readings by Manley Phelps. Miss Marie Reichenbach gave a group of readings, Mrs. Austin Ough and Mrs. G. C. Harris, a reading.

AXIS CLUB NOTES.

The Axis club met for dinner at the Y. W. C. A. club rooms, Tuesday evening.

The program consisted of several songs by a male sextet of the Roberts Sanitary Dairy accompanied by Miss Torrence.

Fifteen members of the club attended the state convention held at Grand Island, April 12. Interesting reports of the meetings and entertainment accorded the clubs by the Grand Island people were given by Margaret Lewis, Bertha Lefferdink, Bernice Clark, Vlasta Chalupa and Sarah Steele.

The fourth annual banquet will be held at the chamber of commerce, Tuesday evening, March 6 at which time the newly elected officers will be installed.

JUNIOR HIGH HEARS ELECTA CHAPTER QUARTET.

The members of Whittier Junior high school met in regular assembly last Wednesday to hear a musical program given by the Electa chapter quartet, composed of Mrs. Orville Andrews, Mrs. J. H. Mitchell, Mrs. Gertrude Boyles and Mrs. G. B. Baer.

The following songs were used: Drink to Me Only; Mammy Lou; Eliza Lady, Sonny O'Mine; Smilin' Through; Jack and Jill.

BETHANY W. C. T. U. IN BUSINESS AND PROGRAM.

Bethany W. C. T. U. met at the home of Mrs. Elmer E. Strain, Friday afternoon at 2:30. Mrs. James F. Lemmon led the devotional hour and was followed by Mrs. C. S Clayton who spoke on "Law Enforcement, Its Effect upon the Home". Miss Alice Wing played two piano solos.

It was decided to send a letter of commendation to "Good Housekeeping," for the article in the May number on "Prohibition."

Mrs. E. A. Wing reported at length on the conference for pre-school age to be held the first week in May. Speakers are to be secured for a talk to boys and one to girls in addition to the regular work of the conference. Some of the best specialists of Lincoln will examine the children for eye, ear, nose, throat and teeth troubles and also for orthopedic difficulties. No pains will be spared to make every examination thorough.

Mental tests will be given by Miss Clara Slade, psychologist in the Lincoln schools, to any child, a mother may bring, if she desires it.

There will also be something on recreation as the committee feels that this side of life is of the greatest importance.

The committee on scientific temperance instruction, reported that lessons will be placed in the Bethany public schools Monday.

A Congressman's Daughter Writes

BY GRACE SHALLENBERGER,

If Chicago is the windy city, Washington is the wordy city. Fountains of oratory play at both ends of Pennsylvania avenue. Geysers of epithets spout from the senate wing while molten verbiage overflows on the house side. Weighty words fall from the supreme bench and telegraph lines sag under the load of tense, terse verbs that flash from the hundred and newspaper bureaus that infest the capitol city. Words, words, everywhere — sometimes—without a thought to think.

But thoughts that can flash their sympathetic understanding from mobile, expressive eyes do not need to be crystallized into words. This subtelty I deduced from watching a fun dance in and out of the fine dark eyes of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge at the unveiling of her new portrait by Howard Chandler Christy. What a joy she must have been to those dea fand dumb pupils where she was teaching when the Honorable Calvin first came a courting. No need to bother with words or the sign language when her eyes begin to talk.

At the White House presentation of the picture, more than a thousand young women who were members of Mrs. Coolidge's college fraternity ani the donors of the painting, crowded int othe historic East room. A semi-circle was chalked on the floor underneath the portrait. Within the charmed circle the all star cast was to perform. Outside of it stood the lay members. Coats became oppressive, hats were knocked askew and shiney noses sprang up like bright little dandelions in an April lawn as the perspiring one thousand tried to jockey into good position and yet not spill over the line It may never happen again but I had both toes on the mark this time with a ringside perspective that was worth all it cost to maintain it.

As the doors opened, the strains of the Marine band and a gorgeous galaxy of gold braided military aides escorted in the First Lady of the Land. Her poise and simplicity had exactly the right setting in a gracious gown of gray chiffon. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt made most distinguished the group of special guests. Mr. Christy, accompanied by his beautiful wife was correctly frock-coated and spatted in the best Fifth Avenue manner. The speech-makers and rope-pullers showed themselves masters of strategy in finding their proper places. Everything was running as smoothly as the old car just after the cylinders have been ground.

The ladies made their felicitous remarks without notes but the halting male who accepted the portrait on behalf of the hite house had to read this. As two pretty young girls pulled the cords, the curtains parted to disclose the charming mistress of the White house posed in a crimson velvet gown with a joyous scarf floating behind her in the best Christy manner. The gardens of the White House and a stunning white collie dog were subordinate bits of interest I am not quite sure how this portrait will stand up under the strain of posterity to which it was consigned by the eloquent speech makers. Although it is a good likeness, to some it may seem to have more of the Christy girl character than Mrs. Coolidge's. But on the whole, it is a graceful gesture, gracefully done.

A Sharp Intrusion.

As the ceremony approached it decorous close, the air was heavy with the bated breath of the eager one thousand and the ponderous metaphors of the White house custodian. Suddenly out of a clear sky, the very atmosphere seemed shattered by an ear splitting clatter of metal and stone. But humor, ever the shock absorber for difficult situations, was Mrs. Coolidge's instant contribution. An April-like shower of merriment passed over her expressive gray eyes as it became apparent that the rival racket came from a fellow artist whose noisy paint bucket was hurtling about the scaffolding just outside the window where No. 67845 of the local painters' union was applying a spring coat of white paint to the executive mansion.

This broad casting of infectious humor from a pair of sympathetic eyes is far older than Mr. Marconis discovery, and you need no other than your natural head piece to get its message of friendliness and fun. Sweethearts may say it with flowers, senators may say it with words but Mrs. Coolidge says it with her eyes and everybody likes to listen in.

READS A PAPER ON WESTMINSTER ABBEY.

The Hall in the Grove held the last regular meeting at the home of Mrs. E. W. Allen, 3640 X street. Mrs. G. A. TWENTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL CONVENTION OF P. T. A.

The twenty-eighth annual convention of the National P. T. A. will take place in St. Paul, Minn., May 5 to 9 inclusive, at the St. Paul hotel.

Some of the finest talent of the country is listed on this program and the topics include all of present day interest. An educational exhibit has been arranged to which the following organizations will contribute: Playground and Recreation association of America; Child Health association; American Social Hygiene association; American Medical association National Educational association, and many others.

All sorts of problems met by parents and teachers will be discussed from the platform and in round table conference.

The National Congress of Mothers will meet with the larger organization. Topics like the following will be discussed: "Training for Parenthood;" "Child Development," "Good Literature in the Home;" "Recreation for Young and Old," "Parent Problems in the Country," "Preschool Recreation and Standards."

FORM A FEDERATION OF DELPHIAN CHAPTERS.

A federation of the Lincoln Delphian chapters was effected, last Tuesday evening at the Lindell hotel. The object of this federation is to so closely unite the members of these different chapters that the efficiency of each chapter as well as member may be increased, and to make possible union meetings and concerted action in social, civic and cultural undertakings.

This federation will not conflict in any way with the prescribed plans of the national society, but rather shall through closest cooperation, be devoted to the more complete realization of the Delphian ideals of higher education, personal improvement and social progress.

The names of the chapters affiliated in this federation are Lincoln Alpha Delphian, meeting in the Lindell hotel, first and third Monday mornings of the month.

The Delta Delphian meeting in the Lindell hotel the second and fourth Thursday mornings of the month.

Beta Delphian meeting in the Business Woman's League rooms, Fraternity building, the first and third Friday evenings of each month.

Gamma Delphian meeting in Degree of Honor rooms, the second and fourth Monday evenings of each month.

The Athena Delphian meeting in the Wesleyan Council rooms, University Place, the second and fourth Monday mornings of each month.

The chapters are made up of two hundred and fifty of the representative women of the city and the following head the federation:

President—Miss Edith Woodburn.
Vice president—Mrs. W. H. Myers.
Secretary—Mrs. W. M. Watson.
Corresponding secretary — Mrs. Floyd L. Wolcott.
Treasurer—Miss Hazel Ritchey.

Adult education is a live subject today and the Delphian plan, provided by the society, combines features that have been found to be helpful to the university woman as well as to those of lesser opportunity.

Mrs. J. L. Hughes, divisional director of the national society, completed the organization, assisted by Mrs. T. B. Lord and Miss Erla Pryor, field secretaries.

The Delphian society is non-secretarian and non-partisan. More than one hundred thousand women of this country have accepted the work and are doing it.

A short program preceded the business hour and consisted of a group of songs by Miss Balby, accompanied by Miss Verna Trine. The group included "Passing By"—Purcell. "In the Rosses"—Reichart. "A Memory" by Parks.

Mrs. W. H. Myers gave a reading and Leland Wood, accompanied by Miss Wood gave two violin solos: "A Spanish Serenade" by Chamanade and "A Gypsy Air" by Saveanant.

Mrs. Lord and Miss Pryor have now taken up their work in a new section but Mrs. Hughes will still be at the Lindell hotel for a time, after making a short visit to her home in Kansas City.

DEPARTMENT MEMBERS' CHILDREN IN PROGRAM.

The Music department of Havelock woman's club, presented the members' own children in a concert program, held in the city library Tuesday evening, under the direction of Miss Betty Luce. The orchestra, consisting of fourteen members, was particularly attractive.

A large crowd was present and the rooms were gay with the club colors. Plans were made for music week, May 4 to 10. Among the attractions sponsored by the club are band concerts in the park; community singing; song recitals; visits to shut-ins; sing at the Burlington shops; orchestral concert in the schools; a serenade and open meeting of the department led by Mr. O. J. Hitchcock.

An unusual number on the program was a viola solo by Betty Luce who was the recipient recently, of a valuable instrument from V. F. Hoffman, pioneer music dealer of Havelock.

The program as presented, follows:

DELPHIAN CHAPTER IN DISCUSSION O FRELIGION.

The Golden Rod chapter of Delphian organization in Havelock, met Monday evening at the home of Mrs V. B. Hoffman. The study was in charge of Mrs. C. L. Stanley and the topnc, "Religion and Art of Ancient Egypt." The following subjects were discussed: "The Religion of Ancient Egypt," Mrs. C. L. Stanley; "Temples," Mrs. H. E. Tyler; "Religious Ceremonies," Mrs. W. M. Tucket; "Art and Decoration," Mrs. R. E. Ashman; "Tombs and Burial Customs," Mrs. C. E. Berg; "Excavations," Mrs. F. D. Brown.

The next meeting of the chapter will be April 28.

CLUB STUDIES LIFE OF JOHN G. NEIHARDT

The W. R. C. club met Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. Ray Eaton, who was assisted by Mrs. G. C. Baker and Mrs. V. L. Benson, for 1 o'clock luncheon. Covers were laid for thirty and the table was beautified with early spring flowers.

After the luncheon, Miss Flora Bullock reveiwed the life of John G. Neihardt, the Nebraska poet.

The next meeting will be in two weeks, April 29, with Mrs. W. F. Stone, 3012 R street.

BRUNER BIRD CLUB HEARS TALK ON BIRDS.

About thirty-five members of the Bruner Bird club met Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Loveland.

Prof. M. H. Swenk gave the program for the evening: an informal talk illustrated by specimens, on the identification of Nebraska hawks. As there are 23 species and four subspecies in the state, it is not easy to identify them in the field. Most bird books picture the hawks as seen from above, while the observer usually sees them from below. As the ceremony approached it decorous close, the air was heavy with the bated breath of the eager one thousand and the ponderous metaphors of the White house custodian. Suddenly out of a clear sky, the very atmosphere seemed shattered by an ear splitting clatter of metal and stone. But humor, ever the shock absorber for difficult situations, was Mrs. Coolidge's instant contribution. An April-like shower of merriment passed over her expressive gray eyes as it became apparent that the rival racket came from a fellow artist whose noisy paint bucket was hurtling about the scaffolding just outside the window where No. 67845 of the local painters' union was applying a spring coat of white paint to the executive mansion.

This broad casting of infectious humor from a pair of sympathetic eyes is far older than Mr. Marconis discovery, and you need no other than your natural head piece to get its message of friendliness and fun. Sweethearts may say it with flowers, senators may say it with words but Mrs. Coolidge says it with her eyes and everybody likes to listen in.

MIDLAND NOTES.

The Wynn literary society celebrated its thirty-fourth anniversary Thursday and Friday. The anniversary program was given in Clemmons hall Thursday afternoon, and the banquet for all of the Wynns and faculty Friday evening at the Pathfinder hotel. The reception to which the entire student body had been invited was held immediately after the banquet. A number of former Wynns returned to help celebrate this occasion.

Five delegates from the Y. W. C. A. and five from the Y. M. C. A. attended the cabinet training conference at Lincoln the past week-end. A report of the conference was given.

Campus day was held Tuesday when the entire student body and faculty turned out in old clothes and raked the campus, and cleaned winnodows until by the middle of the afternoon the campus and many other untouched spots before were clean and shining. At twelve o'clock a picnic dinner was served cafeteria style on the campus and everyone enjoyed the day immensely.

The mid-semester classification of the college students was printed in the Midland this week. The "B" class still holds by far the greatest percentage.

GUTZMER-POSTON STUDIOS.

The annual spring recital of the vocal department will be given Monday evening, April 28, at the Temple theater. The annual recital of the piano department will be held early in May.

The Minneapolis Symphony orchestra conducted by Henri Verbrugghen, together with the University chorus, assisted by a group of soloists will present the oratorio, "Elijah," by Mendelssohn, at the Nebraska Memorial stadium on May 14 The soloists will be Lenora Sparks, soprano, Mabel Beddoe, contralto; Walter Wheatley, tenor, and Bernard Ferguson, baritone, who will sing the role of Elijah. The chorus is under the direction of Mrs. Carrie B Raymond. Preceding the oratorio, the orchestra will play symphonic poem No 3 "Les Preludes," by Liszt.

The Minneapolis Symphony orchestra holds a place in the first rank of musical organizations in the country and a real treat is in store for Lincoln Previous to becoming leader of the Minneapolis orchestra Henri Verbrugghen had scored many successes as a violinist and as a conductor He is a native of Brussels.

Bernard Ferguson was chosen at the beginning of his career to sing the part of Elijah in the Boston Opera company's production and his name has always been identified with that role He has filled engagements throughout the country in oratorio, recital and opera

Mabel Beddoe has a voice of warmth, a style of distinction, a striking stage presence and marked interpretative intelligence

Lenore Sparks, soprano with the Metropolitan Opera company, is well known throughout the country through her extensive concert tours.

Walter Wheatley is well known to Lincoln musicians and music lovers and it is not necessary to tell further of his career thus far and the particularly successful place which he holds in Nebraska and throughout the country

A large stage is being erected in front of the west side of the stadium with special lighting facilities to furnish illumination for the stadium and stage. The acoustic properties of the stadium have been tested and been pronounced by Arthur J. Gaines of the Minneapolis orchestra to be excellent for such a concert.

An Easter cantata, "Christ, the Victor," by Buck will be given this evening at 8 o'clockat St. Paul Methodist church, Twelfth and M streets. by Mrs. E C. Tullis, Mrs. E. C. Boehmer, Miss Marjorie Mahery, sopranos, Miss Hazel Ritchey, Miss Constance Cruikschank, altos; Reuben Walt, tenor; E C Boehmer, bass. Howard Kirkpatrick is organist and director. The high school orchesta will be assisted by graduates of Lincoln high school, who were formerly members of the orchestra. A program of unusual popular appeal and musical excellence is being prepared as the final offering of the year. Rex Elton Faire will be flute soloist. He will play one group with the orchestra and one accompanied by Miss Katharyn Kimball. The orchestra will be under the direction of Charles B. Righter.

Oriole Concert Tuesday.

Tuesday evening, April 22, a concert by the Oriole girls' glee club of Augustana college, Rock Island, Ill., offers a unique attraction to Lincoln music-lovers. This club, which is made up of twenty of the best feminine voices at the Augustana conservatory, is making its ninth annual tour through the mid-western states Its appearance in Lincoln is sponsored by the Luther league of the First Lutheran church. The concert, for which a varied program of both secular and religious music is planned, will be given at the high school auditorium, at 8:15 this coming Tuesday night.

E. Clifford Toren, who needs no introduction in musical circles in Lincoln, will appear as baritone soloist. Mr Toren is a graduate of the University School of Music, and prior to becoming a member of the Augustana conservatory faculty, maed his home in Lincoln. He is at present director of the Orioles, succeeding Arvid Samuelson in that capacity.

Mr Samuelson, as piano soloist, is accompanying the Orioles on their tour, and his many Lincoln friends will enjoy an opportunity to hear him at this concert. For a number of years Mr. Samuelson was on the faculty of the University School of Music He was also director of the Grieg male choir, one of Lincoln's flourishing musical organizations, a few years ago. Until his recent resignation, Mr Samuelson was head o fthe Augustana conservatory at Rock Island.

Brings Orchestra To Lincoln May 14

Henri Berbruggnen, conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, which will come to Lincoln for an open air concert at the Nebraska Memorial stadium on Wednesday evening, May 14. The orchestra with the University chorus, conducted by Mrs. Carrie B. Raymond, assisted by a group of well known soloists, will present Mendelssohn's famous work, "Elijah."

GUTZMER-POSTON STUDIOS.

The annual spring recital of the vocal department will be given Monday evening, April 28, at the Temple theater. The annual recital of the piano department will be held early in May.

The Minneapolis Symphony orchestra conducted by Henri Verbrugghen, together with the University chorus, assisted by a group of soloists will present the oratoria, "Elijah," by Mendelssohn, at the Nebraska Memorial stadium on May 14. The soloists will be Lenora Sparks, soprano; Mabel Beddoe, contralto; Walter Wheatley, tenor, and Bernard Ferguson, baritone, who will sing the role of Elijah. The chorus is under the direction of Mrs. Carrie B. Raymond. Preceding the oratoria, the orchestra will play symphonic poem No. 3 "Les Preludes," by Liszt.

The Minneapolis Symphony orchestra holds a place in the first rank of musical organizations in the country and a real treat is in store for Lincoln. Previous to becoming leader of the Minneapolis orchestra Henri Verbrugghen had scored many successes as a violinist and as a conductor. He is a native of Brussels.

Bernard Ferguson was chosen at the beginning of his career to sing the part of Elijah in the Boston Opera company's production and his name has always been identified with that role. He has filled engagements throughout the country in oratorio, recital and opera.

Lenore Sparks, soprano with the Metropolitan Opera company, is well known throughout the country through her extensive concert tours.

Walter Wheatley is well known to Lincoln musicians and music lovers and it is not necessary to tell further of his career thus far and the particularly successful place which he holds in Nebraska and throughout the country.

A large stage is being erected in front of the west side of the stadium with special lighting facilities to furnish illumination for the stadium and stage. The acoustic properties of the stadium have been tested and been pronounced by Arthur J. Gaines of the Minneapolis orchestra to be excellent for such a concert.

An Easter cantata, "Christ, the Victor," by Buck will be given this evening at 8 o'clockat St. Paul Methodist church, Twelfth and M streets, by Mrs. E. C. Tullis, Mrs. E. C. Boehmer, Miss Marjorie Mahery, sopranos; Miss Hazel Ritchey, Miss Constance Cruikschank, altos; Reuben Walt, tenor; E. C. Boehmer, bass. Howard Kirkpatrick is organist and director. The second part of the program will be an orchestral program under the direction of Carl Steckelberg.

The complete program follows:

Part I

Baritone, Who is this?

Women's Voices, Lamentation of the Women.

Duet—Tenor and Bass, The Night Watch.

Chorus, So they went together.

Easter Dawn—Duet, soprano and alto, As it began to dawn.

Chorus, And Behold!

Tenor, Fear not Ye.

Chorus, Alleluia.

Women's Voices, And the same Day.

Tenor, Peace be unto You.

Chorus, Ye Christian Heralds.

Bass, And the same Evening.

Solos and Chorus, The Questioning of Peter.

Chorus, We Will Follow Thee.

Alto, The Ascension.

Baritone, This is He.

Chorus, So to the Heaven of Heavens.

Part II

The annual home concert of the University of Nebraska glee club is to be given Friday and Saturday evenings in the Temple theatre, Twelfth and R streets. The thirty members, directed by Prof. Parwin C. Witte, will present a number of ensemble numbers, the University quartet will sing, and several solo numbers with a part taken from Robin Hood will be given.

The Glee club has appeared this year at several campus occasions, and sang at a local theatre for one week. They have just returned from a 500-mile tour in the eastern and northern parts of the state, making promises of return engagements in a few of the towns where they were requested to appear again.

Prof. Witte, the director of the club, was formerly director of the Ohio Wesleyan glee club and was for a time connected with the Chicago Metropolitan Opera company. Membership in the club is by tryout, and is particularly well-trained in the ensemble swelling tones.

A children's recital will be given by the pupils of Alta Vaughan and Carl Beutel Saturday afternoon, April 26 in the Wesleyan auditorium. The program will be as follows:

Merkel, Butterfly; Clifford Vessey.

Pieczonka, Tarantella; Irene Hassinger.

Hiems, Dance of the Bajodiers; La Vonne Lind.

Dennee, Tarantelle in A minor; Mildred Gaddis.

Brown, Pixies Sliding Down Hill.

Mozart, Sonata in C major, first movement.

Chopin, Two Mazurkas; Perry Beach.

Chopin, Valse in C minor; Janet Kohn.

Hahn, Concert Polonaise; Delphine Gugenheim.

A pre-graduate recital will be given by Glenn Griffith, student with Carl Beutel, at the Wesleyan auditorium, next Tueday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The public is invited. The program follows:

MacDowell, Keltic Sonata. Maestoso. MoltoAllegra con fuoco.

Schumann, Romance in F sharp.

Bahms, Rhapsodie in G minor.

Zanella, Tempo di Minuetto.

Liszt, Rigoletto Paraphrase.

Schumann, Concerto in A minor. First movement.

Sixteenth Vesper Concert.

An orchestra of seventy-five players will furnish the program for the final number of the vesper concert series, April 27. The high school orchesta will be assisted by graduates of Lincoln high school, who were formerly members of the orchestra. A program of unusual popular appeal and musical excellence is being prepared as the final offering of the year. Rex Elton Faire will be flute soloist. He will play one group with the orchestra and one accompanied by Miss Katharyn Kimball. The orchestra will be under the direction of Charles B. Righter.

Oriole Concert Tuesday.

Tuesday evening, April 22, a concert by the Oriole girls' glee club of Augustana college, Rock Island, Ill., offers a unique attraction to Lincoln music-lovers. This club, which is made up of twenty of the best feminine voices at the Augustana conservatory, is making its ninth annual tour through the mid-western states. Its appearance in Lincoln is sponsored by the Luther league of the First Lutheran church. The concert, for which a varied program of both secular and religious music is planned, will be given at the high school auditorium at 8:15 this coming Tuesday night.

E. Clifford Toren, who needs no introduction in musical circles in Lincoln, will appear as baritone soloist. Mr. Toren is a graduate of the University School of Music, and prior to becoming a member of the Augustana conservatory faculty, maed his home in Lincoln. He is at present director of the Orioles, succeeding Arvid Samuelson in that capacity.

Mr. Samuelson, as piano soloist, is accompanying the Orioles on their tour, and his many Lincoln friends will enjoy an opportunity to hear him at this concert. For a number of years Mr. Samuelson was on the faculty of the University School of Music. He was also director of the Grieg male choir, one of Lincoln's flourishing musical organizations a few years ago. Until his recent resignation, Mr. Samuelson was head o fthe Augustana conservatory at Rock Island.

Society

In the evening Mrs. Sheldon will give an illustrated talk on "Nebraska Birds." The clubs from Hebron, Davenport, Bruning and Deshler are uniting with the Carleton club for this meeting.

Mrs. George Harvey Holden returned Thursday from Los Angeles, where she has spent the last four months. Enroute, she visited in Seattle, Tacoma and other points in the northwest. Mr. Holden was in the west a month, but he returned shortly after the holidays. Mr. and Mrs. Holden are at the Lincoln hotel for the present.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Whitmore, who have been in California since early December, returned recently to their former home in Valley, Neb. Walter White and Mrs. White, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Whitmore, will drive to Valley today and together the four will return to Lincoln. While in the west, Mr. and Mrs. Whitmore were in Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle.

Mrs. H. J. Nichols is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Dwight Thomas, in Curtis, Neb. Miss Doris Nichols, who is instructor in music at West Point, is spending the week end in Lincoln at her home.

Prof. C. H. Bright returned from Lincoln where he attended the meeting of the state executive committee of the Nebraska Teachers' association.

Mrs. J. H. White, Miss Frazier, and Miss Clark entertained at somerset last Thursday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Wright of Scenic, South Dakota.

The THEATERS

RUTH BRYAN OWEN WROTE MOVIE PLOT?

Broadways Rumors Daughter Of Commoner Author of Screen Play.

Gotham Scribes Maintain She Plays Leading Role in Cinema Play.

BY BRETT PAGE.

NEW YORK, Apri 19.—The approach of the National democratic convention to New York is even now being sensed on Broadway. This lends added interest to the report that Ruth Bryan Owen—none other than daughter of William Jennings Bryan—wrote the scenario, rehearsed the players, designed the sets and directed the production while playing the leading role—under the name of Nancy Call Bryan—of a motion picture soon to burst forth on Broadway.

Mrs. Fiske Returns.

Mrs. Fiske is back on Broadway. And name, if you can another woman on this continent—save those few whose husbands were presidents—that is instantly recognized when you say: "Mrs. Soandso."

After a successful season at the theatre in "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary," and a brief road tour, Mrs. Fiske has come back to Broadway—to the Henry Miller Theatre, to be exact—in a three-act comedy called "Helena's Boys." Dramatized from a story by Mary Brecht Pulver by Ida Lublenski Ehrlich, stated by Harrison Grey Fiske and sponsored by Charles I. Wagner, "Helena's Boys" proved one of the most thoroughly amusing plays we have had the good fortune to witness in many months.

The plot is simple. Helena's love for her husband, now mercifully dead, was extinguished long before he passed away. He put out the fires of affection by drowning them in drink. But Helena loves her boys, who are young yet are away from home.

One is a budding poet who left the home town for New York to reap international fame. The other is at school, but as the action unfolds, comes home because he arose in meeting and shouted "Bunk!" when an old gentleman declared that the boys who won the World War were "knights in shining armor fighting for an imperishable ideal."

Love and Fear.

Helena not only loves her boys—she fears them. She fears them because they think she is old and yet she is desperately in love with a gentleman of her own age who lives nearby. They plan to marry, but fear to disclose the fact to the lads. But when the boys come home and bring with them an engaging young radical who spouts all over the house his views about "the sacredness of self-expression no matter what stands in the way," Helena takes the sermon to heart.

In a not very new theatrical way, by a trick that seems centuries old, Helena turns the boys from captious critics of her marriage plans into ardent advocates. They even beg the middle-aged lover—despite the fact that he isn't an advanced thinker, only a successful manufacturer of umbrellas and raincoats—to do them the honor of marrying Mother!

From the entrance of the boys and their radical spokesman, the battle is on between the old generation and the new. Here are not merely differing individuals, but opposing centuries joined in combat. Many of the laughs—truly side-holding guffaws that resounded on every hand the night we viewed the play—loudly proclaimed that some in the audience were thinking not only of what was passing on the state, but of what had passed or is even now passing in their own experience.

Real Comedy Twin.

The first act of "Helena's Boys" is one of the best comedy first acts we ever seen. Acts two and three are not so golden, but obviously it is impossible for a perfect first act to be topped by succeeding acts. Still, the other acts—even to the last minutes before the final curtain falls—are thoroughly enjoyable. They are good examples of the theatrical truism that old situations, even ancient devices, may be made scintillatingly new by the way they are clothed with new ideas and the manner in which they are set forth and played.

Mrs. Fiske is without a peer in the particular realm of comedy she has made distinctively her own. She is altogether admirable as Helena-the-heart-hungered. Gay Pendleton and Reggie Sheffield as her boys, Ralph Shirley as the victor-radical, William Courtleigh as Helena's husband-to-be, Irene Purcell and Blaine Temple, who play neighor-girls and supply the honey-suckle-and-moonlight love themes that almost become discords because of "the new youth"—and indeed, all the players are finely cast and lend that semblance of reality without which the stage is but a parade of puppets. The people bodied forth by these plays are alive.

"Helena's Boys" is a delight, particularly to those who see something beside perfectly clear thinking in some of the ideas proclaimed by the exponents of "new youth."

Bolton, Wodehouse and Kern.

In this moment I feel like the toastmaster who arises as the waiters are about to vanish with the remnants of the feast, and says: "We have with us tonight three gentlemen who in other years used to give us all great joy, but who wandered apart—who separated, each to try his work alone or with other partners—but who, having seen the error of their ways have joined hands again in brotherly love. Let me introduce those who really need no introduction, the musical comedy firm of Bolton, Wodehouse and Kern, reunited!"

The cheers having subsided, we may whisper to each other that Guy Bolton, P. G. Wodehouse and Jerome Kern did each very well for himself with other collaborators, but that perhaps none alone or with his best other helpers could have turned out so thoroughly enjoyable so delectable an offering as "Sitting Pretty" which Comstock and Gest have brought to the Fulton theatre.

With Queenie Smith—perhaps the best of our soubrette dancers—in the role of semi-star, "Sitting Pretty" is amusing, is quite esoterically well-written, is replete with tinkling tunes which you will soon hear on the phonograph or over the radio, is well-danced, is well-acted and is most fashionably dressed and staged in the best of taste. Yes, "Sitting Pretty" is rather an aristocratic affair, though by no means—perish the thought!—highbrow.

Now "Sitting Pretty" possesses the sort of book it is impossible to detail without seeming perfectly flat. Take my word for it, the plot may not be astoundingly new, but it is astonishingly amusing. The same highly appreciative things may be said to the lyrics. And the lilting quality of Mern's melodies will be clear to your ear perhaps long before you see the show itself.

Beauty, Wit and Youth.

But we must not forget that there are others beside Queenie Smith in this admirable show. For instance, there are Gertrude Bryan and Frank McIntyre, and there are something like twenty-four others who crowd the Fulton theatre stage with beauty and wit and youth, and who all together contrive to add to "Sitting Pretty" that crown of consumate art that we call charm.

None of our friends during intermission in the lobby captiously remarked that he wished "those guys wouldn't rob the joke grave, but pay more attention to th ecradle." He repeated two that we had just heard and at which the audience had laughed heartily. He declared one had been said first by George Ade in World's Fair days, the other vowed is equally old. The audience laughed at them. Here they are for your judgment:

"Poverty is the banana peel upon the threshold of romance!"

The other:

"Deafness is an affliction, but whiskers are a man's own fault!"

Did I hear you laugh?

"Two Strangers From Nowhere."

At the Punch and Judy theatre we have "Two Strangers From Nowhere," a new play written by Fritz Leiber to star himself. Unlike "Helena's Boys," the Lieber play does not decrescendo from the first act. Equally unlike many another recent play, the Lieber offering withholds its greatest punch for the final ten minutes of the last act. We feel like leading three cheers for that.

We regret, indeed, that we cannot stand up and ask for cheers for the entire play. Behold a drama in which a wife who drudges for her scientist husband—he is seeking the cure for a dread disease—longs for fine clothes and the experiences she dreams are happiness, and suddenly prays for deliverance from poverty. Instantly, a green spotlight illumines a personage everyone instantly recognizes as the devil.

Tons of Sermons.

From this instant there are sermons—tons of 'em it sometimes seemed—that swing the gamut. I almost wrote the gabble, of near-philosophy. A true note now and then rings forth with the welcome clearness of a tingling bell.

In the final scene the tempted young wife aways between the taunts, the threats, the suggestions of the devil, and the pleadings of her dead mother's spirit. Here, indeed, as it is played, is the life breath of tense drama.

Throughout the play a woman who seemingly now is near death, lies evidently has been long sick and under a pale, but nevertheless bright light in a wheel chair. You are right, this sight does not enhance the enjoyment of the evening.

Fritz Lieber plays the green-spotlighted stranger as you would expect Lieber to play the role—admirably. Frances McGrath is adequately satisfying as the tempted wife. Gail Kane is a stunning picture as the girl who went wrong. Thais Lawton and Norval Keedwell deserve mention for their authoritative renditions of important roles.

WEST POINT SCHOOL IN OPERETTA "THE CHINA SHOP"

Miss Doris Nichols of Lincoln, recently scored a marked success in West Point, where she is instructor in music in the city schools, when she produced the operetta "The China Shop."

There were one hundred and three persons in the cast and the place of each was filled in a satisfactory manner. The stage was made to look like an Oriental corner and the tea room at the side added to the appearance and created action. All the musical numbers were beautiful. The two leading parts were taken by Miss Adeline Oelschlaegger and Paul Ellerman, supported by John Tharp, Fred Wendorf, Donald Krause, Chester Johnson, Romig Krause, Ethel Beckenhauer, Betty Wells, Irene Heitzman and Edith Ellerman, besides a large chorus. All wore Chinese costumes.

Lively vaudeville numbers were given between the acts. Accompanists were Miss Nichols and Mae Radler on the piano; Miss Bost on the violin assisted by the orchestra.

CIVICS DEPARTMENT MEETS FOR LUNCHEON.

The civics department of the Lincoln Woman's club met at the agricultural college cafeteria Monday noon for luncheon, after which the social meeting was held on the campus. This was the last meeting of the year, and of the two-year administration of the retiring leader, Mrs E. F. Bell, who is planning to go to California this month to make her home.

GIVES ADDRESS ON HOME RECREATION.

The home Economics department of the Lincoln Woman's club held the last meeting of the year at Faculty Hall Thursday afternoon. As Mrs. C. E. Burton's two-year administration as leader of the department closed she was presented with a large and beautiful bouquet of roses, carnations, and other flowers and ferns.

Mrs. Hazel Snell Putney gave a very interesting talk on "Recreation in the Home," pointing out that if "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," it also has a bad effect on his sister, wife and mother. "The very nature of man's work takes him into outside associations which are restful and recreational, while woman's duties keep her in the same surroundings and associations day after day, thereby becoming irksome. Hence every woman must absolutely arrange for herself some daily recreational period if she would keep good health," she said.

The department voted fifty dollars of funds on hands to the Woman's club building fund.

A. A. U. W. ENTERTAINS SENIOR COLLEGE GIRLS.

The American association of University Women entertained at its annual reception for university senior girls Saturday afternoon, at the home of the Misses Mariel, Frances, and Ellen Gere, 2811 South Twenty-fourth street. The hostesses, assisted by Miss Stella B. Kirker, Mrs. W. E. Hardy, Mrs. H. B. Alexander, Miss Amanda Heppner, Mrs. J. S. Hyatt, and the president of the association, Mrs. Maurice Deutsch, received the guests.

A program arranged by Miss Alice Howell and Miss Marjorie Barstow was presented. "The Exchange," a short play directed by Miss Howell, was given by Fern Hubbard, Sutton Morris, Kenneth Anderson, Foster Matchett, and Ross Cecil. The play depicted the experiences of a group of persons who find certain human ills unendurable and agree to exchange. At the end they find they prefer their own.

An Hawaiian duet by Doris and Eloise Andrews and "By Low Dolly" by Beatrice Andrews were the two dances arranged by Miss Barstow.

Mrs. E. L. Hinman explained to the university guests the work of the association, its educational program, and its scholarship funds.

Jonquils were the decorations in the living room and also formed the centerpiece in the dining room. Tea was served after the program.

Woman's Clubs Announcements

Nebraska Genealogical Society.

The Nebraska Genealogical society will meet for luncheon at noon, Friday at the chamber of commerce. The program will begin at 1:30 and will include the following topics: "Vital Statistics," Miss Mae Hyland; "Genealogical Items of Personal Interest," Mrs. Samuel Avery, Mrs. Charles Fordyce, Mrs W. B. Price and Mrs Kidder. Round table discussion of the value, the needs and the future of the society.

BUSINESS WOMEN'S LEAGUE

Members and guests of the Business Woman's League will meet at the club rooms next Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock. Cars will be provided to take them to Chicken Little Inn on East O street where a chicken pie dinner will be served. Miss Hamm and Mrs Corby will report the Grand Island convention.

Miss Elsie Allen of the W. H. England Insurance company is a recent member of the league.

Members are asked to keep in mind the fact that at the first meeting in May the annual election will be held.

Hostesses at the rooms for the week will be: Wednesday, Mrs. Pearson; Friday, Miss Gast; Saturday, Miss Sadie Howell

Camp Fire Notes

The Guardians' association held one of the best meetings of the year Tuesday, when they met at the Clinton community center with Mrs. Allen Harrison as hostess. Convention reports were given by Mrs. Faye Beltzer, Bee Jackson, Louise Van Sickle, Mrs. Fred Putney, Ruth Osborne, Mrs. Grace Young. Mrs. Beltzer's report was especially clever, being all worked out in pantomine. The following officers for the coming year were nominated and will be voted on at the May meeting: president, Mrs. Paul Royal; vice-president, Mrs. G. O. Smith; secretary, Mrs L. E. Evans; recording secretary, Elizabeth Jones; treasurer, Louise Van Sickle; chairman of camp committee, Mrs. Fred Putney; chairman of program committee, Mrs. Faye Beltzer, chairman of membership committee, Mrs. Grace Young; chairman of organization committee, Flossie Yeck; pineapple ice and wafers were served by Mrs. Harrison's camp girls at the close of the program. Mrs. Harrison told about the organization of the community center and showed the guardians through the building.

The camp chorus met Wednesday at the First Baptist hurch. Honors were awarded to Bennie Donato, Sarah Jane Johnson, Thelma Geiger, Virginia Larson. The time was spent in practice for the two events at which the chorus is to sing, the Kiwanis club luncheon May 2 and the university guardians' training ourse on May 5.

One hundred and fifteen girls have already registered for Camp Kiwanis and all of the periods are getting filled. Girls who wish their choice of cabins are urged to register as soon as possible. The special offer of half price for presidents closes May 10.

The Presidents' club is planning a hike for the April meeting, to take place Saturday, April 26. The girls are to meet in front of the city hall at 2p m. They will work on camp craft honors and learn about outdoor cooking.

The Blue Bird rally at the McKinley auditorium Saturday afternoon April 19 was interesting. Some of the stunts presented were: "Boogaman" by Grace Elizabeth Evans' group, "Sunshine Warblers," by Miss Jennie Morgan's group, "Blue Birds Around the Year," by Betty Sain group, "Working Together" by Aleen Neeley's group, and a play by Gladys Sides' group.

The girls of Martowka camp with their guardian, Mrs. Paul Royal, went on an overnight hike to Branson's cabin April 9. They took an early morning bird hike the next morning.

Eluta camp hiked to a grove south of Normal Saturday, April 19. The committee consisting of Frances Turpin, Barbara Hall, Elizabeth Gayle, Mary Letitia Pollard, with assistant Guardian Helene Clement went to the grove early in the afternoon and prepared the supper so that when the other girls arrived about 4:30 the meal was ready. The girls are working for their firemakers' rank.

Y.W.C.A. Notes

A new swimming term starts Friday, completing the work in this department. The term will consist of six weeks and will be open only to those who have had some lessons.

Mrs. Cora Warner left Thursday for Washington, enroute to New York to attend the national Young Women's Christian association convention to be held April 30 to May 6 in New York City. The other delegates who will attend are Minnie Cramer, Mrs. W. W. Whitfield, Mrs. B. F. Williams, and Mrs. Frederik Eiche. The official hostesses for the convention are the board members of the New York association. A social program of entertainment and diversion has been arranged for the three thousand delegates. The opening event is to be a reception held at the Metropolitan museum. During the convention innumerable special tours will be scheduled.

Mrs. Frederic M. Paist of Philadelphia is to preside at the convention. Mrs. Paist is the first national president to serve two terms, and her experience and popularity particularly fit her to lead the meetings. Dr. Richard Roberts of Montreal will open each session, giving a series of talks. Throughout the convention opportunities will be afforded for group discussions and presentations of matters concerning different phases of association activities.

Mrs. H. W. Caldwell gave an illustrated lecture on Holy week in Rome at the meeting of the federation last Thursday evening.

Miss Minnie Cramer, who is the delegate from the Lincoln Federation, to the biennial convention of the Y. W. C. A. in New York City, will leave April 26.

The G F. C. club visited the Burlington shops at Havelock last Thursday afternoon.

Chris. Weber gave the second lecture on applied psychology at the G. F. C. club last Friday evening.

Girls' Reserve Corner

The 1923-24 cabinet of Student club entertained at a supper in honor of the newly elected cabinet of the club on last Tueday evening at the home of Gertrude Brownell. A two course supper was served by the hostesses. A short business meeting followed the social hour.

The installation of officers and committee chairman of Student club will take place Tuesday afternoon, April 22 at 3:30 o'clock. The ceremony will be held at he Y. W. C. A. Ruth Clendenin and Julia Rider are in charge of the ceremony. Lucile Wright will play. Every Student club member is urged to come and friend or mothers who are interested are invited. An informal social hour will follow the installation.

The Girl Reserves of Teachers' college high school have sent out invitations for their mother and daughter party which is to be held Wednesday afternoon, April 23 from 3.30 to 5:30. This is to be held in the club room at the Y. W. C. A. Every girl is asked to bring her mother or some friend. An interesting program is being arranged.

The Freshman club officers met Friday afternoon in Miss Bonnell's room to make plan for the club meeting which is to be held Friday, April 25.

The Jane Adams triangle of Whittier school held a short business meeting Thursday afternoon and then hiked out to the woods to cook their suppers. On the hike the girls studied and identified the birds they saw. Their adviser, Miss Lila Wyman, went with them.

The Joan of Arc triangle of Whittier school hiked out to Antelope park Thursday after their club meeting. The girls roasted weiners and marshmallows and scrambled eggs over their camp fire. After supper the time was spent playing games. Their adviser, Miss Grace Stuff was in charge of the hike.

The Alice Freeman Palmer triangle of Twenty-sixth and O street school will meet Monday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A. The candle ceremony for new members will be held in the Bible study room.

Hayward Girl Reserve held an interesting meeting Wednesday afternoon at the school. After spending part of the hour earning honors the girls worked out some Chinese riddles. The girls went to the gymnasium for games. The meeting was closed by the girls taking part in the friendship circle.

HASTINGS COLLEGE NOTES

Butler Isaman, '26, was elected editor of the 1925 Bronco, Hastings college annual, by the members of the present sophomore class, who will publish the book next year. Mr. Isaman is a graduate of the Hastings high school and has been connected with the year books there as well as with the Broncos since he registered in Hastings. Eugene Perry was elected business manager.

The glee club closed its 1924 tour with the big home concert on Tuesday night of the past week. The tour this year probably was the most successful of any in the history of the school, both from the standpoint of interest and financial success. The club produced the comic opera, "The Fire Princess," in fifteen western Nebraska and Colorado cities and returned to Hastings to produce it in the new municipal auditorium to an audience of 1,500 people. The company of forty-two people carried its own complete scenic settings painted especially for the production as well as elaborate costumes. During the tour it traveled in its own private car. Hayes M. Fuhr, director of the club on its fifteenth annual tour, deserves a very great deal of credit for the success of the performances.

Mrs. A. C. Boyce, missionary on furlough from Persia, was the speaker in chapel Wednesday. Mrs Boyce spoke on the work which is being done in her field and also the needs of Persia.

A great deal of interest is being manifest in the coming session of the Hastings college summer school which will be held from June 3 to August 2. The summer school of the college has grown in size and quality every year since its inception over ten years ago, and present indications are that this year's session will be both larger and better than any previous term.

The committee in charge of the May fete will be chosen and announced during the next few days Extensive plans are being made to make this spring event one of the outstanding features of the year.

The sophomores won the annual inter-class track meet by a safe majority on Wednesday and Thursday of the past week. Bobert Stephens, sophomore, was high point man.

The college choir of the Presbyterian church of Hastings will give the entire service today.

Peru Normal

Jessie Connell, formerly of Central City, now on the faculty of the commercial department of Idaho Polytechnical Institute, Pocatello, Idaho, will receive her degree at Peru this spring.

Waldo O. Willhoft, Nebraska City, was elected to manage the 1925 Peruvian. Carl Cunningham, Pawnee City; Gordon Peterson, Valley; Kenneth Gaines, Blair; and Roy Chamberlain, Brownville were nominated for the position of editor-in-chief.

Among the recent elections are Myrl Emrick of Fairbury and Dorothy Made of Nebraska City, at Syracuse; Dorwin Carter of Hebron and Opal Jackson of Rulo at Crafton. Millard Bell of Beatrice, at Bradshaw; J. E. Clark of Swanton at Waco; R. L. Klaurens of Nehawka at Firth; Arthur Majors of Endicott at Endicott; Glenn Frary of Auburn at Sutton; and Forrest Bell of Beatrice, at DeWitt.

Dean W. N. Delzell has been visiting schools in Iowa the past week.

The girls' glee club under the direction of Esther E. Blankenship gave their annual concert at the new auditorium, Friday evening. It was well attended.

Editor Zenas Teich '26, Benedict, reports that the last copy for the 1924 Peruvian has been sent to the printer. The work of the art editor, Paul Reeves of Burwell has been completed for some time.

The dramatic club played three plays in the Little Theatre this week. The plays were "The Dear Departed," "The Rising Moon" and "The Flight of the Herons."

E. K. Frye '13, formerly of Panama, has just been re-elected in the department of education of Bradley Polytechnic Institute, Peoria, Illinois. Mr. Frye has his A. B from Nebraska and his A. M. from Chicago.

Screen Siftings

Camped on Desert—First National built a camp on a windswept Texas desert along rough army lines—tents exclusively—and ten stars camped there two months, exploding the theory that all actors are pikers. Among them were Bessie Love, Hobart Bosworth, Charles Sellon and Roy Stewart.

A Nice Team—Marshall Neilan and Blanche Sweet teamed so well in "Tess of the D'Ubervilles" that Miss Sweet has been engaged to play with him in another Goldwyn picture, the story for which is now being selected.

Another Great Lover—Critics are seeing in Neil Hamilton, handsome, stalwart youth who plays the lead in Griffith's "America," a newer and greater Valentino—a great "lover" of the screen. Hamilton studied theology four years before breaking into the movies by the "extra" route. David Wark Griffith who "made" Barthelmess, the Gish Sisters, Mae Marsh and others predicts a great future for him.

Use Wood-Burners—The Southern Pacific railroad has furnished Thomas H. Ince with several old-fashioned wood-burning locomotives to give atmosphere to the settings of the spectacular picture, "The Last Frontier," from Courtney Ryley Cooper's latest novel. Ince mobilized 10,000 bison on the Wainwright preserve in western Canada for the stampede scene climaxing the story.

Ray Closes Studio—Charles Ray has closed his own studio and gone back to work under the Ince banner where he started his meteoric career eleven years ago. He was "discovered" by Ince while working as an "extra."

Some Screen Statistics—Robert Edeson, screen player of note, is a statistics hound on matters cinematical. He figures $500,000,000 is paid annually by fans to see pictures, on the production of which has been expended $200,000. The United States has 15,000 theatres with a combined seating capacity of 7,605,000. The average weekly attendance is 50,000. California produces eighty-four per cent of the world's pictures.

Coogan and Company—Jackie Coogan and company has been to San Francisco to shoot the opening and closing scenes of his next picture, "Little Robinson Crusoe," following the completion of "A Boy of Flanders" just released.

RUTH BRYAN OWEN WROTE MOVIE PLOT?

Broadways Rumors Daughter Of Commoner Author of Screen Play.

Gotham Scribes Maintain She Plays Leading Role in Cinema Play.

BY BRETT PAGE.

NEW YORK, April 19.—The approach of the National democratic convention to New York is even now being sensed on Broadway. This lends added interest to the report that Ruth Bryan Owen—none other than daughter of William Jennings Bryan—wrote the scenario, rehearsed the players, designed the sets and directed the production while playing the leading role—under the name of Nancy Call Bryan—of a motion picture soon to burst forth on Broadway.

Mrs. Fiske Returns.

Mrs. Fiske is back on Broadway. And name, if you can another woman on this continent—save those few whose husbands were presidents—that is instantly recognized when you say: "Mrs. Soandso."

After a successful season at the theatre in "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary," and a brief road tour, Mrs. Fiske has come back to Broadway—to the Henry Miller Theatre, to be exact—in a three-act comedy called "Helena's Boys." Dramatized from a story by Mary Brecht Pulver by Ida Lubienski Ehrlich, stated by Harrison Grey Fiske and sponsored by Charles I. Wagner, "Helena's Boys" proved one of the most thoroughly amusing plays we have had the good fortune to witness in many months.

The plot is simple. Helena's love for her husband, now mercifully dead, was extinguished long before he passed away. He put out the fires of affection by drowning them in drink. But Helena loves her boys, who are young yet are away from home.

One is a budding poet who left the home town for New York to reap international fame. The other is at school, but as the action unfolds, comes home because he arose in meeting and shouted "Bunk!" when an old gentleman declared that the boys who won the World War were "knights in shining armor fighting for an imperishable ideal."

Love and Fear.

Helena not only loves her boys—she fears them. She fears them because they think she is old and yet she is desperately in love with a gentleman of her own age who lives nearby. They plan to marry, but fear to disclose the fact to the lads. But when the boys come home and bring with them an engaging young radical who spouts all over the house his views about "the sacredness of self-expression no matter what stands in the way," Helena takes the sermon to heart.

In a not very new theatrical way, by a trick that seems centuries old, Helena turns the boys from captious critics of her marriage plans into ardent advocates. They even beg the middle-aged lover—despite the fact that he isn't an advanced thinker, only a successful manufacturer of umbrellas and raincoats—to do them the honor of marrying Mother!

From the entrance of the boys and their radical spokesman, the battle is on between the old generation and the new. Here are not merely differing individuals, but opposing centuries joined in combat. Many of the laughs—truly side-holding guffaws that resounded on every hand the night we viewed the play—loudly proclaimed that some in the audience were thinking not only of what was passing on the state, but of what had passed or is even now passing in their own experience.

Real Comedy Twin.

The first act of "Helena's Boys" is one of the best comedy first acts we ever seen. Acts two and three are not so golden, but obviously it is impossible for a perfect first act to be topped by succeeding acts. Still, the other acts—even to the last minutes before the final curtain falls—are thoroughly enjoyable. They are good examples of the theatrical truism that old situations, even ancient devices, may be made scintillatingly new by the way they are clothed with new ideas and the manner in which they are set forth and played.

Mrs. Fiske is without a peer in the particular realm of comedy she has made distinctively her own. She is altogether admirable as Helena-the-heart-hungered. Gay Pendleton and Reggie Sheffield as her boys, Ralph Shirley as the victor-radical, William Courtleigh as Helena's husband-to-be, Irene Purcell and Blaine Temple, who play neighor-girls and supply the honey-suckle-and-moonlight love themes that almost become discords because of "the new youth"—and indeed, all the players are finely cast and lend that semblance of reality without which the stage is but a parade of puppets. The people bodied forth by these plays are alive.

"Helena's Boys" is a delight, particularly to those who see something beside perfectly clear thinking in some of the ideas proclaimed by the exponents of "new youth."

Bolton, Wodehouse and Kern.

In this moment I feel like the toastmaster who arises as the waiters are about to vanish with the remnants of the feast, and says: "We have with us tonight three gentlemen who in other years used to give us all great joy, but who wandered apart—who separated, each to try his work alone or with other partners—but who, having seen the error of their ways have joined hands again in brotherly love. Let me introduce those who really need no introduction, the musical comedy firm of Bolton, Wodehouse and Kern, reunited!"

The cheers having subsided, we may whisper to each other that Guy Bolton, P. G. Wodehouse and Jerome Kern did each very well for himself with other collaborators, but that perhaps none alone or with his best other helpers could have turned out so thoroughly enjoyable, so delectable an offering as "Sitting Pretty" which Comstock and Gest have brought to the Fulton theatre.

With Queenie Smith—perhaps the best of our soubrette dancers—in the role of semi-star, "Sitting Pretty" is amusing, is quite esoterically written, is replete with tinkling tunes which you will soon hear on the phonograph or over the radio, is well-danced, is well-acted and is most fashionably dressed and staged in the best of taste. Yes, "Sitting Pretty" is rather an aristocratic affair, though by no means—perish the thought!—highbrow.

Now "Sitting Pretty" possesses the sort of book it is impossible to detail without seeming perfectly flat. Take my word for it, the plot may not be astoundingly new, but it is astonishingly amusing. The same highly appreciative things may be said to the lyrics. And the lilting quality of Mern's melodies will be clear to your ear perhaps long before you see the show itself.

Beauty, Wit and Youth.

But we must not forget that there are others beside Queenie Smith in this admirable show. For instance, there are Gertrude Bryan and Frank McIntyre, and there are something like twenty-four others who crowd the Fulton theatre stage with beauty and wit and youth, and who all together contrive to add to "Sitting Pretty" that crown of consumate art that we call charm.

None of our friends during intermission in the lobby captiously remarked that he wished "those guys wouldn't rob the joke grave, but pay more attention to th ecradle." He repeated two that we had just heard and at which the audience had laughed heartily. He declared one had been said first by George Ade in World's Fair days, the other vowed is equally old. The audience laughed at them. Here they are for your judgment:

"Poverty is the banana peel upon the threshold of romance!"

The other:

"Deafness is an affliction, but whiskers are a man's own fault!"

Did I hear you laugh?

"Two Strangers From Nowhere."

At the Punch and Judy theatre we have "Two Strangers From Nowhere," a new play written by Fritz Leiber to star himself. Unlike "Helena's Boys," the Lieber play does not decrescendo from the first act. Equally unlike many another recent play, the Lieber offering withholds its greatest punch for the final ten minutes of the last act. We feel like leading three cheers for that.

We regret, indeed, that we cannot stand up and ask for cheers for the entire play. Behold a drama in which a wife who drudges for her scientist husband—he is seeking the cure for a dread disease—longs for fine clothes and the experiences she dreams are happiness, and suddenly prays for deliverance from poverty. Instantly, a green spotlight illumines a personage everyone instantly recognizes as the devil.

Tons of Sermons.

From this instant there are sermons—tons of 'em it sometimes seemed—that swing the gamut. I almost wrote the gabble, of near-philosophy. A true note now and then rings forth with the welcome clearness of a tingling bell.

In the final scene the tempted young wife sways between the taunts, the threats, the suggestions of the devil, and the pleadings of her dead mother's spirit. Here, indeed, as it is played, is the life breath of tense drama.

Throughout the play a woman who seemingly now is near death, lies evidently has been long sick and under a pale, but nevertheless bright light in a wheel chair. You are right, this sight does not enhance the enjoyment of the evening.

Fritz Lieber plays the green-spotlighted stranger as you would expect Lieber to play the role—admirably. Frances McGrath is adequately satisfying as the tempted wife. Gail Kane is a stunning picture as the girl who went wrong. Thais Lawton and Norval Keedwell deserve mention for their authoritative renditions of important roles.

Screen Siftings

Camped on Desert—First National built a camp on a windswept Texas desert along rough army lines—tents exclusively—and ten stars camped there two months, exploding the theory that all actors are pikers. Among them were Bessie Love, Hobart Bosworth, Charles Sellon and Roy Stewart.

A Nice Team—Marshall Neilan and Blanche Sweet teamed so well in "Tess of the D'Ubervilles" that Miss Sweet has been engaged to play with him in another Goldwyn picture, the story for which is now being selected.

Another Great Lover—Critics are seeing in Neil Hamilton, handsome, stalwart youth who plays the lead in Griffith's "America," a newer and greater Valentino—a great "lover" of the screen. Hamilton studied theology four years before breaking into the movies by the "extra" route. David Wark Griffith who "made" Barthelmess, the Gish Sisters, Mae Marsh and others predicts a great future for him.

Use Wood-Burners—The Southern Pacific railroad has furnished Thomas H. Ince with several old-fashioned wood-burning locomotives to give atmosphere to the settings of the spectaclar picture, "The Last Frontier," from Courtney Ryley Cooper's latest novel. Ince mobilized 10,000 bison on the Wainwright preserve in western Canada for the stampede scene climaxing the story.

Ray Closes Studio—Charles Ray has closed his own studio and gone back to work under the Ince banner where he started his meteoric career eleven years ago. He was "discovered" by Ince while working as an "extra."

Some Screen Statistics—Robert Edeson, screen player of note, is a statistics hound on matters cinematical. He figures $500,000,000 is paid annually by fans to see pictures, on the production of which has been expended $200,000. The United States has 15,000 theatres with a combined seating capacity of 7,605,000. The average weekly attendance is 50,000. California produces eighty-four per cent of the world's pictures.

Coogan and Company—Jackie Coogan and company has been to San Francisco to shoot the opening and closing scenes of his next picture, "Little Robinson Crusoe," following the completion of "A Boy of Flanders" just released.

will furnish music throughout the afternoon.

WEST POINT SCHOOL IN OPERETTA "THE CHINA SHOP"

Miss Doris Nichols of Lincoln, recently scored a marked success in West Point, where she is instructor in music in the city schools, when she produced the operetta "The China Shop."

There were one hundred and three persons in the cast and the place of each was filled in a satisfactory manner. The stage was made to look like an Oriental corner and the tea room at the side added to the appearance and created action. All the musical numbers were beautiful. The two leading parts were taken by Miss Adeline Oelschlaegger and Paul Ellerman, supported by John Tharp, Fred Wendorf, Donald Krause, Chester Johnson, Romig Krause, Ethel Beckenhauer, Betty Wells, Irene Heitzman and Edith Ellerman, besides a large chorus. All wore Chinese costumes.

Lively vaudeville numbers were given between the acts. Accompanists were Miss Nichols and Mae Radler on the piano; Miss Bost on the violin assisted by the orchestra.

CIVICS DEPARTMENT MEETS FOR LUNCHEON.

The civics department of the Lincoln Woman's club met at the agricultural college cafeteria Monday noon for luncheon, after which the social meeting was held on the campus. This was the last meeting of the year, and of the two-year administration of the retiring leader, Mrs. E. F. Bell, who is planning to go to California this month to make her home.

GIVES ADDRESS ON HOME RECREATION.

The home Economics department of the Lincoln Woman's club held the last meeting of the year at Faculty Hall Thursday afternoon. As Mrs. C. E. Burton's two-year administration as leader of the department closed she was presented with a large and beautiful bouquet of roses, carnations, and other flowers and ferns.

Mrs. Hazel Snell Putney gave a very interesting talk on "Recreation in the Home," pointing out that if "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," it also has a bad effect on his sister, wife and mother. "The very nature of man's work takes him into outside associations which are restful and recreational, while woman's duties keep her in the same surroundings and associations day after day, thereby becoming irksome. Hence every woman must absolutely arrange for herself some daily recreational period if she would keep good health," she said.

The department voted fifty dollars of funds on hands to the Woman's club building fund.

The American association of University Women entertained at its annual reception for university senior girls Saturday afternoon at the home of the Misses Mariel, Frances, and Ellen Gere, 2811 South Twenty-fourth street. The hostesses, assisted by Miss Stella B. Kirker, Mrs. W. E. Hardy, Mrs. H. B. Alexander, Miss Amanda Heppner, Mrs. J. S. Hyatt, and the president of the association, Mrs. Maurice Deutsch, received the guests.

A program arranged by Miss Alice Howell and Miss Marjorie Barstow was presented. "The Exchange," a short play directed by Miss Howell, was given by Fern Hubbard, Sutton Morris, Kenneth Anderson, Foster Matchett, and Ross Cecil. The play depicted the experiences of a group of persons who find certain human ills unendurable and agree to exchange. At the end they find they prefer their own.

An Hawaiian duet by Doris and Eloise Andrews and "By Low Dolly" by Beatrice Andrews were the two dances arranged by Miss Barstow.

Mrs. E. L. Hinman explained to the university guests the work of the association, its educational program, and its scholarship funds.

Jonquils were the decorations in the living room and also formed the centerpiece in the dining room. Tea was served after the program.

Woman's Clubs Announcements

Nebraska Genealogical Society.

The Nebraska Genealogical society will meet for luncheon at noon, Friday at the chamber of commerce. The program will begin at 1:30 and will include the following topics: "Vital Statistics," Miss Mae Hyland; "Genealogical Items of Personal Interest," Mrs. Samuel Avery, Mrs. Charles Fordyce, Mrs. W. B. Price and Mrs. Kidder. Round table discussion of the value, the needs and the future of the society.

BUSINESS WOMEN'S LEAGUE

Members and guests of the Business Woman's League will meet at the club rooms next Thursday evening at 6 o'clock. Cars will be provided to take them to Chicken Little Inn on East O street where a chicken pie dinner will be served. Miss Hamm and Mrs. Corby will report the Grand Island convention.

Miss Elsie Allen of the W. H. England Insurance company is a recent member of the league.

Members are asked to keep in mind the fact that at the first meeting in May the annual election will be held.

Hostesses at the rooms for the week will be: Wednesday, Mrs. Pearson; Friday, Miss Gast; Saturday, Miss Sadie Howell.

Camp Fire Notes

The Guardians' association held one of the best meetings of the year Tuesday, when they met at the Clinton community center with Mrs. Allen Harrison as hostess. Convention reports were given by Mrs. Faye Beltzer, Bee Jackson, Louise Van Sickle, Mrs. Fred Putney, Ruth Osborne, Mrs. Grace Young. Mrs. Beltzer's report was especially clever, being all worked out in pantomine. The following officers for the coming year were nominated and will be voted on at the May meeting: president, Mrs. Paul Royal; vice-president, Mrs. G. O. Smith; secretary, Mrs. L. E. Evans; recording secretary, Elizabeth Jones; treasurer, Louise Van Sickle; chairman of camp committee, Mrs. Fred Putney; chairman of program committee, Mrs. Faye Beltzer, chairman of membership committee, Mrs. Grace Young; chairman of organization committee, Flossie Yeck; pineapple ice and wafers were served by Mrs. Harrison's camp girls at the close of the program. Mrs. Harrison told about the organization of the community center and showed the guardians through the building.

The camp chorus met Wednesday at the First Baptist hurch. Honors were awarded to Bennie Donato, Sarah Jane Johnson, Thelma Geiger, Virginia Larson. The time was spent in practice for the two events at which the chorus is to sing, the Kiwanis club luncheon May 2 and the university guardians' training ourse on May 5.

One hundred and fifteen girls have already registered for Camp Kiwanis and all of the periods are getting filled. Girls who wish their choice of cabins are urged to register as soon as possible. The special offer of half price for presidents closes May 10.

The Presidents' club is planning a hike for the April meeting, to take place Saturday, April 26. The girls are to meet in front of the city hall at 2p. m. They will work on camp craft honors and learn about outdoor cooking.

The Blue Bird rally at the McKinley auditorium Saturday afternoon April 19 was interesting. Some of the stunts presented were: "Boogaman" by Grace Elizabeth Evans' group, "Sunshine Warbiers," by Miss Jennie Morgan's group, "Blue Birds Around the Year," by Betty Sain group, "Working Together" by Aleen Neeley's group, and a play by Gladys Sidles' group.

The girls of Martowke camp with their guardian, Mrs. Paul Royal, went on an overnight hike to Branson's cabin April 9. They took an early morning bird hike the next morning.

Eluta camp hiked to a grove south of Normal Saturday, April 19. The committee consisting of Frances Turpin, Barbara Hall, Elizabeth Gayle, Mary Letitia Pollard, with assistant Guardian Helene Clement went to the grove early in the afternoon and prepared the supper so that when the other girls arrived about 4:30 the meal was ready. The girls are working for their firemakers' rank.

Y.W.C.A. Notes

A new swimming term starts Friday, completing the work in this department. The term will consist of six weeks and will be open only to those who have had some lessons.

Mrs. Cora Warner left Thursday for Washington, enroute to New York to attend the national Young Women's Christian association convention to be held April 30 to May 6 in New York City. The other delegates who will attend are Minnie Cramer, Mrs. W. W. Whitfield, Mrs. B. F. Williams, and Mrs. Frederik Eiche. The official hostesses for the convention are the board members of the New York association. A social program of entertainment and diversion has been arranged for the three thousand delegates. The opening event is to be a reception held at the Metropolitan museum. During the convention innumerable special tours will be scheduled.

Mrs. Frederic M. Paist of Philadelphia is to preside at the convention. Mrs. Paist is the first national president to serve two terms, and her experience and popularity particularly fit her to lead the meetings. Dr. Richard Roberts of Montreal will open each session, giving a series of talks. Throughout the convention opportunities will be afforded for group discussions and presentations of matters concerning different phases of association activities.

Mrs. H. W. Caldwell gave an illustrated lecture on Holy week in Rome at the meeting of the federation last Thursday evening.

Miss Minnie Cramer, who is the delegate from the Lincoln Federation, to the biennial convention of the Y. W. C. A. in New York City, will leave April 26.

The G F. C. club visited the Burlington shops at Havelock last Thursday afternoon.

Chris. Weber gave the second lecture on applied psychology at the G. F. C. club last Friday evening.

Girls' Reserve Corner

The 1923-24 cabinet of Student club entertained at a supper in honor of the newly elected cabinet of the club on last Tueday evening at the home of Gertrude Brownell. A two course supper was served by the hostesses. A short business meeting followed the social hour.

The installation of officers and committee chairman of Student club will take place Tuesday afternoon, April 22 at 3:30 o'clock. The ceremony will be held at he Y. W. C. A. Ruth Clendenin and Julia Rider are in charge of the ceremony. Lucile Wright will play. Every Student club member is urged to come and friend or mothers who are interested are invited. An informal social hour will follow the installation.

The Girl Reserves of Teachers' college high school have sent out invitations for their mother and daughter party which is to be held Wednesday afternoon, April 23 from 3.30 to 5:30. This is to be held in the club room at the Y. W. C. A. Every girl is asked to bring her mother or some friend. An interesting program is being arranged.

The Freshman club officers met Friday afternoon in Miss Bonnell's room to make plan for the club meeting which is to be held Friday, April 25.

The Jane Adams triangle of Whittier school held a short business meeting Thursday afternoon and then hiked out to the woods to cook their suppers. On the hike the girls studied and identified the birds they saw. Their adviser, Miss Lila Wyman, went with them.

The Joan of Arc triangle of Whittier school hiked out to Antelope park Thursday after their club meeting. The girls roasted weiners and marshmallows and scrambled eggs over their camp fire. After supper the time was spent playing games. Their adviser, Miss Grace Stuff was in charge of the hike.

The Alice Freeman Palmer triangle of Twenty-sixth and O street school will meet Monday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A. The candle ceremony for new members will be held in the Bible study room.

Hayward Girl Reserve held an interesting meeting Wednesday afternoon at the school. After spending part of the hour earning honors the girls worked out some Chinese riddles. The girls went to the gymnasium for games. The meeting was closed by the girls taking part in the friendship circle.

HASTINGS COLLEGE NOTES

Butler Isaman, '26, was elected editor of the 1925 Bronco, Hastings college annual, by the members of the present sophomore class, who will publish the book next year. Mr. Isaman is a graduate of the Hastings high school and has been connected with the year books there as well as with the Broncos since he registered in Hastings. Eugene Perry was elected business manager.

The glee club closed its 1924 tour with the big home concert on Tuesday night of the past week. The tour this year probably was the most successful of any in the history of the school, both from the standpoint of interest and financial success. The club produced the comic opera, "The Fire Princess," in fifteen western Nebraska and Colorado cities and returned to Hastings to produce it in the new municipal auditorium to an audience of 1,500 people. The company of forty-two people carried its own complete scenic settings painted especially for the production as well as elaborate costumes. During the tour it traveled in its own private car. Hayes M. Fuhr, director of the club on its fifteenth annual tour, deserves a very great deal of credit for the success of the performances.

Mrs. A. C. Boyce, missionary on furlough from Persia, was the speaker in chapel Wednesday. Mrs. Boyce spoke on the work which is being done in her field and also the needs of Persia.

A great deal of interest is being manifest in the coming session of the Hastings college summer school which will be held from June 3 to August 2. The summer school of the college has grown in size and quality every year since its inception over ten years ago, and present indications are that this year's session will be both larger and better than any previous term.

The committee in charge of the May fete will be chosen and announced during the next few days. Extensive plans are being made to make this spring event one of the outstanding features of the year.

The sophomores won the annual inter-class track meet by a safe majority on Wednesday and Thursday of the past week. Bobert Stephens, sophomore, was high point man.

The college choir of the Presbyterian church of Hastings will give the entire service today.

Peru Normal

Jessie Connell, formerly of Central City, now on the faculty of the commercial department of Idaho Polytechnical Institute, 'Pocatello, Idaho, will receive her degree at Peru this spring.

Waldo O. Willhoft, Nebraska City, was elected to manage the 1925 Peruvian. Carl Cunningham, Pawnee City; Gordon Peterson, Valley; Kenneth Gaines, Blair; and Roy Chamberlain, Brownville were nominated for the position of editor-in-chief.

Among the recent elections are Myrl Emrick of Fairbury and Dorothy Made of Nebraska City, at Syracuse; Dorwin Carter of Hebron and Opal Jackson of Rulo at Orafino; Millard Bell of Beatrice, at Bradshaw; J. E. Clark of Swanton at Waco; R. L. Klaurens of Nehawka at Firth; Arthur Majors of Endicott at Endicott; Glenn Frary of Auburn at Sutton; and Forrest Bell of Beatrice, at DeWitt.

Dean W. N. Delzell has been visiting schools in Iowa the past week.

Editor Zenas Teich '26, Benedict, reports that the last copy for the 1924 Peruvian has been sent to the printer. The work of the art editor, Paul Reeves of Burwell has been completed for some time.

The dramatic club played three plays in the Little Theatre this week. The plays were "The Dear Departed," "The Rising Moon," and "The Flight of the Herons."

E. K. Frye '13, formerly of Panama, has just been re-elected in the department of education of Bradley Polytechnic Institute, Peoria, Illinois. Mr. Frye has his A. B. from Nebraska and his A. M. from Chicago.

ANSWERS TO Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I thought I could get along without bothering you, but it just seems like I always come back. I heard a funny story the other day, so I am coming to you as usual. A friend of mine told me that there was a rumor going the rounds that Gloria Swanson was dead, but they were keeping it from the public until all her pictures were released. Now it struck me kind of funny because I knew if anything like that ever happened that they couldn't keep it a secret very long and what would be their idea anyway. She didn't like it very well because I told her I didn't believe her. She said she got the story from some one who had just come back from California, and it was the truth. Now if it was such a secret that they were keeping it from the public how on earth does it happen that so many know about it. They tell me that the "Humming Bird" was her latest picture, so she couldn't have had many pictures ahead. Now if you can tell me anything about it, I would be grateful as Gloria is one of my special favorites. I would feel awfully bad if anything like that ever happened to her. I think she did some of the best acting in her career in "The Humming Bird" and I enjoyed it very much. Edward Burns, the leading man, was good also. He gets better in every picture.

Can you tell me when "The Ten Commandments" and "Icebound" will appear in Lincoln and what theatre will they be shown at?

My favorite picture for 1924 so far is "The White Rose." I thought it was wonderful. It was so true to life. Has Ivor Novello ever played in any other pictures besides that one. He certainly was good in that and would like to see him often, but I guess he is like some of the others, he just makes one picture and then disappears. I think Mae Marsh is one of the best actresses on the screen. She is every bit as good as Mary Pickford and a little better in some pictures.—JUSTICE.

You are perfectly right about Gloria Swanson, Justice. She is very much alive, and your friend was misinformed. Anybody returning from California just at present, would have no more authentic information on Gloria than you would have, because she is not in California now, and has not been for several weeks. She is in New York making pictures at the Long Island studio and expects to stay there indefinitely. "The Humming Bird" is her latest release, but it is not her last picture by any means. "Manhandled" will be her next release, and she's working on another picture now. If she were really dead, there would be no more reason for keeping her death a secret than there was for keeping Wallace Reid's or any other stars who have gone, a secret.

I can't tell you just when the pictures will appear in Lincoln. "The Ten Commandments" will no doubt be shown at the Orpheum when it is released for general distribution.

"The White Rose" was Novello's first and last picture to date. He has returned to the speaking stage from whence he was borrowed for the production.

Dear Movie Editor—We have never written to you before, but read your column every Sunday. Please give us the addresses of George O'Hara, Mary Beth Milford, Bessie Love and Evelyn Nelson. Are they married and if so to whom? Please give us the age, color of hair and eyes, height and weight of them. What are their next pictures? Please give us the cast of "Rent Free." Thank you, GRAY EYES and BLUE EYES, Wymore.

I'm glad to have so many beautiful "eyes" present today.

Address Bessie Love in care of Ince studio, Culver City, Cal. All of the others could be reached in care of F. B. O. Hollywood, Cal. They are all single at the present writing. George has started work on his new starring vehicle, as yet untitled. His last was "Listen Lester" for which he was borrowed by Principal Pictures corporation. He is an F. B. O. star. Bessie is working on "Those Who Dance" and she had to bob her hair to play the role in the picture to which she was assigned. The other two have no new pictures announced.

They are such new players that they are a little shy about their description, so you will have to judge from their screen appearance. Mary Beth is seventeen. George was born in 1898 with brown hair and gray eyes. He is five feet ten and weighs 150. Bessie Love is five feet four and weighs 108. She has blond hair and brown eyes, and is in the early twenties.

Dear Movie Editor—Here I am again to bother you with questions for my movie book. How tall, color of hair and eyes, weight and if married are the following: Walter McGrail, Malcolm McGregor, George O'Hara, Ralph Graves, Rod La Rocque, Edward Burns, Barbara La Marr, Nabel Normand, Virginia Valli and Ramon Novarro.

Also, when will the following pictures be in Lincoln: Johnny Walter in "The Dangerous Hour," "Fashionable Fakes" and "The Worm." Norma Talmadge in "Dust of Desire" and "The Song of Love" and Agnes Ayers in "Holliday Love."?

Do you think that "The Marriage Maker" with Agnes Ayres and Jack Holt will come back to the Sun theater? When it was at the Rialto, it was only there the first half of the week and many people I have heard wanted to see it, but had not been prepared to see it as it was changed at the last minute for "Stephen Steps Out."

If you happen to ever have any pictures of any kind of Johnny Walker, Mary Pickford and Antonio Moreno, I would be very glad to have them for my movie book.—ONLY ME.

It just occurred to me that you might like pictures cut from movie magazines for your movie book, since I haven't been getting in many of the other kind. If you should be interested in them, let me know and I will try and find some for you.

Walter is six feet tall and weighs 175. He is married and has black hair and blue eyes.

Mr. Macgregor is also married. He is five feet eleven inches tall, weighs 165 and has brown hair and gray eyes.

George is five ten in height and weighs 150. He was born in 1898 with brown hair and gray eyes.

Ralph Graves has been married but his wife is dead. He is an inch over six feet in height and weighs 170. His eyes are blue and he has brown hair. He is twenty-seven years of age.

Rod La Rocque was born in 1893 with brown hair and eyes. He's a six footer and weighs 175. I've never heard of a wife for him.

There is a Mrs. Burns. Eddie is thirty-two and lacks a half inch of being six feet tall. He weighs 155 and has dark hair and gray eyes.

Miss La Marr's present husband is Jack Daugherty. She is twenty-seven years old and five feet six inches tall. She weighs 135 and has dark hair and eyes.

Mabel Normand is still single. She was born in 1893 with dark hair and eyes. She's five feet four inches tall and weighs 125.

Miss Valli is married to a non-professional. She's five feet three inches tall and weighs 120. Her hair and eyes are both dark and she's twenty-nine years old.

Ramon is still single in spite of his good looks. He has dark hair and eyes, and is five feet ten in height and weighs 160. He's about twenty-four.

I'll have to speak to Mr. Garman about "The Marriage Maker." If there is a big demand for it's return to Lincoln, we will no doubt have it here again at the Sun.

In regard to the other pictures asked for, "The Dangerous Hour," "Fashionable Fakers," "The Worm," "The Dust of Desire," "The Song of Love," and "Holiday Love," Mr. Garman says that unless some good company has remade some of thes pictures, that they will not be shown. Norma Talmadge's picture, according to him, is three years old, and she has so many newer ones that are better. If you could send the names of the producers it might help.

Dear Movie Editor—I am here again after a little information about my favorite star, Gloria Swanson. I have seen a great many girl stars take the parts of boys in pictures, but I thought Gloria was the best I have seen yet. I saw Mary Pickford in "Little Lord Faulroy," Marion Davies in "Little Old New York" and Anna Q. Nilsson in "Ponjola," recently and I didn't think any of them could equal her. She certainly must have studied hard and watched a boy's actions a lot to be able to walk and put her hands in her pockets like she did in "The Humming Bird." And the way she blew the cigarette smoke through her nose was just like a man would have done it, I should think. We don't usually give Gloria much credit for acting, because she's usually dolled up and it has been said about her lots of times that she would not be able to "get by" at all if it were not for her fussy clothes. I guess she's going to show the fans that she can act as well as wear nice clothes, and in my opinion she does both exceedingly well.

Will you please give me the cast whether it was filmed in the east or for "The Humming Bird" and tell me west? I know that Gloria has been making pictures in the east recently, and didn't know whether that was one she finished in the west or not.

Could you please tell me whether it was Tommy Meighan or Wallace Reid who appeared in "The Ne'er Do Well." It sort of sounds like a Wally picture, and yet I have the impression that I saw Tommy in it. It has been quite a while since I saw it.

I'll not trouble you anymore until I get filled up with questions again. With many thanks for past kindnesses, I am as before, K. K. K.

Some of the critics claim that Gloria over-did her characterization in "The Humming Bird" but evidently she pleased her fans with her work, and that's what really counts. It's the public that pays admission to the shows, and not the critics. The picture was filmed at the Lond Island studio. The cast is: "Toinette," Gloria Swanson; "Randall Garry," Edward Burns; "Papa Jacques," William Ricciardi; "Charlot," Cesare Gravina; "La Roche," Mario Majeroni; "The Owl," Mme. d'Ambricourt; "Henrietta Rutherford," Helen Lindroth; "Bouchet," Rafael Bongini; "Beatrice," Regina Quinn; "Bosque," Aurelio Coccia; "Zizi," Jacques d'Auray.

Thomas Meighan and not Wallace Reid, had the title role in "The Ne'er Do Well."

Dear Movie Editor—I am coming to you today for a few addresses of my favorite stars. I want to write to them for pictures for my movie book. I have it about half filled with pictures and descriptions that you have given me, and I want to see if I can fill it before August. I have a little invalid friend who has a birthday then, and I thought perhaps I would give it to her for a birthday present, because she is so fond of the movies and isn't able to see them very often.

The addresses I want are: Lon Chaney, Tom Mix, Viola Dana, Norma Talmadge, Jane Novak, Gertrude Olmstead and George Walsh. Sincerely, MOVIE LOVER.

I sincerely hope you do get your book filled for your little friend. I am sure that all the stars would send their pictures if they knew why you were so anxious to receive them.

Dear Movie Editor—I've been watching your columns for some time for some information concerning Nigel de Bruller, but have failed to find it. If it has appeared it has slid neatly past my eagle eyes, so I would be very grateful to you if you would tell me all you can about him. I have seen him in several pictures such as "The Four Horsemen," "The Three Mucketeers" and "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" and have a great admiration for his work. What is his next picture? What is his address? Thanking you in advance for the information, I am a DeBRULIER FAN.

The gentleman in question started his career as a songster, rather than an actor. He had an exquisite tenor voice in his youth, and first attracted attention in the church choir of a small town in England. He later developed his gift and became well known on the operatic stage as a singer and dramatic actor. He played in London, Paris and other cities on the continent, and then lost his voice and his health. The doctors advised a sea trip, so he came to America. He found work in the borax mines of Death Valley and regained his health. It was while resting in California that he started his screen career. His latest work is as Jehan Daas, the old grandfather of little Nello in Jackie Coogan's next picture, "A Boy of Flanders."

Dear Movie Editor—A friend and I have been having an argument over the marriages of Gloria Swanson and Mae Murray. My friend claims that Gloria has only been married once, but that Mae has been married twice and I am equally sure that they have both been married only once. Will you please set us right on this and oblige, TWO FANS.

Both of the stars have been married twice. Gloria's first husband was Wallace Beery, and her second Herbert Sanborne. Mae Murray was married several years ago to Jack O'Brien, but the marriage was of such short duration that she prefers to have her fans forget it ever occurred. Her present husband is Robert Leonard, her director.

ANSWERS TO Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I thought I could get along without bothering you, but it just seems like I always come back. I heard a funny story the other day, so I am coming to you as usual. A friend of mine told me that there was a rumor going the rounds that Gloria Swanson was dead, but they were keeping it from the public until all her pictures were released. Now it struck me kind of funny because I knew if anything like that ever happened that they couldn't keep it a secret very long and what would be their idea anyway. She didn't like it very well because I told her I didn't believe her. She said she got the story from some one who had just come back from California, and it was the truth. Now if it was such a secret that they were keeping it from the public how on earth does it happen that so many know about it. They tell me that the "Humming Bird" was her latest picture, so she couldn't have had many pictures ahead. Now if you can tell me anything about it, I would be grateful as Gloria is one of my special favorites. I would feel awfully bad if anything like that ever happened to her. I think she did some of the best acting in her career in "The Humming Bird" and I enjoyed it very much. Edward Burns, the leading man, was good also. He gets better in every picture.

Can you tell me when "The Ten Commandments" and "Icebound" will appear in Lincoln and what theatre will they be shown at?

My favorite picture for 1924 so far is "The White Rose." I thought it was wonderful. It was so true to life. Has Ivor Novello ever played in any other pictures besides that one. He certainly was good in that and would like to see him often, but I guess he is like some of the others, he just makes one picture and then disappears. I think Mae Marsh is one of the best actresses on the screen. She is every bit as good as Mary Pickford and a little better in some pictures.—JUSTICE.

You are perfectly right about Gloria Swanson, Justice. She is very much alive, and your friend was misinformed. Anybody returning from California just at present, would have no more authentic information on Gloria than you would have, because she is not in California now, and has not been for several weeks. She is in New York making pictures at the Long Island studio and expects to stay there indefinitely. "The Humming Bird" is her latest release, but it is not her last picture by any means. "Manhandled" will be her next release, and she's working on another picture now. If she were really dead, there would be no more reason for keeping her death a secret than there was for keeping Wallace Reid's or any other stars who have gone, a secret.

I can't tell you just when the pictures will appear in Lincoln. "The Ten Commandments" will no doubt be shown at the Orpheum when it is released for general distribution.

"The White Rose" was Novello's first and last picture to date. He has returned to the speaking stage from whence he was borrowed for the production.

Dear Movie Editor—We have never written to you before, but read your column every Sunday. Please give us the addresses of George O'Hara, Mary Beth Milford, Bessie Love and Evelyn Nelson. Are they married and if so to whom? Please give us the age, color of hair and eyes, height and weight of them. What are their next pictures? Please give us the cast of "Rent Free." Thank you, GRAY EYES and BLUE EYES, Wymore.

I'm glad to have so many beautiful "eyes" present today.

Address Bessie Love in care of Ince studio, Culver City, Cal. All of the others could be reached in care of F. B. O. Hollywood, Cal. They are all single at the present writing. George has started work on his new starring vehicle, as yet untitled. His last was "Listen Lester" for which he was borrowed by Principal Pictures corporation. He is an F. B. O. star. Bessie is working on "Those Who Dance" and she had to bob her hair to play the role in the picture to which she was assigned. The other two have no new pictures announced.

Dear Movie Editor—Here I am again to bother you with questions for my movie book. How tall, color of hair and eyes, weight and if married are the following: Walter McGrail, Malcolm McGregor, George O'Hara, Ralph Graves, Rod La Rocque, Edward Burns, Barbara La Marr, Nabel Normand, Virginia Valli and Ramon Novarro.

Also, when will the following pictures be in Lincoln: Johnny Walter in "The Dangerous Hour," "Fashionable Fakes" and "The Worm." Norma Talmadge in "Dust of Desire" and "The Song of Love" and Agnes Ayers in "Holliday Love."?

Do you think that "The Marriage Maker" with Agnes Ayres and Jack Holt will come back to the Sun theater? When it was at the Rialto, it was only there the first half of the week and many people I have heard wanted to see it, but had not been prepared to see it as it was changed at the last minute for "Stephen Steps Out."

If you happen to ever have any pictures of any kind of Johnny Walker, Mary Pickford and Antonio Moreno, I would be very glad to have them for my movie book.—ONLY ME.

It just occurred to me that you might like pictures cut from movie magazines for your movie book, since I haven't been getting in many of the other kind. If you should be interested in them, let me know and I will try and find some for you.

Walter is six feet tall and weighs 175. He is married and has black hair and blue eyes.

Mr. Macgregor is also married. He is five feet eleven inches tall, weighs 165 and has brown hair and gray eyes.

George is five ten in height and weighs 150. He was born in 1898 with brown hair and gray eyes.

Ralph Graves has been married but his wife is dead. He is an inch over six feet in height and weighs 170. His eyes are blue and he has brown hair. He is twenty-seven years of age.

Rod La Rocque was born in 1893 with brown hair and eyes. He's a six footer and weighs 175. I've never heard of a wife for him.

There is a Mrs. Burns. Eddie is thirty-two and lacks a half inch of being six feet tall. He weighs 155 and has dark hair and gray eyes.

Miss La Marr's present husband is Jack Daugherty. She is twenty-seven years old and five feet six inches tall. She weighs 135 and has dark hair and eyes.

Mabel Normand is still single. She was born in 1893 with dark hair and eyes. She's five feet four inches tall and weighs 125.

Miss Valli is married to a non-professional. She's five feet three inches tall and weighs 120. Her hair and eyes are both dark and she's twenty-nine years old.

Ramon is still single in spite of his good looks. He has dark hair and eyes, and is five feet ten in height and weighs 160. He's about twenty-four.

I'll have to speak to Mr. Garman about "The Marriage Maker." If there is a big demand for it's return to Lincoln, we will no doubt have it here again at the Sun.

In regard to the other pictures asked for, "The Dangerous Hour," "Fashionable Fakers," "The Worm," "The Dust of Desire," "The Song of Love," and "Holiday Love," Mr. Garman says that unless some good company has remade some of thes pictures, that they will not be shown. Norma Talmadge's picture, according to him, is three years old, and she has so many newer ones that are better. If you could send the names of the producers it might help.

Dear Movie Editor—I am here again after a little information about my favorite star, Gloria Swanson. I have seen a great many girl stars take the parts of boys in pictures, but I thought Gloria was the best I have seen yet. I saw Mary Pickford in "Little Lord Faultroy," Marion Davies in "Little Old New York" and Anna Q. Nilsson in "Ponjola," recently and I didn't think any of them could equal her. She certainly must have studied hard and watched a boy's actions a lot to be able to walk and put her hands in her pockets like she did in "The Humming Bird." And the way she blew the cigarette smoke through her nose was just like a man would have done it, I should think. We don't usually give Gloria much credit for acting, because she's usually dolled up and it has been said about her lots of times that she would not be able to "get by" at all if it were not for her fussy clothes. I guess she's going to show the fans that she can act as well as wear nice clothes, and in my opinion she does both exceedingly well.

Will you please give me the cast whether it was filmed in the east or for "The Humming Bird" and tell me west? I know that Gloria has been making pictures in the east recently, and didn't know whether that was one she finished in the west or not.

Could you please tell me whether it was Tommy Meighan or Wallace Reid who appeared in "The Ne'er Do Well." It sort of sounds like a Wally picture, and yet I have the impression that I saw Tommy in it. It has been quite a while since I saw it.

I'll not trouble you anymore until I get filled up with questions again. With many thanks for past kindnesses, I am as before, K. K. K.

Some of the critics claim that Gloria over-did her characterization in "The Humming Bird" but evidently she pleased her fans with her work, and that's what really counts. It's the public that pays admission to the shows, and not the critics. The picture was filmed at the Lond Island studio. The cast is: "Toinette," Gloria Swanson; "Randall Garey," Edward Burns; "Papa Jacques," William Ricciardi; "Charlot," Cesare Gravina; "La Roche," Mario Majeroni; "The Owl," Mme. d'Ambricourt; "Henrietta Rutherford," Helen Lindroth; "Bouchet," Rafael Bongini; "Beatrice," Regina Quinn; "Bosque," Aurelio Coccia; "Zizi," Jacques d'Auray.

Thomas Meighan and not Wallace Reid, had the title role in "The Ne'er Do Well."

Dear Movie Editor—I am coming to you today for a few addresses of my favorite stars. I want to write to them for pictures for my movie book. I have it about half filled with pictures and descriptions that you have given me, and I want to see if I can fill it before August. I have a little invalid friend who has a birthday then, and I thought perhaps I would give it to her for a birthday present, because she is so fond of the movies and isn't able to see them very often.

Take Your Troubles to Minerva

Don't "Wet-Blanket" a Child's Enthusiasms—A Child Is a Sensitive Creature And It Is Easy To Frighten His Or Her Confidences Away—A Young Woman Asks Our Help in Solving Her Worry, Shall She Marry Now Or Travel and Frivol A While First — Many Interesting Problems.

Is It Worth While?

Dear Minerva: I would like your opinion on the duties and rights of a mother as regards correcting and criticising the children for faulty diction, careless mannerisms etc. I was a teacher before marriage and when I married and the babies came I used to promise myself that they would be super-children if I could make them so, and that they need not be so careless and sloppy in thinking and speech as many children are. This may sound trivial to you, but to me it seems of great importance to say and do a thing right and properly.

So, in this spirit, I have worked painstakingly with the children in the matter of their education.

But last night I wondered if it is worth while, if perhaps I am not sacrificing more than I gain. My fourteen-year-old daughter came in all enthusiasm over some bit of excitement in the school and started to tell us of it. Her words tumbled out in slipshod fashion in her excitement and I stopped her several times to correct her manner of speech. Finally she exploded in wrath and flounced out of the room saying she would never again try to tell me anything. I wonder at times if the children are not rather afraid of me, and if I wouldn't prefer that they act more naturally toward me, even if less proper. Then again I feel it is my duty to correct them when they need it, regardless of their personal reactions toward me. What do you think? MRS. H. J. H.

A. I think the greatest care and tact should be taken in correcting the minor faults of the child and that by no means should their confidence and comradeship be imperilled through a desire for them to be purists in speech or manner.

A child is a sensitive creature and his or her confidence and sharing of enthusiasm are to be treasured.

I can remember distinctly as a child how very much I disliked certain relatives of mine who were always finding me faulty. If I sat down to display my latest accomplishment at the piano for them at the request of proud mother or father, or one would comment on the slouchy manner of sitting of which I was guilty; another would notice my tumbled hair and remark on the necessity for neatness while a third would doubtless deplore my runover heels, or lack of polish on shoes or some such detail. Or perhaps they would dwell in preachery fashion upon the stern requirements of music, the hours of practice I must devote to it, etc. thus plunging me into deepest despair.

I've seen one of my nieces rush into the family circle with some tale of vast importance to her and have seen her wither under the bombardment of criticisms with which she was met, and at such times wondered if large families are after all unadulterated blessings.

"Gee, you're a sight," a fastidious brother would interrupt. "Mother, can't you make her fix her hair better? Other chaps' sisters don't look like way she does."

Then later Big Sister would say "Don't talk so fast; nobody can understand a word you say." Then later her father might say "Daughter, bully is not a nice word for a young lady to use." And perhaps the mother would commence tugging at an awkwardly hiked skirt or adjusting a middy tie, or otherwise "bettering" the child.

And I've watched the look of disappointment and chagrin and resentment wipe out the spontaneous enthusiasm and happiness on the child's face and realized that these kindly-meant criticisms were of far more harm than good.

So don't "wet blanket" the children's enthusiasms. There is always a happy medium to be found, even in education.

She Must Choose.

Dear Minerva: I am engaged to a splendid man and of course I love him more than anyone in the world. He wishes to be married in the early summer and as the month draws near I find myself getting out of the notion. I have always been quite independent and I find there are so many things I want to do before I settle down—more education, traveling, etc.

I am almost positive that he would break our engagement if I requested him to postpone our marriage. It has already been delayed a year due to illness and pecuniary troubles.

I want to do the right thing. I truly love him, Minerva, but I just don't want to marry yet. Perhaps this isn't "marrying" love or possibly it is selfishness on my part.

Please tell me what to do. GRATEFUL TWENTY-TWO.

A. Do not marry unless you can do so happily and with joyous anticipation.

And do not postpone this marriage and grasp for the worldly attractions that beckon in the belief that marriage, husband, home and children will wait just around the corner ready to be plucked at your convenience. Life doesn't seem to be arranged that way. It is a continual picking and choosing, a constant source of eliminating this if we want that. And no one can do the choosing for any other person.

I have known clever young women to postpone marriage to their very great regret in later years. And we all know the complaining sort of married woman who believes she made a mistake in her marriage. Life at times seems filled with malcontents. Just don't be one, whichever way you decide. If you don't love the man enough to marry him, all right. Make a clean break of it. But don't keep him dangling. If you do marry him, don't consider you are entering the prison walls. Marriage is the Great Adventure, you know.

Anything More Boresome?

Dear Minerva: Is there anything more boring than the man who thinks he is witty and just repeats one story after another, old ones, stale ones, rotten ones and those we have all read in the current magazines, the man who just monopolizes the conversation at all times and for whom no occasion is too serious to bring out a "Oh, that reminds me." If there is any greater bore, I'd like to hear about it. LONG SUFFERING.

A. Well, the woman who repeats what one person says about another to the person about whom it was said is pretty much of a bore. Or she who covers her catty remarks with pretended exaggerated sympathy, always breathing heavily "Oh, poor Mildred, she has so much to suffer with that husband of hers," and so on indefinitely.

Or the person (man or woman) who are always wanting to tell you the plot of a story they have read, or worse still, of a movie they have seen.

Or the people who always point out your mistakes and tell you how much better you would have been if you had done so and so instead of such and such a thing.

The over-sensitive people who always assure you that they understand you perfectly and hope you "won't treat us as company" but are mad if you don't.

Or the people who tell you long tales of personal incidents about people you have never heard of and never want to hear of again.

Oh there are a lot of bores, even worse than the chronic story teller.

A Mere Machine.

Dear Minerva: May I add a few words to the recent discussion regarding birth control and large families?

I believe emphatically that no woman should completely sacrifice her life by becoming a mere procreative machine, that babies should be born to women who are physically and economically able to bear them in this enlightened age.

You have only to look about you in an average neighborhood of homes to recognize he truth. Look at the woman of 40 or 45 who has given herself freely to the having of children and who stands revealed as a woman worn out mentally and physically, reduced to the servant class by the duties compelled of any woman who has children and cannot afford to have them. Many such a woman has lost her husband in fact if not in name, has dropped so far behind him that they can scarcely be thought of as mates.

Then there are the women who permit themselves to overdo motherhood should be an exact science. Each invalids. And the orphan children whose mothers have died in giving birth to a sixth or seventh child.

There should be more to a woman's life than just a big brood of weaklings. Motherhood—modern motherhood should be an exact science. Each mother should decide how many children she should have competently and will choose her time for the contribution in relation to her physical well-being and the size of her husband's pay envelope. SCIENTIFIC READER.

Just To Please

Dear Minerva: I haven ever written you before but others have come to you for advice so I have come to you also. Now Minerva my trouble is this: I have been keeping company with a good, clean, honest boy for almost a year and he has learned to love me, but Minerva I do not love him and know I never shall. I have never given him any reason to think that I cared anything for him, but he thinks I will learn to care. I have made the remark at home that I wish he would quit coming over to see me but whenever I say anything against him my parents and three brothers scold me as they think a lot of this boy, and they tell me that I prefer a cake-eater that is a keen dancer, etc. So I have kept company with him all this time just to please them. He has a lovely sister and we two chum around together most of the time and I am afraid that if I quit him she will be hurt too.

I am only eighteen, have a good position and would like to stay single for a while yet and have a good time. I have a married sister and I have told her that if I ever married this boy it would be because of the folks, but she tells me whatever I do not to do that as it is hard enough to live with a man when you love him.

I hope I have not taken up too much of your time Minerva but please advise me what I should do.

A. Don't continue "keeping company" with a young man for any reason other than actual liking for the young man himself. It is just being weak-willed to think you must force such a friendship because of a liking for the young man's sister, or to please your own people. Get such false ideas of obligation out of your head.

At Hastings the work has been undertaken more recently, but basic maps have been drawn. This feature of university extension service aims at planning cities with respect to their growth and needs. In such surveys base maps are constructed and inventories of conditions taken—payings, sewerage systems, public utilities—and a classification of property. On the basis of this data estimates of future needs may be made.

Fresh from a successful 500-mile tour of Nebraska towns the university glee club will give its annual home concerts at the Temple theater Friday and Saturday evenings, April 25 and 26. The program will include glee club harmonies, quartette novelties, vocal solos and instrumental numbers. Nebraska patrons of music praised highed the recent appear- of the club in out-state towns, members report.

The first letter of Omicron chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, national society of men interested in the scientific study of education, was distributed last week by its editor, G. W. Rosenlof of Teachers college. This first number contains greetings from Pres. A. R. Congdon of the department of mathematics; a brief history of the Nebraska chapter; appreciative remarks on the work of the founders of the organization; a history of Teachers College at the University; the report of the tenth national council of Phi Delta Kappa, which was held in Chicago, December 27-29; and, besides matter of general interest, a complete roll of the member of Nebraska chapter. It is planned to issue the next number about the middle of June.

Hearing Restored Often in 24 Hours

Amazing Results Secured in One Day by Use of K-17, Formerly Known as Rattle Snake Oil.

Deafness and Head Noises need not be dreaded any longer since the discovery of a widely known physician. Now it is possible for some of the most obstinate cases of deafness to be relieved in a day's time by the application of a prescription formerly known as Rattle Snake Oil. This treatment is meeting with wide success all over the country.

Mr. D. Dey, a Nebraska resident, 67 years old, says, "I have used the treatment for only two weeks and my hearing is restored perfectly. The relief was almost instantaneous and now the head noises have disappeared. My catarrh, a case of many years' standing, is improving wonderfully."

Fred McIntyre, a Kansas resident, says: "I have used K-17 for two weeks and can hear a watch tick. It has also nearly removed all evidences of my catarrh."

Head Noises Stopped.

Henry Vertein, a Wisconsin resident, says: "I have used K-17 for only ten days and my head noises have stopped entirely and my hearing has shown a wonderful improvement."

Hears Clock Tick.

Frank Quinn, of Mississippi, says: "Before I used K-17 I had not heard the clock tick for a long time. And after I had taken the treatment two days I could lay in bed and hear the clock tick plainly."

D. E. Bryant, of Georgia, says: "I began using K-17 on Monday and on Saturday of the same week I was hearing and have been hearing ever since. Thank you once, twice, thrice."

Head Noises Stopped in 5 Days.

Mrs. D. C. Wilkins, of Mississippi, says: "K-17 has helped me wonderfully. In five days it has stopped that awful noise in my ears. I think it is a grand medicine."

Mrs. C. Roberts of Florida, says: "I was entirely deaf in my left ear for two years and then in both. When I got your treatment I could hear in twenty-four hours."

Such amazing reports come from all over the country and the foreign countries. The prescription, which is known as K-17 is easily used at home and seems to work like magic in its rapidity on people of all ages.

So confident are we that K-17 will restore your hearing quickly, and to introduce this remarkable treatment to a million more sufferers, we will send a large $2.00 treatment for only $1.00 on ten days' free trial. If the results are not satisfactory the treatment costs nothing.

Send no money —just your name and address to the Greene Laboratories, 225 Greene Bldg., Kansas City, Kan., and the treatment will be sent at once. Use it according to the simple directions. If at the end of ten days your hearing is not relieved, your head noises gone entirely, just send it back and your money will be refunded without question. This offer is fully guaranteed, so write today and give this wonderful compound a trial.—Advertisement.

The flowers in Lady Mary's hands,
In her white hands this day,
Are simple things that grew one morn
By a rock bound tomb and gray
And they are fairer in her eyes
Than all the blooms of paradise.
The jewels on Lady Mary's breast
They are those tears dropped down
Through a dark night—before the glow
And glory of a dawn.
And they are fairer in her eyes
Than all the pearls of paradise.

Easter Through the Shops WITH Patricia Ann

New Spring Shades and What They Mean.

Each season brings its share of new shades for Milady's wardrobe, and the present Spring is no exception.

The following colors have been chosen by the Textile Color Card association of the United States, as those which will be the most popular this season and during the summer months.

Terrapin, a rose toned brown.
Aphrodite, a bluish green on the order of Chinese jade.
Gladiolus, a glowing red with a blue undertone.
Sistine, a rench blue of the grayish type from the Powder blue category.
Orchid, as exemplified by the flower.
Cameo pink, a delicate pastel shade of yellow caste.
Daphne, a bright blue, virile in tone and slightly violent.
Silver, silver gray.
Crab Apple, a deep salmon.
Sombrero, a light sand.
Navy, White.

Mayer Bros.—Home of The "Sweetheart" Bob, The Latest Coiffure.

The "Sweetheart" bob! Sounds interesting, doesn't it, and it is just as interesting as it looks. The idea is to cut the hair so that the face resembles a heart, in shape only, of course, and you'd be surprised just how attractive it really is. This new idea was brought to Lincoln by another new barber who has just arrived at Mayer Bros., from Chicago Mr. O'Connor brought the Hollywood bob from Hollywood, and J. L. Quinn brings the "Sweetheart" bob from the east.

It adds a great deal of interest to the face and makes the hair unusually good looking. Try the "Sweetheart" bob the next time your hair needs cutting, Milady, and see if you don't like it as well or better than any you have had so far. Mr. Quinn is an expert barber and knows how to cut your hair to suit your head and your face. Many merely cut hair, but Mr. Quinn has an artistic touch that makes even ordinary hair look simply wonderful.

Sale of Good Looking Rings At C. W. Fleming Jewelry Store.

How about a good looking ring for the graduation or confirmation present? At C. W. Fleming's jewelry store this week there are some wonderful bargains in set and signet rings. For the very young girl, a birthstone would be very appropriate, and for the girl who is of high school age, a nice cameo or dinner ring would be lovely. I saw some exquisite new boudoir lamps at Fleming's, also, that were particularly unusual.

The Buick Will Help You To Spend a Happy Easter.

Easter Sunday—the most wonderful of all wonderful days, a day when worry and dull care should be set aside. The surest way to forget every thing but the finest in the world is to take out the Buick and go for a long, long ride all around the town, out in the country, anywhere and every where so long as happiness is the order of the day. To insure comfort and speed and everything that means the best in motoring be sure that your car is a Buick. Good motor, good looks, the best there is for the least, that's what you have when you have a Buick.

Tartan plaids are chosen for the development of spring topcoats in straightline three - quarter models. Designs with a red background are favored. Dyed squirrel in warm tan shades form the double collars.

Gold's Insure Milady's Easter Bonnet in Unique Fashion.

"O, it aint goin' to rain anymore, anymore, it ain't goin' to rain any more——" And who cares whether it rains today or not so long as it begins at eight o'clock in the morning and lasts until 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and measures a tenth of an inch or more? Golds store has guaranteed to refund the money on all of the ladies millinery which was purchased at their store aSturday if it rains Sunday. But it must rain between eight in the morning and one in the afternoon and must be a tenth of an inch or more. Will it rain, Let's wait and see.

Lent has gone for another year, and the blanket of somberness has been lifted from the world of social activities. Now, the question is, where can the most artistic and unusual favors and decorations be purchased for the post-lenten parties and dances, and Patricia can tell you just the place to go. The Ward-Warner Gift Shop, Lincoln hotel, has the finest assortment of favors and some lovely new spring flowers delicately made, which have just come in and will add much to the decorations of the luncheon or dinner. Have you heard of the new Swiss musical cigaret and puff boxes? Look them over when you go to the Ward-Warner shop.

The smartest note in separate coats at the moment is black—al black—notwithstanding the appearance in greater numbers than for some seasons past, of beige, rust and lanvin green cloth coats. Kasha, too, is observed more frequently, as are rep and twill. More black is promised, too, when the vogue of silk coats—generaly a black choice—is realized. The use of white is not abandoned.

Scarf and Hat Sets Prominent.

Scarf and hat sets are becoming more and more prominent and there is no doubt of their growing popularity. There is much more sale for the scarf which carries some touch of red or black and white scarf, it is said, and this is certainly true of the types being worn on the Avenue. The black and white is very much liked by the matron, who wears it in the Ascot effect, folded over high about the neck like a riding stock. With this the small black hat of Bengaline or felt is affected and in many cases the white pipings are noted on these hats.

Motoring Umbrellas.

Among the new taffeta umbrellas included in this collection, several models particularly well-adapted to motoring are featured. "Limousine" is the name given to one model bordered with a narrow ruffle of self-material, the rod of which unscrews with a hinge arrangement so that the umbrella may be tilted at any angle while the parasol is held straight. This model also features the shoulder strap. An unusually small model designed with 10 ribs and also featuring the shank which unscrews is called "Motor-tour." This style when unscrewed, can be carried in a very small place.

"Shelf Paper" Ruffles.

The finest kidskins have small flared cuffs with contrasting color embroideries or double ruffles of kid in "shelf paper" designs. A particularly attractive style has the turnover flare cuff of moire silk, embroidered in colors. Cut-outs designs in the material of the cuff with an underlay of a contrasting color and others with the perforations showing through with no underlay are seen. Black kid with cutout patterns over an underlay of white kid pique sewn, with novelty white stitching is a popular combination. Braiding and two-tone embroidered, embossed patterns or stamped effects in color and cuffs finished in pointed or round scalloped are among the new styles.

Overblouses with Robespierre collars are made with groups of fine pin tucks in striped effects, the fulness on either hip allowing them to be shaped to the figure. The vogue for the fob and monogram are demonstrated in overshirts of spun silk or crepe de Chine, with round collars and fitted hipbands, a fob in red, jade, black, emerald, amber, or apricot falling fro ma ribbon, coming from a slit at one side of the band.

Monograms appear low down in the center of the front of blouses, and less frequently on the left side instead of a breast pocket. One model which has been much advertised is in heavy crepe de Chine, with narrow collar, slit breast pocket and two slit pockets at the waist piped with a constrasting color. From one pocket a novelty fob is hung, with an embroidered initial. Cream with red, jade or mauve, champagne and gold, bauve and pink, putty and brown, navy and cherry are among the combinations noted.

Sport skirts have quieted down considerably, both in color and in pattern. There are some plaids shown, but they are subdued, of the shadow variety, and are effective through using a contrasting color for a hairline blocking, rather than the tartan idea. The most wanted sports skirts are the checked patterns, brown on tan or black on white, with very fine pleating that does not come out, or wrap-around ones.

Pajamas take to voiles this season and appear in pastel shades in slipon styles, and are decorated with lace. Crepe and dimity are probably still the most popular, in coat styles, with frog-fastened fronts and tailored.

Yellow is still in favor with the green, tile red and cinnamon following closely behind. Coats sponsor the tan, cocoa and green shades with trimmings of kid.

Silk and wool in alternating rows form fur-trimmed coats made on loose, straight lines. Juina and suede cloth are also worn in red, tile and rust with matching or contrasting fur.

It is now the fashion, to have vanity accessories dangling from the wrist in some contrivance or to hide them in the belt or in a tassel of the dress, so that bags need not be so voluminous as before.

The Directoire bobs up here and there in this season's styles. In youthful coats, several of the larger houses are showing coats having the short Directoire circular capelet. More mature styles show large formal hip pockets, while suits are likewise characterized, with erect collars and wide revers.

Don't "Wet-Blanket" a Child's Enthusiasms—A Child Is a Sensitive Creature And It Is Easy To Frighten His Or Her Confidences Away—A Young Woman Asks Our Help in Solving Her Worry, Shall She Marry Now Or Travel and Frivol A While First — Many Interesting Problems.

Is It Worth While?

Dear Minerva: I would like your opinion on the duties and rights of a mother as regards correcting and criticising the children for faulty diction, careless mannerisms etc. I was a teacher before marriage and when I married and the babies came I used to promise myself that they would be super-children if I could make them so, and that they need not be so careless and sloppy in thinking and speech as many children are. This may sound trivial to you, but to me it seems of great importance to say and do a thing right and properly.

So, in this spirit, I have worked painstakingly with the children in the matter of their education.

But last night I wondered if it is worth while, if perhaps I am not sacrificing more than I gain. My fourteen-year-old daughter came in all enthusiasm over some bit of excitement in the school and started to tell us of it. Her words tumbled out in slipshod fashion in her excitement and I stopped her several times to correct her manner of speech. Finally she exploded in wrath and flounced out of the room saying she would never again try to tell me anything. I wonder at times if the children are not rather afraid of me, and if I wouldn't prefer that they act more naturally toward me, even if less proper. Then again I feel it is my duty to correct them when they need it, regardless of their personal reactions toward me. What do you think? MRS. H. J. H.

A. I think the greatest care and tact should be taken in correcting the minor faults of he child and that by no means should their confidence and comradeship be imperilled through a desire for them to be purists in speech or manner.

A child is a sensitive creature and his or her confidence and sharing of enthusiasm are to be treasured.

I can remember distinctly as a child how very much I disliked certain relatives of mine who were always finding me faulty. If I sat down to display my latest accomplishment at the piano for them at the request of proud mother or father, one would comment on the slouchy manner of sitting of which I was guilty; another would notice my tumbled hair and remark on the necessity for neatness while a third would doubtless deplore my runover heels, or lack of polish on shoes or some such detail. Or perhaps they would dwell in preachery fashion upon the stern requirements of music, the hours of practice I must devote to it, etc. thus plunging me into deepest despair.

I've seen one of my nieces rush into the family circle with some tale of vast importance to her and have seen her wither under the bombardment of criticisms with which she was met, and at such times wondered if large families are after all unadultered blessings.

"Gee, you're a sight," a fastidious brother would interrupt. "Mother, can't you make her fix her hair better? Other chaps' sisters don't look like the way she does."

Then later Big Sister would say "Don't talk so fast; nobody can understand a word you say." Then later her father might say "Daughter, bully is not a nice word for a young lady to use." And perhaps the mother would commence tugging at an awkwardly hiked skirt or adjusting a middy tie, or otherwise "bettering" the child.

And I've watched the look of disappointment and chagrin and resentment wipe out the spontaneous enthusiasm and happiness on the child's face and realized that these kindly-meant criticisms were of far more harm than good.

So don't "wet blanket" the children's enthusiasms. There is always a happy medium to be found, even in education.

She Must Choose.

Dear Minerva: I am engaged to a splendid man and of course I love him more than anyone in the world. He wishes to be married in the early summer and as the month draws near I find myself getting out of the notion. I have always been quite independent and I find there are so many things I want to do before I settle down—more education, traveling, etc.

I am almost positive that he would break our engagement if I requested him to postpone our marriage. It has already been delayed a year due to illness and pecuniary troubles.

I want to do the right thing. I truly love him, Minerva, but I just don't want to marry yet. Perhaps this isn't "marrying" love or possibly it is selfishness on my part.

Please tell me what to do. GRATEFUL TWENTY-TWO.

A. Do not marry unless you can do so happily and with joyous anticipation.

And do not postpone this marriage and grasp for the worldly attractions that beckon in the belief that marriage, husband, home and children will wait just around the corner ready to be plucked at your convenience. Life doesn't seem to be arranged that way. It is a continual picking and choosing, a constant source of eliminating this if we want that. And no one can do the choosing for any other person.

I have known clever young women to postpone marriage to their very great regret in later years. And we all know the complaining sort of married woman who believes she made a mistake in her marriage. Life at times seems filled with malcontents. Just don't be one, whichever way you decide. If you don't love the man enough to marry him, all right. Make a clean break of it. But don't keep him dangling. If you do marry him, don't consider you are entering the prison walls. Marriage is the Great Adventure, you know.

Anything More Boresome?

Dear Minerva: Is there anything more boring than the man who thinks he is witty and just repeats one story after another, old ones, stale ones, rotten ones and those we have all read in the current magazines, the man who just monopolizes the conversation at all times and for whom no occasion is too serious to bring out a "Oh, that reminds me." If there is any greater bore, I'd like to hear about it. LONG SUFFERING.

A. Well, the woman who repeats what one person says about another to the person about whom it was said is pretty much of a bore. Or she who covers her catty remarks with pretended exaggerated sympathy, always breathing heavily "Oh, poor Mildred, she has so much to suffer with that husband of hers," and so on indefinitely.

Or the person (man or woman) who are always wanting to tell you the plot of a story they have read, or worse still, of a movie they have seen.

Or the people who always point out your mistakes and tell you how much better you would have been if you had done so and so instead of such and such a thing.

The over-sensitive people who always assure you that they understand you perfectly and hope you "won't treat us as company" but are mad if you don't.

Or the people who tell you long tales of personal incidents about people you have never heard of and never want to hear of again.

Oh there are a lot of bores, even worse than the chronic story teller.

A Mere Machine.

Dear Minerva: May I add a few words to the recent discussion regarding birth control and large families?

I believe emphatically that no woman should completely sacrifice her life by becoming a mere procreative machine, that babies should be born to women who are physically and economically able to bear them in this enlightened age.

You have only to look about you in an average neighborhood of homes to recognize he truth. Look at the woman of 40 or 45 who has given herself freely to the having of children and who stands revealed as a woman worn out mentally and physically, reduced to the servant class by the duties compelled of any woman who has children and cannot afford to have them. Many such a woman has lost her husband in fact if not in name, has dropped so far behind him that they can scarcely be thought of as mates.

Then there are the women who permit themselves to overdo motherhood should be an exact science. Each invalids. And the orphan children whose mothers have died in giving birth to a sixth or seventh child.

There should be more to a woman's life than just a big brood of weaklings. Motherhood—modern motherhood shuld be an exact science. Each mother should decide how many children she should have competently and will choose her time for the contribution in relation to her physical well-being and the size of her husband's pay envelope. SCIENTIFIC READER.

Just To Please

Dear Minerva: I haven ever written you before but others have come to you for advice so I have come to you also. Now Minerva my trouble is this: I have been keeping company with a good, clean, honest boy for almost a year and he has learned to love me, but Minerva I do not love him and know I never shall. I have never given him any reason to think that I cared anything for him, but he thinks I will learn to care. I have made the remark at home that I wish he would quit coming over to see me but whenever I say anything against him my parents and three brothers scold me as they think a lot of this boy, and they tell me that I prefer a cake-eater that is a keen dancer, etc. So I have kept company with him all this time just to please them. He has a lovely sister and we two chum around together most of the time and I am afraid that if I quit him she will be hurt too.

I am only eighteen, have a good position and would like to stay single for a while yet and have a good time. I have a married sister and I have told her that if I ever married this boy it would be because of the folks, but she tells me whatever I do not to do that as it is hard enough to live with a man when you love him.

I hope I have not taken up too much of your time Minerva but please advise me what I should do.

A. Don't continue "keeping company" with a young man for any reason other than actual liking for the young man himself. It is just being weak-willed to think you must force such a friendship because of a liking for the young man's sister, or to please your own people. Get such false ideas of obligation out of your head.

Establishment of the general library in the Rachel Ann Lucas building was completed Monday. The removal of books was effected by a corps of students directed by Librarian Ethel Langdon.

The state peace oratorical contest will take place May 2 at Grand Island. Tryouts for the selecting of the delegate from Wesleyan will be held April 24. Among those who have indicated interest in the tryouts are Earl Raitt, Darwin Burroughs, Herbert Gray and Alva Andrews. Speakers are required to present orations with constructive argument for peace to be attained without war.

MRS. IDA ORTON

Every Woman Needs a Tonic at Some Period of Life

Read This

Omaha, Nebr. — "In my young motherhood I had a siege of illness that affected me so that none of the digestive organs were functioning properly. I also had bearing pains. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Favorite Prescription are the medicines I took and they cured me of these ailments also strengthened and built up my general health so that for years my physical condition was perfect. I came through the critical time of life in good shape, with no trouble at all, and I feel sure that it was because Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery had strengthened me during the earlier stage of inward weakness. I gladly recommend these excellent remedies of Dr. Pierce's to all women who are in ill health."—Mrs. Ida Orton, 2605 1-2 Sprague St.

Your druggist will sell you Dr. Pierce's medicines in tablets or liquid, or send 10c for trial pkg. to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., and write for free medical advice.—Advertisement.

Hearing Restored Often in 24 Hours

Amazing Results Secured in One Day by Use of K-17, Formerly Known as Rattle Snake Oil.

Deafness and Head Noises need not be dreaded any longer since the discovery of a widely known physician. Now it is possible for some of the most obstinate cases of deafness to be relieved in a day's time by the application of a prescription formerly known as Rattle Snake Oil. This treatment is meeting with wide success all over the country.

Mr. D. Dey, a Nebraska resident, 67 years old, says, "I have used the treatment for only two weeks and my hearing is restored perfectly. The relief was almost instantaneous and now the head noises have disappeared. My catarrh, a case of many years' standing, is improving wonderfully."

Fred McIntyre, a Kansas resident, says: "I have used K-17 for two weeks and can hear a watch tick. It has also nearly removed all evidences of my catarrh."

Head Noises Stopped.

Henry Vertein, a Wisconsin resident, says: "I have used K-17 for only ten days and my head noises have stopped entirely and my hearing has shown a wonderful improvement."

Hears Clock Tick.

Frank Quinn, of Mississippi, says: "Before I used K-17 I had not heard the clock tick for a long time. And after I had taken the treatment two days I could lay in bed and hear the clock tick plainly."

D. E. Bryant, of Georgia, says: "I began using K-17 on Monday and on Saturday of the same week I was hearing and have been hearing ever since. Thank you once, twice, thrice."

Head Noises Stopped in 5 Days.

Mrs. D. C. Wilkins, of Mississippi, says: "K-17 has helped me wonderfully. In five days it has stopped that awful noise in my ears. I think it is a grand medicine."

Mrs. C. Roberts of Florida, says: "I was entirely deaf in my left ear for two years and then in both. When I got your treatment I could hear in twenty-four hours."

Such amazing reports come from all over the country and the foreign countries. The prescription, which is known as K-17 is easily used at home and seems to work like magic in its rapidity on people of all ages.

So confident are we that K-17 will restore your hearing quickly, and to introduce this remarkable treatment to a million more sufferers, we will send a large $2.00 treatment for only $1.00 on ten days' free trial. If the results are not satisfactory the treatment costs nothing.

Send no money —just your name and address to the Greene Laboratories, 225 Greene Bldg., Kansas City, Kan., and the treatment will be sent at once. Use it according to the simple directions. If at the end of ten days your hearing is not relieved, your head noises gone entirely, just send it back and your money will be refunded without question. This offer is fully guaranteed, so write today and give this wonderful compound a trial.—Advertisement.

The flowers in Lady Mary's hands,
In her white hands this day,
Are simple things that grew one morn
By a rock bound tomb and gray
And they are fairer in her eyes
Than all the blooms of paradise.
The jewels on Lady Mary's breast
They are those tears dropped down
Through a dark night—before the glow
And glory of a dawn.
And they are fairer in her eyes
Than all the pearls of paradise.

New Spring Shades and What They Mean.

Each season brings its share of new shades for Milady's wardrobe, and the present Spring is no exception.

The following colors have been chosen by the Textile Color Card association of the United States, as those which will be the most popular this season and during the summer months.

Terrapin, a rose toned brown.
Aphrodite, a bluish green on the order of Chinese jade.
Gladiolus, a glowing red with a blue undertone.
Sistine, a rench blue of the grayish type from the Powder blue category.
Orchid, as exemplified by the flower.
Cameo pink, a delicate pastel shade of yellow caste.
Daphne, a bright blue, virile in tone and slightly violent.
Silver, silver gray.
Tarragon, a grayish green of the almond and Lanvin green type.
Crab Apple, a deep salmon.
Sombrero, a light sand.
Navy, White.

Mayer Bros.—Home of The "Sweetheart" Bob, The Latest Coiffure.

The "Sweetheart" bob! Sounds interesting, doesn't it, and it is just as interesting as it looks. The idea is to cut the hair so that the face resembles a heart, in shape only, of course, and you'd be surprised just how attractive it really is. This new idea was brought to Lincoln by another new barber who has just arrived at Mayer Bros., from Chicago Mr. O'Connor brought the Hollywood bob from Hollywood, and J. L. Quinn brings the "Sweetheart" bob from the east.

It adds a great deal of interest to the face and makes the hair unusually good looking. Try the "Sweetheart' bob the next time your hair needs cutting, Milady, and see if you don't like it as well or better than any you have had so far. Mr. Quinn is an expert barber and knows how to cut your hair to suit your head and your face. Many merely cut hair, but Mr. Quinn has an artistic touch that makes even ordinary hair look simply wonderful.

Sale of Good Looking Rings At C. W. Fleming Jewelry Store.

How about a good looking ring for the graduation or confirmation present? At C. W. Fleming's jewelry store this week there are some wonderful bargains in set and signet rings. For the very young girl, a birthstone would be very appropriate, and for the girl who is of high school age, a nice cameo or dinner ring would be lovely. I saw some exquisite new boudoir lamps at Fleming's, also, that were particularly unusual.

The Buick Will Help You To Spend a Happy Easter.

Easter Sunday—the most wonderful of all wonderful days, a day when worry and dull care should be set aside. The surest way to forget every thing but the finest in the world is to take out the Buick and go for a long, long ride all around the town, out in the country, anywhere and every where so long as happiness is the order of the day. To insure comfort and speed and everything that means the best in motoring be sure that your car is a Buick. Good motor, good looks, the best there is for the least, that's what you have when you have a Buick.

Tartan plaids are chosen for the development of spring topcoats in straightline three - quarter models. Designs with a red background are favored. Dyed squirrel in warm tan shades form the double collars.

Gold's Insure Milady's Easter Bonnet in Unique Fashion.

"O, it aint goin' to rain anymore, anymore, it ain't goin' to rain any more——" And who cares whether it rains today or not so long as it begins at eight o'clock in the morning and lasts until 1 oclock in the afternoon, and measures a tenth of an inch or more? Golds store has guaranteed to refund the money on all of the ladies millinery which was purchased at their store aSturday if it rains Sunday. But it must rain between eight in the morning and one in the afternoon and must be a tenth of an inch or more. Will it rain, Let's wait and see.

Lent has gone for another year, and the blanket of somberness has been lifted from the world of social activities. Now, the question is, where can the most artistic and unusual favors and decorations be purchased for the post-lenten parties and dances, and Patricia can tell you just the place to go. The Ward-Warner Gift Shop, Lincoln hotel, has the finest assortment of favors and some lovely new spring flowers delicately made, which have just come in and will add much to the decorations of the luncheon or dinner. Have you heard of the new Swiss musical cigaret and puff boxes? Look them over when you go to the Ward-Warner shop.

The smartest note in separate coats at the moment is black—al black—notwithstanding the appearance in greater numbers than for some seasons past, of beige, rust and lanvin green cloth coats. Kasha, too, is observed more frequently, as are rep and twill. More black is promised, too, when the vogue of silk coats—generaly a black choice—is realized. The use of white is not abandoned.

Scarf and Hat Sets Prominent.

Scarf and hat sets are becoming more and more prominent and there is no doubt of their growing popularity. There is much more sale for the scarf which carries some touch of red or black and white scarf, it is said, and this is certainly true of the types being worn on the Avenue. The black and white is very much liked by the matron, who wears it in the Ascot effect, folded over high about the neck like a riding stock. With this the small black hat of Bengaline or felt is affected and in many cases the white pipings are noted on these hats.

Motoring Umbrellas.

Among the new taffeta umbrellas included in this collection, several models particularly well-adapted to motoring are featured. "Limousine" is the name given to one model bordered with a narrow ruffle of self-material, the rod of which unscrews with a hinge arrangement so that the umbrella may be tilted at any angle while the parasol is held straight. This model also features the shoulder strap. An unusually small model designed with 10 ribs and also featuring the shank which unscrews is called "Motor-tour." This style when unscrewed, can be carried in a very small place.

"Shelf Paper" Ruffles.

The finest kidskins have small flared cuffs with contrasting color embroideries or double ruffles of kid in "shelf paper" designs. A particularly attractive style has the turnover flare cuff of moire silk, embroidered in colors. Cut-outs designs in the material of the cuff with an underlay of a contrasting color and others with the perforations showing through with no underlay are seen. Black kid with cutout patterns over an underlay of white kid pique sewn, with novelty white stitching is a popular combination. Braiding and two-tone embroidered, embossed patterns or stamped effects in color and cuffs finished in pointed or round scalloped are among the new styles.

Overblouses with Robespierre collars are made with groups of fine pin tucks in striped effects, the fulness on either hip allowing them to be shaped to the figure. The vogue for the fob and monogram are demonstrated in overshirts of spun silk or crepe de Chine, with round collars and fitted hipbands, a fob in red, jade, black, emerald, amber, or apricot falling fro ma ribbon, coming from a slit at one side of the band.

Monograms appear low down in the center of the front of blouses, and less frequently on the left side instead of a breast pocket. One model which has been much advertised is in heavy crepe de Chine, with narrow collar, slit breast pocket and two slit pockets at the waist piped with a constrasting color. From one pocket a novelty fob is hung, with an embroidered initial. Cream with red, jade or mauve, champagne and gold, bauve and pink, putty and brown, navy and cherry are among the combinations noted.

Sport skirts have quieted down considerably, both in color and in pattern. There are some plaids shown, but they are subdued, of the shadow variety, and are effective through using a contrasting color for a hairline blocking, rather than the tartan idea. The most wanted sports skirts are the checked patterns, brown on tan or black on white, with very fine pleating that does not come out, or wrap-around ones.

Pajamas take to voiles this season and appear in pastel shades in slipon styles, and are decorated with lace. Crepe and dimity are probably still the most popular, in coat styles, with frog-fastened fronts and tailored.

Yellow is stil in favor with the green, tile red and cinnamon following closely behind. Coats sponsor the tan, cocoa and green shades with trimmings of kid.

Silk and wool in alternating rows form fur-trimmed coats made on loose, straight lines. Juina and suede cloth are also worn in red, tile and rust with matching or contrasting fur.

It is now the fashion, to have vanity accessories dangling from the wrist in some contrivance or to hide them in the belt or in a tassel of the dress, so that bags need not be so voluminous as before.

The Directoire bobs up here and there in this season's styles. In youthful coats, several of the larger houses are showing coats having the short Directoire circular capelet. More mature styles show large formal hip pockets, while suits are likewise characterized, with erect collars and wide revers.
